Shippensburg Mecca for Y.M.C.A. Cabinet

Ninety-Five Delegates Represented
Sixteen Colleges; Success of Conference Due to Lewis Fox

The annual Cabinet Training Conference of the Pennsylvania Student Young Men's Christian Association was held at the Shippensburg State Teachers' College from Thursday to Sunday. Approximately ninety-five delegates from sixteen colleges of Central Pennsylvania met at Shippensburg for a Conference which was destined to be one of the most inspirational and helpful that has been held for many years.

Delegates began arriving Thursday afternoon, by evening at least fifty had registered. They killed to a picturesque spot in the hills surrounding Shippensburg and enjoyed a weiner-marshmallow toast followed by the official welcome to the conference and an impressive outdoor devotional service led by Fred Mund, Vice-President of the State Student Council. The delegates then returned to their respective Conference homes feeling that the Conference had given them much real help.

Dr. Ritzman of Albright Seminary laid the foundation for Friday's work by leading a devotional service centered around Temptation that was too beautiful for description. The initial address was then given by Mr. L. J. Darter, associate secretary of the State Y. M. C. A., on the subject "The Message and Work of the Y. M. C. A." He stressed the fact that the Y is not just a building or a recreational center but a great Christian movement.

Friday afternoon Mr. Darter again spoke and discussion groups were held on various subjects of interest. A great (Concluded on Page 4)

Honor Science Discussion on Tuesday Evening Brings Out Some Very Interesting Data on Curves

Although mathematics is generally too much for the average student, the largest group of science students to attend any meeting of the Honor Science Society this year enjoyed the talk of Dr. Wagner last Tuesday evening at Steele Science Hall. Dr. Wagner discussed "Statistical Data, Its Representation, and Meaning." His talk was not too technical and his examples of the application of his principles made the talk digestible to all who attended.

"Present day statistical curves not only represent past data, but are a means of predicting future events. Of the two schools of statistical interpretation, Dr. Wagner upholds the British system rather than the Scandinavian."

"The Scandinavian represents data by the bell-shaped curve that enters into any group of data that has ever been collected. The British system extends the old shaped statistical curve to other forms determined by mathematical equations."

"The field for the statistical mathematician is growing. Four years ago the Victor talking machine company added a department of this type to its business organization. One company was able to save some $9,000 tons of coal in its budget by the help of the statistician, who predicted future events from past data."

Chinese Statesman Speaks In Chapel

Dr. T. Z. Koo, Vice-Chairman of the World Student Christian Federation Advocates World Peace

Dr. T. Z. Koo, distinguished Chinese statesman and vice-chairman of the World Student Christian Federation, spoke at the chapel exercises of Susquehanna University, which were held last Wednesday morning.

Dr. Koo, who is recognized as China's greatest interpreter of Christianity, gave a real Christian viewpoint of the strained difficulties between the two great nations of the Orient.

"He brought forth the thought that in order to attain a Christian attitude in the present economic situation a spirit of love must exist or be created between the two nations."

According to Dr. Koo, the Chinese are aware to this fact, and will not entertain a grudge at their neighbor, but instead hope to establish a better understanding with the Japanese.

Dr. Koo was at one time the administrative secretary of the Chinese government railroad. His address was enjoyed by the members of the faculty and by the students.

Auxiliary to Stage 'Ladies of Cranford'

Gaskell's Village Play Will be Staged on Thursday Evening, April 28, Under Auspices of Ladies' Auxiliary

Mrs. Gaskell's "Ladies of Cranford" will be produced by the Women's Auxiliary Association of Susquehanna University in the Seibert Hall Auditorium, Thursday evening, April 28th.

The story of "Cranford" is a sympathetic treatment of a village in England by that name. Mrs. Gaskell, the author, the daughter of a rector and the wife of a clergyman, has written a book that has become a well-known classic.

The story deals with the "genteel poverty of spinsters and widows, too proud to notice anything but 'elegant economy.' The quaint women pretend to a rigid social exclusion, but in reality they are a group of the most warm-hearted creatures in the world. They appear to dislike men of the town, but one of the women makes the reservation that, while men are a nuisance around the house, they are dependable in an emergency."

"The Ladies of Cranford" is humorous, full of delightfully ridiculous situations which never become farcical. The play will be presented in three scenes which will sketch English village life a hundred years ago.

A very able cast includes:
Miss Maillida Jenkins, Mrs. Frederick Stevens.

Miss Mary Smith, Mrs. Donald Hemphill.
Miss Jessie Brown, Edna Williamson.
Miss Pole Elinor Sherff
Mrs. Forrester, Madeline Steinger
Miss Betty Barker, Mrs. Foster Benfer
The Hon. Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. Harry Coney.

Martha, maid to Miss Jenkins, Mrs. Samuel Michaels.
Peggy, maid to Miss Barker, Mrs. Luther d. Grossman
Mrs. Purkis, a country woman, Mrs. E. M. Magee

Little Susan, her daughter, Josephine Dodson.

Jennie, a country girl ... Betty Smith
Little James, a small boy, Buddy Smith

Admiral Byrd Heads Nat. Pi Gamma Mu

New President is Noted Polar Explorer.
Fifteen Thousands Members Acclaim the Explorer as Leader

Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, noted polar regions explorer, was recently elected as Honorary National President of the National Social Science Honor Society, Pi Gamma Mu.

ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD

His election was authorized by the third national convention of Pi Gamma Mu which met at New Orleans, La., last December, and was just consummated by formal vote of the National Board of Trustees and by acceptance of the office by Admiral Byrd.

The announcement of the selection of Byrd as leader of the organization was received with acclaim by the fifteen thousand members of Pi Gamma Mu. It was also of interest to faculty members and students on the local campus, since the Pennsylvania Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu is located at Susquehanna University.

Admiral Byrd was chosen Honorary President because of his well known interest in social science and its application to social problems. He became a member of Pi Gamma Mu in 1927 and in 1929 was appointed a member of the National Advisory Council.

In 1928 Admiral Byrd carried with him on his expedition to the Antarctic the blue and white checkerboard flag of the society, each square representing a chapter and the whole symbolizing the checkered career of mankind and the intricacy of social problems.

Choral Club Renders Delightful Operetta

Organ and Piano Soloists Interspersed Religious and Secular Numbers
With Instrumental Vivacity

Forty-seven young women of Susquehanna University made the music of the old masters seem realistic, when the Ladies' Choral Club, under the direction of Mrs. Bertha L. Rodgers, gave its annual concert before a very large and appreciative audience in Seibert Chapel. Those assisting on the program were Misses Lois Bruner, cellist, and Elizabeth Kinney, violinist.

The program opened with both religious and secular numbers, all having beautiful arrangements. This was followed by organ and piano solos, and instrumental trios. The third part of the program consisted of the presentation of Charles Vincent's operetta, "The Lost Meddler."

The attractive stage setting was worked out by Miss Dorothy Reeder, stage director. The scene of the operetta was laid in Spain during the grape-harvest. A band of maidens were at work amid the vines, and were full of life and merriment. Margaret, a young American lady, joined the grape-gatherers in their amusements. A troupe of Gipsies, who sang and danced, enlivened the mid-day rest. Margaret suddenly discovered that her necklace was missing, and accused the Gipsies of stealing it. The Gipsies were greatly angered. The necklace finally was found suspended on one of the vines, where it had become caught, while Margaret had been gathering grapes. After its recovery, singing was resumed, and ended in a chorus of farewell to the scene of the day's occupations and events.

Kozak and Fairchild Bid Adieu to Paper

Appointments Made by Gemberling;
Many New Faces Appear on 1933
Staff Following Appointments

With this issue the new staff will begin to function in proper order. All appointments have been made as follows: Alumni Editor, Estella Pearl; Social Life Editor, Diana Lizdas; Assistant Social Life Editor, Daisy Reese; Conservatory of Music, Margaret Ide. However, the Women's Athletic Council has not appointed its representative.

Last week was the last edition of the 1932 publication under the guidance of Andrew Kozak, Editor-in-Chief, and Lee Fairchild, Business Manager. Andy and Lee have both been strong newspaper men on the campus and have succeeded remarkably well with the paper.

There are other members of the staff who ceased active work with the publication this past week. They are Bruce Worthington, our peppy sports writer for three years and Editor-in-Chief of the Freshman edition of "The Susquehanna" during his first year at school; Elizabeth Wardrop, the versatile Social Life Editor for two years; Margaret Fink, who covered the women's athletics for us this year, and Arlene Kanyuck, the writer for the Conservatory of Music. All these staff members have served capably and well and receive the congratulations of the staff members who remain.

Editor-in-Chief Gemberling plans some very interesting features for the coming year and is working out a fine system for his judgment of staff members in consideration of the changes in the constitution.

A word of praise is due the faculty supervisor, Dr. A. H. Wilson, who has aided materially in the publication during the past year. We hope that he will continue as advisor to the staff during the coming year.

In conclusion we want to congratulate the whole staff of the 1932 "Susquehanna," as well as the Editor-in-Chief and the Business Manager on the way they have handled the campus publication and presented campus news and opinions.

Town and University Plan Joint Program

May Day Will be Celebrated in Conjunction With Washington's Bi-Centennial by Patriots

Residents of Selingrove plan to celebrate Washington's Bi-Centennial on May 21st in conjunction with Susquehanna University's May Day program.

Plans for observance of May Day on the Selingrove campus will take the form of a pageant, which will portray the various episodes in the life of George Washington. The pageant will be presented in early evening time under the direction of Miss Dorothy Reeder, instructor of Physical Education for Women. Other events on the campus during the day include a baseball game with Bucknell in the afternoon and Susquehanna's Annual Juman from following the May Day pageant.

Of the committee in charge, Mr. O. fthe committee in charge, Mr. Schure having been appointed as chairman some time ago by the Washington Bi-Centennial Committee. Various organizations have been invited to send representatives to a committee meeting to complete plans for the celebration. The committee will meet Wednesday evening in the High School Building at 7 o'clock.

Organizations which will be represented to make preparations for the event are Chamber of Commerce, Snyder County Historical Society, Public Schools, Susquehanna University, Ladies' Auxiliary, Rotary Club, American (Concluded on Page 4)

Slugging their way to victory on Beaver Field, last Wednesday afternoon, Susquehanna broke a long existing jinx by defeating Penn State by a score of 17-16. This is the first time in history that a Susquehanna nine has been victorious over that school.

Although the game was marred by numerous errors, it was a slugging contest throughout. Martinec carried away the hitting honors of the day with two singles, a double, a triple, and a home run. Foltz shared home run honors with Martinec when he pounded out a four-bagger to right field in the first inning. Penn State did not fail to add their part to the thrills when Walus and Zawocki sent out terrific drives and were able to cross the plate before the ball returned.

With one out in the first inning, the Crusaders took the lead by scoring six runs on singles by Stroup, Malasky, Martinec, Palmer, Hausman and a home run by Foltz. Although the lead was threatened several times, the Crusaders managed to keep ahead by adding a few more runs to their score at the right time. Susquehanna added two more counters in the second inning on a base on balls, a triple and a single. Penn State scored three in the first frame and came back in the second to score four on three singles and two errors.

After the fourth inning, the Orange and Maroon managed to keep at least a two run lead and the game went into the ninth inning with the score 15-13. In this inning, Malasky drew a base on balls and Martinec pounded out his home run to deep center field, to give Susquehanna a four run lead. Penn State was determined to overcome this lead when the first man to the plate sent the ball under the grandstand in deep center. A single, two errors, and two putouts placed two runs across the plate and the tying run on third. The next man sent a long fly to deep left field, which was smothered by Malasky to end the game.

Coloratura Soprano Sings Here May 10

Ethel Luening to Present "The Swan and the Lark" Under the Choral Club and New York Societies

Ethel Luening, coloratura soprano, will be heard in concert here May 10, under the auspices of the University Choral Society and the National Music League of New York. The soloist will be heard in a program entitled "The Swan and the Skylark."

Miss Luening began her musical career in a traveling light opera company from Vancouver, B. C. She began singing in various picture palaces and Vladimir Rosing of the German Opera Company heard her clear and bell-like soprano and offered her a scholarship to study in New York and Rochester. From then on her career has been a series of triumphs for her exquisite voice.

She has studied French, German, Violin and piano as well as voice and fortunately so for she was called upon to sing an entire opera in German during a visit to Germany. Her repertoire includes two hundred songs and arias in English, German, French and Italian.

SALUTATORY

With this issue of THE SUSQUEHANNA, we the staff of 1932-33 make our debut by submitting our initial edition for your approbation or disapproval.

We have taken charge of the publication with the determination to make it a better college newspaper, although our predecessors have just completed a commendable year's work in the journalistic field.

In order to make THE SUSQUEHANNA a better college newspaper, we must have the cooperation of every loyal Susquehannian. Without the cooperation of every faculty member, of every alumnus, and every student, we cannot hope to realize our ambitions and plans.

We intend to publish opinions of the student body, because the college paper is the mouthpiece of the undergraduate body, is fostered and maintained by the undergraduates on the campus, with the exception of financial aid furnished in the form of subscriptions by loyal alumni and by members of the faculty.

We want THE SUSQUEHANNA to be a real live-wire college publication and this cannot be accomplished without undergraduate opinions and ideas. We will continue to prepare questionnaires and to submit them to the undergraduates from time to time, in order to secure true and conclusive facts. If the sentiments of the student body are not expressed in the college newspaper, but are suppressed, there is no need or purpose in having the college paper. The paper ceases to be a college newspaper, instead, it is an agency for the announcement of coming athletic events, dances, and various meetings that are to take place on the campus.

In conclusion, we will welcome any criticism for the betterment of the paper and the suggestions made will be used, if at all possible. In fact, several intended improvements have been suggested. The first, was to discontinue the S. U. PEPYS column, which was written by R. V. Nertz and, a second, was to place sporting events on the front page. The members of the staff have given the first mentioned suggestion careful consideration and have decided in favor of the continuation of the S. U. PEPYS. In regard to the sporting events, they will be placed on the front page, whenever it is expedient.

The STAFF shall endeavor to make the paper throughout the coming year worthy of its readers.

PRESIDENT GOSSARD

At this time the sympathies of the administration, faculty and student body of our institution go out to the faculty and student body of Lebanon Valley College in the loss of their president. Lebanon Valley College and Susquehanna University sustain a rather unique relationship to each other. In addition to the usual forensic and athletic relationships there are now on Susquehanna's faculty both former graduates and faculty members of Lebanon Valley College. Such a three-fold relationship between these two institutions made the announcement in our chapel services on Monday morning of President Gossard's death both sad and very untimely.

It has been the good fortune of the writer to know Lebanon Valley's President for some years. He always found him the same courteous gentlemanly, and intelligent individual. Constantly interested in the welfare and efficiency of the small Liberal Arts College, he ever made it a favorite topic for conversation. Dr. Gossard was a capable financier, an efficient administrator, and an interesting and impressive speaker on the platform. It is the writer's judgment that the present status of Lebanon Valley College among the smaller colleges of Pennsylvania and of the United States was made very largely possible through the untiring efforts and administrative ability of Dr. Gossard. He served his institution faithfully and well for more than a score of years.

S. U. PEPYS

Saturday's defeat seemed to come as a shock to many of the local rooters. Apparently they thought that a two game batting spree against early season pitching was an indication that Susquehanna would sail through an undefeated season. . . . averaging about twenty runs per game . . . with our opponents conceding victory after looking at the box-scores in the newspapers. . . . that is, if they didn't look at the error columns.

We can't ask for more, if all the boys were trying as hard as "Shep" Sheaffer did against Delaware last week. . . . Playing through the game with an infected leg and a finger swollen about three times its normal size, Shep was in bed with a doctor's care a few hours after the contest.

Anyway, Penn State massacred the Army!

In a staged murder trial last week, the accused villain was none other than Luke Rhoads. . . . What puzzles us is whether to feel complimented upon the appreciation of our talented Seminarian, . . . or to feel insulted at the possible reflection upon our ministerial hope. . . . For of course our Luke wouldn't hurt even a Virginia ham! Heh! Heh!

These occasional balmy days bring out the warm weather enthusiasts, but even they do not admit the authentic arrival of Spring until the Mighty Mallom comes forth in his white linen knickers.

The dormitory students got their days mixed up Sunday evening. . . . No potato chips or nickles for supper. . . . However, the movie-goers from town weren't mistaken about the usual Friday menu. . . . and it wasn't onions!

The Nertz Bros., always ardent supporters of "Art for art's sake", have decided to provide refuge for those poor struggling souls who receive rejection slips from the "Poets Corner", by printing their efforts in this column. . . . Heaven knows they can't make it any worse! . . . We herewith present the hors d'oeuvre of our first customer:

The Sultan's Strategy by G. A. T.

A sultan at odds with his harem Thought of a way he could scare 'em. So he set him a monstrous meal. Which he freed in the house, Thus starting the first harem-scarem.

Looking just around the corner, (no, not for prosperity) we think the baseball team should be provided with: A new pair of pants for Malasky. Crutches (two pairs) for Sheaffer and Spiegelmeyer.

A second hand cushion for Willie Morrow.

A new dictionary for Backstop McKullen.

One dozen bottles of glue for fielders' gloves.

One dozen bottles of elbow grease for their arms.

Couple of fast ball pitchers to bat against.

A few hairpins apiece for all the boys.

Well, now that the May Queen is elected it is once more safe to mention that a co-ed is looking nice, without being accused of being blind, stupid, prejudiced, narrow-minded, and a few other things we can't print.

If you haven't fallen asleep by now, you'd better go to bed anyway. That's where we are going. Auf wiederahn, if ever.

R. V. and I. M. Nertz.

Bond and Key Holds 2nd Informal Party

The second of a series of informal parties by which Bond and Key is trying to the alleviate the depression in campus and social activity upon the campus was held last Saturday evening at the club house. Some twenty couples were present and spent another pleasant evening at cards and dancing.

The music was furnished by some of the most outstanding dance units of the country. At seven thirty Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians played for fifteen minutes. The music of Isham Jones and Ace Brigode also helped pass an evening of entertainment.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul J. Overbo and Dr. and Mrs. George Seidel were the faculty guests.

Bond and Key

Miller Gerhart, '30, was a visitor at the club house during the week. Miller lives at Johnston and is at present engaged in a prosperous canary bird farm. His products may be found throughout the entire continent.

Mr. Lewis A. Legacy, father of Lewis, Jr., and Mrs. Lesher, stopped at the house Saturday to spend the afternoon.

Chester Beam, '31, was the guest of George Hess over the week-end. He is engaged in the teaching profession in Clearfield county.

The senior members of the club were the guests of Dr. Franklin G. Williams at his home on the river front last Monday evening. A pleasant evening was spent at bridge, 500 and hearts. Dr. Williams is an honorary member of Bond and Key.

"Curley" Miller Pays Visit to B. and K. "Curley" Miller, the well known "One Man Band," is at present a member of "B. and K." Anderson and His Metropolitanians of New York City. The band has just returned from Cincinnati, Ohio, where they broadcasted from Hotel Gibson through WLW, the past three months. "Curley" dropped in on the boys before returning to the band for a New York engagement over the N. B. C. network. After the city engagement, the band will embark for a four months contract on the steamship Majestic.

"Curley" will be remembered on the campus as the jovial guest artist of the fraternity smokers for several years.

Phi Mu Delta Notes

Messrs. Lloyd Bedford, Ernest Rano, and Allen DeLand were week-end guests at the fraternity house.

Mr. Lewis Fox attended the Y. M. C. A. convention at Shippensburg State Teachers College over the week-end. Mr. Harold Wilkop and Mr. Fred Wilks journeyed to Buffalo to visit their respective homes.

Epsilon Sigma Notes

Maurice Sheaffer, hard-working catcher, who was injured in the University of Delaware baseball struggle, was forced to spend the week-end in bed, nursing his many wounds.

Harold Kramer, business manager of the paper, spent his spare time trout fishing. The fish stories will be filling the atmosphere for the next week.

Sigma Alpha Iota Notes

Sigma Alpha Iota was greatly honored when one of their members, Anne Dunkelberger, was chosen for May Queen. We are indeed proud of the distinction and we wish to congratulate her.

We also extend our congratulations to Dorothy Puckett, who is a member of the Court. Both girls are prominent in the Sorority, Dorothy being President and Anne Chaplain.

Miss Dorothy Leisher, one of S. A. I.'s alumnae, spent Tuesday evening with us when she paid a short visit to S. U.

S. A. I. to Have MacDowell Tea

On Friday, May 6th, from 3 to 5 o'clock, Sigma Alpha Iota will hold its second annual MacDowell Tea on the lawn west of Seibert Hall.

Each year, Sigma Alpha Iota plans for a MacDowell Tea. Last year, the tea was held in Seibert Hall parlors, but plans have been changed and we hope, the weather permitting, that we will be able to hold it on the lawn.

Throughout the country, all the S. A. I. chapters have been making this tea one of their outstanding campus features. Since it is for the benefit of the MacDowell Colony at Petersboro, N. H., which is a retreat for all artists and musicians, the donations received from the tea are sent for the maintenance of the colony.

Members of the Sorority extend a cordial invitation to all. Must will be furnished by the McCar-Sho Trio.

Junior Prom Promises to be Elaborate Dance

Elaborate preparations are under way to make the 1932 Junior Prom the best one ever held on S. U.'s campus. The date of the merry occasion is May 21, the place is the Alumni gymnasium, and the merry-makers are all students who wish to spend the trivial sum of three dollars for a ticket.

The Prom committee, John Ballantine, chairman, Jack Petry, Paul Edwards, Freddy Carl, Walt Metzger, Barb Jones, Joe Malmom, Esther Geisel and Beatrice Gentzler, intends to spare no effort in making this a banner occasion. Al Hollender and his troubadours will furnish excellent music. The gym will be gaily decorated, and the usual vivacious atmosphere will prevail. Tickets can be secured any time after the first of May, so plan to put aside your troubles and woes—and attend the Junior Prom.

Seibert Hall Echoes

"In spring a young man's fancy"—anyway, spring is on its way, and it is supposed that the rush hours will be between four and six.

Base-Ball trips are all right for some people, but what about the fair damsels who're left behind? Hutter, Reese, and Diehl would rather have more home games.

There are so many co-ed lamenting about "Ken" James' injured hand.

Mary Sufferl is a day student, nevertheless, an announcement was recently made that we are to refer to her car as "Doris" instead of the "Chariot". It appears as though it has come unto its second youth.

There are all sorts of bears, but "Jerry" Schlegel seems to prefer a "Teddy" Bear.

We wonder why Eleanor Boismaki goes home so many week-ends—Perhaps it is because she is interested in her means of travel?

The Delaware boys seemed to go over big with some of our co-eds.

It seems that bigger and better parlors shall have to be provided for Seibert Hall on Sunday nights.

Speaking of florists calling at Seibert Hall, Dorothy Clegg got roses for no good reason at all.

Dr. George E. Fisher, head of the chemistry department of Susquehanna University and Pennsylvania State associate chemistry advisor, addressed the Selinsgrove Rotary Club, last Friday evening, using for his subject, "Chemistry and Taste."

Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, dean of Susquehanna; Dr. John I. Woodruff, professor of philosophy, and Professor Luther D. Grossman, executive secretary of the general alumni organization, attended the meeting of the Susquehanna University Alumni Club of the Harrisburg district, which took place in Craver's Restaurant, Second St., Harrisburg, on April 18th. About forty graduates from that district attended the meeting.

Campus Club Lunches at Millifinburg Inn

The spring-time luncheon of the Campus Club of Susquehanna University was held last Saturday at Hopp Inn, Millifinburg. Ten women acted as chaperons in transporting the thirty-three who were in attendance. Mrs. Frederick Stevens was hostess. The chairman of the club, Mrs. Paul J. Ovebo, presided at a brief business meeting after the luncheon. Mrs. G. Morris Smith was chosen as chairman for the year 1932-33. Some ways in which the club could aid the college were suggested.

The entertainment consisted of book reviews and music. Mrs. Donald Hemphill, accompanied by Mrs. Percy Linebaugh, delighted with three solos, entitled "When Love Comes Blowing In," "Take Joy Home" and "Morning." Mrs. George Siedel told of "Captain Cook," by Maurice Thierly, describing the three voyages of this greatest of navigators and explorers. An interesting point of contact was brought out when stories of experiences of Mrs. Seidel's brother in the same South Seas were related by her. Mrs. Martha Dodson was happy to talk on "New Minds—New Men," by Thomas Woody, because of the interest this author has in the development of the new Russia, especially in the line of education. He has made three trips to the country, visited five hundred schools and has made some interesting conclusions. The final meeting of the club will be held in May, closing a year in which the members have shown by their attendance that they value the privileges afforded them for mutual acquaintance and good fellowship.

GERMAN CLUB PRAISES GREAT NATIVE WRITER

On Monday evening, April 18, the Deutscher Verein held its regular monthly meeting in Seibert Hall Social Room. The Club celebrated the 100th anniversary of Goethe's death with readings and incidents from the life of this noted German writer. Ideas of his life will be shown to the German classes in the near future by Professor Glibert.

Baseball and Tennis Men to See Action

Susquehanna's clubbing nine will meet three stiff opponents in the coming week. On Friday they journey to Philadelphia, where they will cross bats with P. M. C. Saturday they will leave Pennsylvania for a day in order to try their skill on the Delaware river. Next Tuesday they will entertain the Juniata aggregation on the local diamond. Probably a victory over the latter foe will please the student body more than last week's victory over Penn State.

Friday the Crusaders' tennis team opens the 1932 season with Mansfield State Teachers College. Coach Seidel and Captain Petry are both optimistic over the outcome of the contests scheduled and all candidates are working diligently to get in shape for the game on Friday. Petry, Speer and Adams show up well in practice. Schlegel and the Freshman candidates, Dorsett and Byler, look like the nucleus for a good team next year, while the regulars from last year will have to work to keep these racketeers from usurping their places.

Seniors Contribute to the Alumni Fund

It was decided, at a recent meeting of the Senior Class, to present as a class memorial a certain amount of money to be used for scholarship purposes. The classes of 1914, 1930, and 1931 have already made contributions to this fund, and with the addition of this year's gift the total amount will be approximately $2500.

Under a plan which has been adopted, each member of the Senior Class will at the same time become a contributor to the Alumni Fund. The money will be given to the alumni treasurer, with the stipulation that it shall be given to the administration to be used for scholarship purposes. Each senior will receive a card indicating that he is a contributor to this fund.

Miss Moody is a pupil of Professor Sheldon and is accomplished on both piano and organ. She is also a graduate of the college department in the class of '30. Her program will consist of several brilliant compositions by Chopin and Debussy, and other celebrated composers.

This promises to be a most entertaining evening, which will be well spent for those who attend.

number of those present were ministrant students and they proved this fact by "doing away with" the dinner served by the ladies of Memorial Lutheran Church which consisted of chicken and "the trimmings".

After permitting this bountiful repast to settle with the aid of songs, and so forth, the delegates repaired to the lecture room of the church and were led in a second unforgettable devotional service by Dr. Ritzman. Then the address of the evening was given by Rev. Charles Leber of the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church in Scranton. His subject was "The Cost of Discipleship" and he certainly made his subject a real, live issue. The four points of his address were: (1) Think things through, (2) Work with others, (3) Adventure into unknown, and (4) Struggle for reality. His descriptions and examples were given in a way that actually caused those present to grip their seats. Again these Y men went to their temporary homes feeling fired with the zeal for doing things on their own campus.

Dr. Ritzman gave his third inimitable devotional service in the College Training School Building where the Conference was to convene that day. Following his stirring appeal to the hearts and souls of the delegates, discussion groups and council meetings were held, then the Conference was taken with no noticeable casualty to either camera or photographer.

After lunch the delegates engaged in more discussion, the most of them adjourned to the athletic field where a Tri-County Track Meet was being held.

The Conference Banquet was served in the College Dining Room Saturday evening. Group singing, solos, and instrumental music was furnished by members of the Shippensburg Y. W. and Y. M., then Rev. Leber gave the address of the evening on "Practical Christian Leadership". He stressed the fact that in leadership on the campus we must search for the higher things and disregard the little, trivial matters.

The closing session was held in the Presbyterian Church with installation of new officers and an impressive communion service.

Much of the success of the Conference was due to Mr. Lewis R. Fox, President of the State Student Council and Treasurer last year of the Susquehanna Y. M. C. A., and to the Y. M. C. A. of Shippensburg Teachers College.

PENN STATE FALLS TO S. U., 17-16

Myers started on the mound for the Crusaders, but retired in the third inning in favor of Danks, who pitched a fine game, considering the costly errors he had to contend with. Penn State started Brewster, but he was forced to retire in the first inning in favor of Winn. Meade, State's pitching ace, relieved him in the seventh inning, but he could not stop the terrific onslaught of the Ulyermens.

Delaware 8, Susquehanna 4

After holding the University of Delaware on even terms until the eighth inning, the Crusaders met their first defeat of the season on University Field, Saturday afternoon, when the visitors showed across three runs that inning to sew up the game by a score of 8 to 4.

Al Myers started on the mound for the Orange and Maroon and held the victors to four bingles, but due to his wildness he was forced to retire in favor of Danks. The offerings of Danks were found for only four hits, but they were bunched in the eighth inning.

Delaware started in the fifth inning by scoring two runs by a single and five free passes to first base. The Crusaders scored one run in the first on singles by Keller and Malasky. After Delaware had scored one in the second, Susquehanna came back and scored two to tie the score. The Orange and Maroon forged ahead in the third by singles from Palmer and Hanna, but were passed in the fifth inning.

Palmer and Keller led the hitting attack for the Crusaders with two singles apiece. O'Connell starred for the visitors at the bat with a double and a single.

The fielding of the Orange and Maroon showed much improvement, but they were away below par in their hitting. Perhaps this was due to the great performance of Pitcher Riley. Much credit is due him for his work on the mound. At no time was he in trouble, his control being perfect.

Sigma Alpha Iota to Hold Benefit Tea

Friday, May 6, Sorority Girls to Serve
Second Annual MacDowell Tea for Benefit of Pan's Cottage

On Friday afternoon, May 6, from 5 to 5 o'clock, Sigma Alpha Iota will hold its second annual MacDowell tea, on the lawn west of Seibert Hall. This tea will be for the benefit of Pan's Cottage, one of the buildings of the MacDowell Colony, which is supported by Sigma Alpha Iota. Here creative artists can carry out their plans in an atmosphere conducive to concentrated work. Writers are usually greatly in the majority, but now they are balanced by a sculptor, seven painters, and fourteen composers. Such celebrated moderns as Louis Untermeyer, poet; Jean Starr Untermeyer, poet; Mrs. H. H. Beach, musician; Bashka Paef, sculptor; Louise Driscoll, poet; Marion Bauer, composer; Mr. and Mrs. Padraic Colum, Irish stories and critic; Louise Dutton, writer; Frances Frost, poet, and many others, are included in the list of artists who have sought the MacDowell Colony as a retreat.

The cottage renders its greatest service in the summer, but it also enables some artist and his family to enjoy the freedom from care, and the peace and quiet, which a winter within its walls can give. Mrs. MacDowell established this colony for artists in memory of her husband, Edward MacDowell, the great composer.

Choral Society in 'Swan and Skylark'

Canata to Feature Miss Ethel Luening, Mrs. Rodgers, Prof. Stevens and Prof. David Lewis

On Tuesday, May 10, at 8:15 o'clock, the University Choral Society, composed of seventy voices, will make its initial appearance in the canata, "Swan and Skylark," by A. Goring Thomas. Solo parts will be taken by Miss Ethel Luening, coloratura soprano, Manal New York; Mrs. Bertha L. Rodgers, contralto; Prof. Frederick C. Stevens, tenor, and Prof. David L. Lewis, baritone.

Miss Luening has made several concert tours, and everywhere is credited with an unusual voice. She has also sung in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. Her press reports have been favorable wherever she has sung. Several of these are: "San Diego Union"—January 29, 1931: "Miss Luening, coloratura soprano, gave a brilliant rendition of the second aria, "Queen of the Night," from the Magic Flute, in the first part of the program, and "Fruehlingstimmen" (Johann Strauss), in the second, with encores following each appearance. Miss Luening is well equipped in voice and art."

"Daily Province," Vancouver, B. C., January 8, 1931:

"Miss Luening was always fortunate in the possession of natural musical gifts and that she is employing these intelligently is obvious, judging from the pleasure she gave her listeners on this occasion."

It can be said of Miss Luening that she has the enviable vocal equipment of the coloratura type with an arresting tessitura. It is an extremely beautiful voice of bell-like clarity, full of warmth and color, and what is more important, well able to adapt itself to many varieties of mood."

Washington Pageant To Feature May Day

Six Periods in Life of First President Expressed in Program to be Presented Under Direction of Miss Reeder

Seibert Hall promises a big affair this spring when the combined May Day festivities and the Washington Bi-Centennial program will feature Susquehanna's Annual May Day. The Washington program will contain various episodes of his life from the time of his sixteenth birthday until his inauguration as President.

Six pages will announce the program on the lawn in front of Seibert Hall after which the Queen and her Court will enter in all dignity due their positions. The Lady-in-Waiting will crown the Queen as soon as the whole court is assembled and the proclamation will conclude the coronation ceremonies.

Scene One of the pageant will open with Washington at the age of sixteen at his home in Mount Vernon, where Lord Fairfax is offering him the surveyor's position so well remembered by any history student. The second act takes place with Washington at the French Fort in Western Pennsylvania. Washington is asking the French to leave the territory in the near future. The third episode is founded on the period following the French and Indian War, after his marriage to Martha Custis. The great Revolution is in full swing during the fourth and fifth scenes with the period of mobilization and gloomy periods of the war. The finale of the pageant is gleaned from Washington's inauguration.

Both men and women will participate in the May Day program this year. This is contrary to the usual custom on the Campus. The Spirit of '76 will be presented also as a novelty feature. There will be strung music throughout the entire affair. The town will be elaborately decorated since they are also helping with the program this year.

Miss Dorothy Reeder is in charge of the entire May Day program and she is already working on the costumes as well as the pageant. The Choral Society, all the girls of the University, and thirty-six children from Selingrove will have minor parts in the pageant.

Characters which have been picked for the pageant are:
Washington Merle Hubbard
Martha Washington Muriel Camerer
Lawrence Washington, Jack Auchman
Colonel Mason Luke Rhoads
Lord Fairfax Lee Fairchild
Van Braan Harold Rowe
Spirit of History Jane Leitzeil

May Queen and Court Honored by Co-Eds

Susquehanna's May Queen and court were honored at a breakfast given by sixty co-eds Sunday morning in Seibert Hall. The May Day breakfast, this year was followed in the afternoon dining hall. The upper part of the hall had been reserved for the occasion. The tables arranged in a U shape decorated with pink and yellow flowers, made a very attractive setting for the May Day breakfast.

Following breakfast, Margaret Markle gave a solo, "A May Morning," which was followed by a toast to the court, given by Janet Leitzeil, retiring Y. W. C. A. president. Anna Dunkelberger, the Queen, and Mary Esther Potter, the Lady-in-Waiting, both made responses to the toast. Miss Hade gave a number of May Day readings and sketched a brief history of May Day. The May Day breakfast closed with the singing of the Alma Mater.

Harmony Negro Quartet Entertained In Chapel

On Monday morning, April 25, the students and faculty had the opportunity of hearing the Harmony colored Ladies Quartette of Kentucky render several musical numbers in the chapel.

The most unusual person was the head of the troupe, who towered about six feet and two inches, possessing an outstanding bass voice, and huge, muscular build. Her short talk on her accomplishments was amusing and straightforward.

The Quartette travels extensively, and the proceeds from the entertainment go toward erecting schools for the colored. This woman has erected four schools, and has started her fifth.

Executive Committee Plan Summer Session

Dr. Manhart Presided Over Meeting, Group Selected Entertaining Features, Luther League in Charge

Final plans were recently completed by the executive committee of the United Lutheran Summer Assembly for the 1932 assembly session, which is held here each year.

Dr. Franklin P. Manhart, of Selingrove, presided over the meeting. This year the assembly will be held from August 9 to 18.

The State Secretary of Agriculture, the Hon. John A. McSparran, of Harrisburg, will appear on the program in a lecture for one of the evening features. This arrangement was announced by the director and secretary, the Rev. Walter E. Brown, of Danville.

Rev. Paul H. Hoh, one of the editors of the Sunday School literature of the United Lutheran Church, will be one of the evening lecturers. He will also preach the morning sermon on assembly Sunday.

The assembly hopes that the young people's work will be in charge of Reverend Paul M. Kinports, Executive Secretary of the National Lutheran League of America.

Splendid male choruses of Grace Lutheran Church, Shamokin, will appear on one of the feature evenings, of which there are seven, not including Sunday night.

Auxiliary Holds Stage Performance

Century Old Costumes Feature of Play, Proceeds to be Used for Improvement of Seibert Hall

Bonnets and hats a century old featured in the benefit play, "Ladies of Cranford," which was presented by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Susquehanna University, in Seibert Hall Chapel, last Thursday evening.

The play was a sketch of English village life a hundred years ago, and was ideally portrayed by the actors.

The costumes were very unique, and much credit must be given to all of the committees for their ability to secure the properties.

Before the play, Robert McNally rendered an Organ Prelude, and between acts the audience was entertained by vocal solos by Mrs. Francis Gilbert and Mr. George Witmer, respectively.

The proceeds of this play are to go towards the improvement of Seibert Hall, and the Ladies' Auxiliary deserve much credit for their diligent work. Miss Naomi K. Hade, Dean of Women at Susquehanna University, was the coach.

Characters were as follows:
Miss Matilda Jenkyns, Mrs. Frederick Stevens
Miss Mary Smith, Mrs. Donald Hemphill

Miss Jessie Brown, Miss Edna Williamson
Miss Poie, Miss Elmor Sheriff
Mrs. Forrester, Miss Madeline Steinger
Miss Betty Barker, Mrs. Foster Benfer
The Hon. Mrs. Jamison, Mrs. Harry Coryell

Martha, Mrs. Samuel Michaels
Peggy, Mrs. Luther Grossman
Mrs. Purkis, Mrs. J. E. Magee
Little Susan, Josephine Dodson Jennie, Betty Smith
Little James, Buddy Smith

—His Essay
It's pretty hard to get ahead of the youngsters. A teacher called for brief essays on "The funniest thing I ever saw." One boy got through several minutes before the others and the teacher asked to see his effort. On his paper was written, "The funniest thing I ever saw was too funny for words."

'Lanthorn' Officers Elected For 1934

Clapper, Bonsall and Brown Will Guide Destiny of Next Year's Annual, Big Plans Underway

Officers of the "1934 Lanthorn" were elected at the class meeting of the Sophomore Class on Tuesday afternoon, April 26. The Editor-in-Chief for the annual will be Edwin Clapper, and the Business Manager, James Bonsall. Miss Eleanor Brown will be the Art Editor.

At the present time "Eddie" is serving in the capacity of Advertising Manager of the "Susquehanna". His home is Duncansville, Pennsylvania, where he was Business Manager of the high school annual during his senior year. Altogether the Sophomores have made a wise selection in electing him to this responsible position.

James Bonsall, Business Manager-elect, is a student in the Business Department and the Sports Writer for the "Susquehanna". Jimmy is a resident of Grampian, Pennsylvania, and is serving his apprenticeship as Sub-assistant baseball manager this spring. We know Jim will be a successful manager of the annual.

Eleanor Brown has just joined our class this year, but she has shown her skill selling and helpful to the class organization. Her home is Westminster, Maryland.

A few of the appointments for the staff will be made at a later date, but the majority will not be made until next fall.

Luther League Sends Leaders to Campus

Rev. Paul Kinports and Rev. Wolf Visited Campus in Endeavor to Interest Sem Students in Luther League

Rev. Paul M. Kinports, Executive Secretary of the Luther League of America, and Rev. Robert Wolf, Secretary of the Intermediate Department of the Luther League, visited our Campus on Thursday and spoke to the Seminary Students.

Rev. Kinports is a Susquehanna Alumnus and a former pastor in Hershey, while Rev. Wolf is a graduate of Gettysburg College and Seminary. Both now live in Philadelphia.

The subject of their talks was, of course, the Luther League, and it was their purpose to create interest in this organization among the Ministerial students. They gave the organization of the Luther League in detail, explaining the three-fold division into Senior, Intermediate and Junior Leagues. They pointed out that the work of each division was also three-fold—educational, life-service, and missionary.

The pleasing personalities of both men, and the real worth of the Luther League as shown by their words, certainly accomplished their purpose, and not only the Seminary students, but those members of the Faculty and student body who were fortunate enough to be present, are now much interested in the Luther League and its work.

IN SYMPATHY

We regret to note that Mrs. H. Clay Bergstresser has passed on to her eternal reward. Her husband is a graduate of Susquehanna University and her daughter, Ruth, is a member of the present Sophomore Class and News Editor of THE SUSQUEHANNA. The members of the student body, of the faculty, and of THE SUSQUEHANNA extend their deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

MEN'S STUDENT COUNCIL ELECTIONS

On Thursday morning, the election of six representatives to the Men's Student Council will take place. The men who are elected at that time will fill the seats vacated by the graduating members of this year's body. Since every male student on the campus has the privilege of casting a vote and since the Council is to express and carry out the judgment of the group it represents, we feel that every man entitled to vote should consider the qualifications of the candidates seeking election to that governing body.

The members of THE SUSQUEHANNA staff would like to see a better set of Freshmen rules formulated for next year and to see that a stricter enforcement of the rules be maintained by the Student Council and the upperclassmen during the college term of 1932 to 1933. In order to secure the above-mentioned measures the voter must exercise thought in considering the abilities and characters of the candidates in the field, so that the best men will be selected for the offices.

During the past year the "name only" reign of the Men's Student Council has come to an end for the Administration has recognized the authority of the Council and in so doing has received the cooperation of that body. We, therefore, urge every male student to examine the candidate list appearing in a box on the front page of this issue and to cast his ballot on the morning of election day.

S. U.'S SPORTS PROGRAM AND THE DEPRESSION

Susquehanna's sport receipts are feeling the pinch of present economical conditions. Whereas, in the 1930-31 season gate receipts reached their peak, the current college year has brought with it a decided falling off in gate receipts.

In 1930 the football gate netted an income of $1,038.00 in four home games as compared with $548.25 received from three home games in the 1931 session.

Basketball presented a similar condition with $220.05 received in admissions in the 1930-31 session as compared with $83.00 in the season just closed.

The sports budget from student fees totaled $5,372.50 in 1930-31. In 1931-32 this source of income has been reduced to $4,485.00.

Susquehanna is not alone in facing the necessity of strict economy in the administration of her sports program. A number of institutions have been compelled to drop some sports. Colleges everywhere, large and small, have faced the necessity of curtailment. This has taken place along three general lines—dropping of some sports, shorter schedules in all sports, reduction in size of squads carried in each sport, greater care in purchase and return of equipment, more economic methods of transportation and elimination of all unnecessary expenses on trips.

Susquehanna's budget never permitted marked "excesses." However, present conditions make it imperative that every effort be made to practice economy lest we be forced to definitely curtail our sports program. It is only due to the fact that Susquehanna enjoys unusual natural and acquired sports facilities together with an administration that recognizes the place of sports in the general educational structure that enables Susquehanna students to continue to enjoy a program of intercollegiate and intramural sports program under present economic conditions.

To continue our present scope of sports activities is essential ly desirable in view of the fact that a large percentage of students are actively participating in the various sports.

It will be noted from the statement printed in this issue that student sport (Athletic Association) fees are used almost exclusively for the actual conduct of the intercollegiate sports. Care of buildings and grounds, salaries, are met through the general University budget.

S. U. PEPYS

Delaware's Blue Hens laid quite a few good eggs on our score sheet last week. They collected another brood of eight for themselves, the second time in eight days. Must be a lucky number for them.

At the same time Juniata was putting her too well known Indian sign on our Relay men. That makes at least eight (again!) times that Juniata track men have finished one place ahead of the Crusaders in the past four or five years. It's about time that jinx was broken.

The bright spot... Susquehanna's Racquet-Weiders gave some tennis lessons to the Mansfield Teachers. With Perry and Schlegel cavoring about in the quiet knickers and the most darling beret! We wonder what the horseshoe-pitching team is going to wear this year.

One of the local Rho Dammitt Rho chapters is all agog over a trip to Europe offer, released by Homer Bru, Royal Whoosis of the fraternity. Kandy Kojak, self-nominate and self-elected (unanimously) Local Whoosis is in charge of the tour tickets on the campus. All good Dams are invited to inquire for full information.

The May Day Breakfast was quite a success Sunday morning. Everything was under control until the radio suddenly went off on a tangent and started some hot-cha jazz, which contrasted rather sharply with the solemnity of the occasion.

Newly pledged and duly initiated members of I. F. Z., honorary scholastic fraternity on the campus, as well as the veterans of the organization, are indignant at the special designation given certain members on the list following the latest ballot. Six or seven of the names appeared with stars, as if with special honor. Of course, you know all about the I.F.Z.—I Flunka Zam—Fraternity, whose honorary list of members is posted every six weeks.

Isn't it odd that those lamebrains who howl "Fish Ho," "Yo-Yo-Yo," and other intelligent displays of lung power in Hassinger until midnight, are always the ones who attend athletic events with about as much interest as a man looking at an 1800 model bathing suit. Of course, most of them are freshmen. The Student Council does not act on the grounds that no names are handed in. There are two members living in Hassinger, but they Steve Martinez did a Brodie flop rounding second base in Saturday's baseball game to spoil what probably would have been a home run with the bases full. With two men on base, the Delaware pitcher walked Maitsky to get at Martinez. All poor little Stevie could do was shake the back fence with one of the longest drives ever seen on the Delaware field.

AMUSEMENTS

On Tuesday evening, the inside workings of a city police department will be shown in "The Beast of the City" with Walter Huston and Jean Harlow giving potent performances. Evelyn Brent, Charles Bickford, and Conrad Nagel take the leading roles in Columbia's production "Pagan Lady" which will be flashed on the silver screen on Wednesday evening.

"Freaks" which is a vivid story of the sordid lives of the pathetic side-show folks is the attraction for Thursday night.

Miriam Hopkins is a ten-cents-a-hostess in love with a nice saxophonist in "Dancers in the Dark" which is booked for Friday.

On Saturday afternoon and evening, Columbia presents Buck Jones, noted Western star, in "One Man Law".

Twelve Susquehanna Girls in Play Day

Twelve Susquehanna girls were the guests of the physical education department of Bucknell University at the Third Annual Play Day held Saturday afternoon. Rain cut short the field events and the girls gathered in the gymnasium for an indoor track meet, games and stunts. At six o'clock the girls were tendered a banquet in Larison Hall.

There was no intercollegiate competition, teams being made up of representatives from all the schools. Harriet Leese was captain of the "Orangeade" team who won third place. Aberdeen Phillips and Daisy Reese were also members of the Orangeade team. Ludlow Nichols was a member of the "Shamrocks" who won first place. Martha Gessner and Margaret Fink were members of the "Bluebeards" who placed second.

Six schools were represented at Play Day: Penn State, Dickinson, Cedar Crest, Elmira, Bucknell and Susquehanna. Those who made the trip to Bucknell are as follows: Misses Reese, Crabe, Lehman, Gessner, Fink, Jones, Geisel, Lizards, Keisler, Reese, Nichols, Andrews and Phillips.

Seibert Hall Echoes

Saturday night usual—Western picture with George O'Brien this time. What a man to write home about. Freda Stephens has been entertaining an out of town friend lately—well, just knew "he" would come along some day.

"Is" Wagner prefers "Holly" in the summertime too.

We wonder what our May Queen would do if the Mail Man ever disappointed her?

Isobel Horn has a sudden interest in the theological department.

Gettysburg has its charms—and especially when the big attraction is a Military Ball. Ask Mary Weavering, Muriel Camerer, or Eleanor Sheriff. Anyone desiring any information about Bucknell's sex appeal, consult Enza Wilson.

Lucille Lehman is a charter member of the Crooning Department Cleaner's Club.

Mary Esther Potter seems to be interested in "Art."

Heard across the hall—"Hey, Estelle, how long you gonna be in that bath-tub?" Same length as any place else, sap!

Any statistician who would like to know how S. U.'s faller athletes compare with the other colleges, see anyone of the 12 coaches who participated in Play Day at Bucknell on Saturday.

Gen. C. M. Clement Addresses Students

Major General Charles M. Clement, of Sunbury, gave an instructive and interesting talk to the students of Susquehanna University at the regular chapel exercises held last Wednesday morning.

This well known military figure made quite an impression upon the undergraduate body despite the fact that he was recuperating from an illness. Discipline was one of the main points dwelt upon as he spoke on the advantages of a college education.

He also spoke of higher education as an uplifting influence which gives an individual a higher moral status. General Clement closed his instructive talk with the thought, "It does not matter so much what one acquires while at college, but how he uses what he does get, after he leaves the college halls."

BASE BALL NINE LOSES, 8-4; RELAY TEAM PLACES SECOND

Delaware Repeats In 8 to 4 Victory

Crusaders Lead in Fifth by Two Runs, But Delaware Rallies in Seventh to Cinch Game With Two Runs

After taking a two run lead in the fifth inning, the Crusaders were defeated in the final innings by the University of Delaware on Saturday by a score of 8 to 4. This is the second defeat of the season for Susquehanna, both at the hands of Delaware.

Delaware immediately took the lead in the first inning, with two free passes to first and an error. They added another run in the third by a base on balls, an error and a stolen base. The game then remained scoreless until the fifth inning, when with one out, Spigelmyer reached first on an error. Stroup doubled, scoring Spigelmyer. Malasky drew a base on balls, Martinec tripled, scoring Stroup and Malasky, and Hanna singled, scoring Martinec. But Delaware was not to stay behind, when they tied the score in the sixth, scored two more in the seventh, and one more in the eighth to win the game.

Brinninger started on the mound for the Orange and Maroon, but was forced to retire in the seventh in favor of Danks. Each pitcher was found for four hits, but they were mixed with costly errors, which was responsible for losing the game. Riley, winning his second game over Susquehanna this season, pitched a steady game and received fine support from his teammates.

Spigelmyer, Malasky and Hanna led at the bat for Susquehanna, with two hits apiece, and were aided by Stroup's double and a triple by Martinec. Roman, with three safe walkops, led for the victors with Thompson close behind with a single and a triple.

Sophomores Lead in Inter-Class League

Inter-class baseball started last week, when the Frosh downed the Juniors in the initial game of the series. In the next scheduled game the Seniors bowed to the Sophomores. In the last game of the week the Seniors, under the able pitching of Hohmann, defeated the Freshmen in a close game. A great deal of interest and class spirit was shown at all of the games.

Track Team Host to Washington College

Dual Meet and Snyder County Inter-Scholastics Feature for May 7. Prof. Grossman Expects Fine Event

Preparations are being made for the opening of Susquehanna's track season, which will take place Saturday, May 7, on the University Field. Susquehanna will play host to Washington College and also the Snyder County Inter-scholastic Meet.

The Orange and Maroon have not competed with Washington in track for three years, therefore, little is known as to the strength of their team. Coach Grossman hopes to have a fine lineup of track and field men for the opening meet. The 1932 aggregation will be strengthened by the freshmen class and by the appearance of a number of good men in the field events. Previous to this year, the team has been weak in the field events, but with the appearance of new men, the Crusaders plan to add many points in the field events.

The Interscholastic and the Susquehanna-Washington Dual Meet will start at 1:30 o'clock, with the Junior Interscholastics at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Leese High Scorer In Senior Victory

The Senior girls, winners of the indoor track meet, scored another victory Thursday in the outdoor track meet, by running up a total of 22½ points. The Juniors finished second with 10½ points and the Sophomores tied the Freshmen with 9 points each.

Harriet Leese, who has been a consistent winner in track during the last four years, held high scoring honors for the meet with a total of 300 points. Eleanor Brown, of the Sophomore class, came second with 150 points.

Summary:
Broad jump won by Leese (Sr.); second, Brown (Sr.); Jones (J) and Marks (F) tied for third place. Distance: 73'.
High jump won by Lidas (J); second, Brown (Sr.); third, Leese (Sr). Height: 4'.
Baseball Throw won by Leese (Sr.); second, Jones (J); third, Griesemer (J). Distance: 155 ft.

N. B. Editors note—For each place that an entrant receives she shall get 100 points towards her letter for the year.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON HIKE FOR Y. W. C. A.

A number of the Y. W. C. A. girls left Seibert Hall Saturday afternoon, for a hike among the hills of the Susquehanna Valley. Under the leadership of Frances Hubler the hikers journeyed to Brook's Bank by the way of the State Colony property. Reaching their destination the time was spent in a number of games. Following the recreation the girls enjoyed a weiner roast, and then hit the trail for—Seibert Hall.

"Yes, I pitched a little at school; teams of '31 and '32."

"I'll say you did—best relief pitcher we had. What you doing now?"

"Catching now. I noticed a lot of bad throws there in college, wild financial pitches, money flung away, so I controlled my spending dollars—put some of them in a Lutheran Brotherhood 'Special' insurance contract—and now I'm catching dividends and will soon be catching old age income."

Varsity Tennis Team Defeats Mansfield

Doubles Team Composed of Captain Petry and Schlegel Pressed by Visiting Netmen

Susquehanna's tennis team won their first match of the 1932 season from Mansfield State Teachers College on Friday by a 5-2 score. Probably the most exciting sets of the match were those between Petry-Schlegel and Alger-Davis in one of the doubles matches. Mansfield took the first set of this contest 8-10, and S. U. had to work hard in order to take the last two sets, 6-4 and 9-7.

The results of the matches are as follows:

Singles:
Adams won from Straughn: 6-3, 7-5.
Speer won from Davis: 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.
Schlegel won from Alger: 6-3, 6-3.
Petry lost to Simms: 3-6, 3-6.
Rummel lost to Rowe: 7-9, 3-6.
Doubles:
Speer-Adams won from Simms-Straughn: 6-0, 6-2.
Petry-Schlegel won from Alger-Davis: 8-10, 6-4, 8-7.

Nine Prepares For Coming Bucknell Fray

Coach Ullery has been sending his boys through stiff practice for the past week in preparation for their first encounter this year with Bucknell University at Lewisburg, May 7.

According to comparative scores, Susquehanna ought to win by a good margin. Army lost to Penn State, 17-4, after defeating Bucknell by a score of 20-2.

Any member of the Orange and Maroon pitching staff will be ready to start the game for the Crusaders. Due to his pitching ability displayed in defeating the Susquehanna nine last year, Trudnak will probably be chosen to take the pitching duties for Bucknell. But Army did it, why can't we?

SENIOR GIRLS NAB CLASS BASE BALL AND ALL AROUND CHAMPIONSHIP

The Senior girls, by winning the championship in interclass baseball, became champions of all girls' sports for the school year. This is an unusual achievement and the Seniors are proud of their excellent record.

The final games in the baseball series were played Tuesday when the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen, 31-4, and the Seniors defeated the Juniors 15-9.

The comparative standing of the teams is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Tie	Pct.
Seniors	5	1	0	.833
Sophomores	4	2	0	.666
Juniors	2	3	1	.400

Crusaders Capture Second at Relays

Juniata Gets Title for Second Year by Nosing Out Susquehanna Men by Close Margin

After leading the field for the first half-mile, Susquehanna was beaten out in the last half to gain second place in the One-Mile College Relay at the Penn. Relay Carnival. For the second time in two years, Juniata took the race with Susquehanna a close second.

Meyers and Stahlman, first two runners for the Orange and Maroon, led the field for the first half-mile. The third quarter was a race between Neiswender of Susquehanna, and Light of Juniata, with Light ending about ten yards in the lead. Swann, in the last quarter, was able to cut down the lead to seven yards, but Feitner broke the tape to win Juniata's second victory.

Susquehanna's entries ran a fine race, but Light and Feitner, who were responsible for Juniata's win last year, proved to be too much for the Crusaders.

S. U. Graduates Hold Rally at Williamsport

Forty-two Alumni and friends assembled at Leo's Restaurant in Williamsport on April 29th for one of the most successful gatherings of the season; after being served a delicious dinner, the Susquehannians were most delightfully entertained by "Tommy" Richardson and the Keystone Quartette.

Judging from the calibre of the program, much planning must have been done by the committee in charge and another very fine staff of officers have been elected to direct the club during the coming year with Rev. A. W. Smith, '14, as president; vice-president, Rev. H. G. Stuenkel, '26; Treasurer, Rev. H. W. Miller and secretary, William T. Decker.

After the short business meeting, L. D. Grossman, General Secretary of the Association made some general remarks in regards to the work of the Alumni body as a whole.

President Dan Smith, Jr., introduced the speakers of the evening; Dean George F. Dunkelberger and President G. Morris Smith. Dr. Dunkelberger explained to the grads the various steps which led up to Susquehanna's adoption of the single standard curricula.

The work of the Liberal Arts Colleges was further emphasized by President Smith with particular emphasizing Susquehanna as rapidly developing in our educational field.

Professor Gilbert in Lecture on Goethe

Through the efforts of Professor R. W. Gilbert the student body was given the opportunity to hear and see an illustrated lecture on the life and works of the world's greatest lyric poet, Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, last Monday evening in Steele Science Hall.

The lecture was just one of the ways in which the German department is celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the death of so great a genius. Goethe died on March 22, 1832.

Goethe's versatility is a wonder of the modern world. There is hardly a field of intellectual activity which he did not touch and advance. In poetry, in religion, in politics, in aesthetics, and in the natural sciences, the German nation, often, unwittingly, owes much of its best to the titanic achievements of Goethe's intellect. He was in many respects far in advance of his time. His works often failed to have immediate effect, but on the other hand they are still a vital force to-day. His greatest influence has, of course, been through his literary achievements. They have left an indelible impress upon the spiritual and mental life of Goethe's people, rarely as swiftly, and universally as the works of Schiller, but all the more enduringly.

Goethe was a great man as well as a great poet. Endowed by nature with wonderful gifts, he never idly let them take care of themselves, but he labored unceasingly all his life at the richest development of them all. In character he was straightforward and kind, sincere and warm-hearted; he was most earnest in his search and admiration for truth and beauty. Serious unceasing work was his life.

His greatest dramatic work is "Faust".

University Band in Concert May 24th

The University Band will present its annual concert in Seibert Hall Chapel on May 24.

Overtures, light opera selections, and popular numbers interspersed with trumpet, clarinet, baritone and vocal solos form a program which should please every taste. Both the director, Professor Elrose Allison, and the members of the organization have been working hard and faithfully to whip these difficult numbers into shape. Their progress so far justifies them in believing that this concert will be one of the best this organization has presented in many years.

Old Law Prohibits Gossip as a Crime

Kissing on Sunday Also Banned By Ancient Statutes of the Commonwealth

(Philadelphia Public Ledger) With a tall glass of lemonade for coolness and the presence of a friend for companionship, have you ever spent a summer afternoon on the veranda gossiping about your neighbors?

If you have—and who hasn't?—you are committing a crime under the laws of the sovereign Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, punishable by a fine or three days' imprisonment—at hard labor—in the House of Correction.

This ancient law, enacted in 1682 and never repealed, sets forth that: "Whosoever shall be convicted of gossip or lying in a conversation shall, for every such offense, pay a fine of one-half crown or suffer three days' imprisonment in the House of Correction at hard labor."

In 1693 it was declared to be part of the fundamental law of the Province of Pennsylvania by King William and Queen Mary of England, and in 1790 it was re-enacted by the Grand Council of the province. It still stands on the statute books of the Commonwealth.

It is but one of the old laws, deemed necessary on their passage, which still remain as part of the code of Pennsylvania.

Kissing on Sunday Banned

Another interesting rule approved in the early days of the colony makes it a felony to kiss your wife or husband on the Sabbath. That, too, is punishable by three days in the House of Correction.

Pennsylvania had lots of company, however, as all the original Colonies had the same restrictions in their "Blue Laws."

The ancient statute says that: "If a man shall kiss his spouse on the Lord's Day, commonly called the Sabbath, or a woman shall kiss her husband on the Lord's Day, commonly called the Sabbath, then they shall each be guilty of a felony and sentenced by a magistrate or a Judge to spend a period of three days in the county house of correction."

After interviewing numerous Judges, lawyers and police officials about the antigossip and antikissing laws, it seems doubtful whether a person could be convicted even if a zealous policeman made an arrest for violation of the act.

More Stringent Penalties

In some of the original Colonies laws of the same nature were enacted with a much more stringent penalty. In 1686, the Council of Providence Plantations approved a law which read:

"If any person above the age of 14 shall willfully make and publish any lie, or shall gossip, the offender shall pay to the said Plantations, as it is a sin against God, for the first offense the sum of 10 shillings, for the second offense the sum of 20 shillings, and if unable to pay the fine, for the first offense shall rest in the public stocks for one hour, and for the second offense in the stocks for four hours, and for a third offense shall rest in the stocks for the time appointed by the magistrate and shall be publicly whipped."

Dr. Sadtler Quoted In National Media

Literary Digest and Christian Century Review His Opinion of Late Movie Productions

In his opinion on the character of the films, Dr. William A. Sadtler, of Susquehanna's faculty, achieved unusual distinction in two nationally circulated magazines.

In a discussion of motion pictures The Literary Digest this week quotes Dr. Sadtler's declaration: "The character of the films, which might be the greatest educational influence, has gone from bad to worse within the last few years. The theme of these pictures includes banditry, usually with murder, but most of all sensuality from every part of the world."

The Christian Century quotes the above paragraph and continues Dr. Sadtler's words to the effect:

"The producers here emboldened with their success in preventing censorship are making a face of it, so that they have increased the number of immoral pictures from 30 per cent of a few years ago to 45 or 50 per cent of today.

"With all kinds of immoral situations, products of unclean imaginations, they have carried on. This sad fact can be seen at a glance at the disgusting billboards and advertisements in almost every newspaper of our land.

"All the new codes and other promises of the movie world are shown to be utterly worthless by the growing evil character of the films during the last season."

"What effective means can be found for forcing to decency these people, who have the closest access to the thought world of our youth, and who have shown themselves so keen to be purty and morality for filthy fortunes?"

"Their own proposition is 'support the best and ignore the rest,' but this proposition is an invention of the fashion of lies, as really it means 'support the best and close the eyes to the ravages of the evil 50 per cent dominating the field.'"

Dr. Sadtler is a member of the committee of moral and social welfare of the United Lutheran Church, and has been cooperating with Rev. Dr. Clifford Twombly, rector of the St. James Episcopal Church, Lancaster, in arguing "the shamelessness of the movies."

Dr. Sadtler and his cohorts are addressing their appeal to the parents of America. They hope for Federal legislation which will control the motion picture industry at its source of production rather than depend upon the boards of censors of several States.

Sheaffer Stars at Bat, Accounting for Five Runs, While Danks Leads Bisons at Bay. Hanna Collects Triple, Double, and Single

Retiring President Of Student Council

Seniors Tendered Party By Active Phi Kaps

Seniors in Phi Kappa were tendered a farewell party on Friday evening, May 6, at 7:30 at the home of Dr. A. William Ahl by the active group of members.

Four seniors of this phil-hellenic society that pass into other activities with the end of this term are Herbert Hohman, Lewis Fox, Lee Fairchild, and John Kindsavater. Three of these men, Hohman, Fox, and Kindsavater, are members of the four charter members who helped Dr. Ahl materially in founding Phi Kappa on this campus about four years ago.

The meeting was opened with a preliminary business meeting in which the newly elected officers were installed. They are: Marlin Bottelger, president; James Suter, vice president; William Swann, treasurer; Robert Clark, secretary, and Elmer Drumm, messenger.

Following the short business session the regular social round of affairs began. The officers for the coming term were called upon for short speeches and the former president, Herbert Hohman, presented the new president with the rituals that are sacred to Phi Kappa. Over the delightful lunch served by Mrs. Ahl the active members were called upon to philosophize about the future of the four seniors that have finished active work in the society. As one of the members said, "and it was done with gusto." Then each of the seniors was allowed a chance to express his feelings upon his own philosophy of life and finally Dr. Ahl gave a short talk to the group on the value of Greek culture in the everyday world.

Stories, jokes, puns, and old Greek adages filled the room for the next hour, but finally at 10:30 the party broke up with the members giving the seniors a formal farewell.

Nine Will Meet Strong Contenders This Week

The strength of the Orange and Maroon nine will be thoroughly tested when they leave next Friday on a two-game trip. On Friday they will meet Pennsylvania Military College at Chester, which has the reputation of having a strong baseball line. On Saturday they will shift the scene of battle to Elizabethtown College. After Susquehanna's 20-4 win over that school in the first game of the season, the Orange and Maroon will surely add this game to their string of victories.

On Tuesday, May 17, they will journey to Annapolis to engage in a game with Leabonau Valley. Last year the Crusaders lost by a score of 3 to 1.

—Must Finish in a Hurry

"Pardon me," said the golfer, as he caught up to the members playing ahead of him. "Would you mind if I played through? I've just heard that my house is on fire."

A rejuvenated Susquehanna nine slugged their way to victory over Bucknell University on Loomis Field Saturday afternoon by a score of 11-3. This truly turned out to be a slugging contest, with the Crusaders pounding the ball all over the park to register fourteen hits.

They not only starred at the bat, but turned in the best fielding performance of the season. With Palmer at first, Hanna at second, Foltz at short, and Spigelmeyer at third, Coach Ullery's new infield worked like a machine in holding Bucknell to three runs.

Susquehanna immediately took the lead in the first inning, when Spigelmeyer singled and advanced to second as Stroup grounded out to third. Malasky singled, putting Spigelmeyer on third. With two to two, Palmer pounded a fast one past second to score two runs. They added one more in the second on Sheaffer's triple and Spigelmeyer's single. In the third inning, Malasky singled and was bunted to second by Martinec. With two down, Hanna tripled to score Malasky, but was caught trying to stretch it to a home run. With two out in the fourth, Danks drew a base on balls, Spigelmeyer was hit by the pitcher, and Stroup pounded out a double to drive in two runs. The fifth inning proved to be the big inning for the Orange and Maroon, when Palmer, Hanna, and Foltz singled and scored on Sheaffer's second triple for the day. Sheaffer immediately scored on a squeeze play with Danks doing the bunting. One more run was scored in the eighth on a single by Palmer and a double by Hanna.

Bucknell scored one run in the first on a home run by Bean, one more run in the third when Fry and Vetter singled and Fry scored on a fielder's choice at first. They remained scoreless until the eighth when Mills singled and scored on Shaw's double.

Danks turned in a fine performance on the mound for the Crusaders, regardless of the fact that he was touched for ten hits. Fry was on the mound for Bucknell and was touched for fourteen hits, which came just at the right time to score runs for the Orange and Maroon.

Ethel Luening to Sing With Choral Society

Tonight at 8:15, the University Chorus, comprised of seventy voices, will give its first concert in Seibert Hall chapel, consisting of a cantata, "Swan and Skylark," by A. Goring Thomas, and several other numbers.

Miss Ethel Luening, coloratura soprano, of New York, will be one of the soloists, as well as Mrs. Bertha Rodgers, contralto, Prof. Frederick C. Stevens, tenor, and Prof. David Lewis, baritone.

The "Swan and Skylark" is a difficult cantata, one that has required long and serious work on the part of the chorus. Other selections will be: Rest Here in Peace, Bach; Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, Bach; Lord, Thou Alone, Mendelssohn; The Dance, Elgar; When Flowery Meadows Deck the Year, Palestrina. These choral members will be supplemented by a brilliant aria, sung by Miss Luening, "Polonaise," from Mignon, by Thomas.

AN EXPOSE OF THE INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Each year the Interfraternity Council members take office and pledge themselves to carry on the policy of interfraternity cooperation, which was inaugurated and executed by the preceding Council. Possibly many of the incoming members took the pledge to carry on the policies of the previous Council without realizing that they were pledging themselves to execute and maintain a corrupt and inefficient system which has been in vogue for several years.

According to the Constitution of the Interfraternity Council of Susquehanna University the purpose of that organization is to promote the interests of the university, to regulate in a just and orderly manner inter-fraternal relationships, to promote a mutual and beneficial understanding among the fraternities, and to insure cooperation among the fraternities to the end that the condition of the fraternities and the relations with each other and with the university authorities may be improved. Instead of carrying out the above-mentioned objectives, the members of the Council have eliminated them in spirit to the detriment of that body, although the purposes are still stated in the Constitution.

One of the chief duties of the Council is the regulation of fraternity rushing and pledging. This particular phase of interfraternity government has been a problem, since the present system was adopted. We feel safe in stating that every fraternity on the campus has broken in spirit and in letter the rushing and pledging rules, during the past several years.

In case of an infraction of the rules, the Council is to act as a court for the trial of offenders, but since the adoption of the regulations not a single conviction has been obtained. The reason for this is due to the fact that there is a clique on the Council and also that "people who live in glass houses do not choose to throw stones", therefore, those who have offended have been dismissed without suffering the consequences of the infraction.

We can also honestly state that the members of this year's Council knew that repeated violations of the rules were taking place during this semester. The silence on the part of the members is natural, since no one is certain that his own house has been, or maybe, guilty of some infraction. We, therefore, suggest to the incoming Council that they adopt a system which will provide for a just acquittal or conviction and for the punishment of those fraternities that are found guilty of violating the code.

We believe the following method would secure a just and fearless execution, which is, the referring of infractions to a board of judges consisting of three faculty members who are not members of any fraternity represented on the campus. If all faculty members are affiliated with a fraternity, the Council should take action with the Administration in securing the adoption of a measure prohibiting faculty members becoming honorary members of fraternities on the campus. Next year's Council is charged with the responsibility of being truly a Council, a cooperative union, and not merely a social calendar commission regulating fraternity competitions and the promotion of dances.

The members of THE SUSQUEHANNA staff sincerely hope that the new Council will meet the challenge which has been hurled at them and thereby establish a worthwhile precedent.

SORORITY NOTES

SIGMA ALPHA IOTA

S. A. I. Pledges Entertain Actives
On April 28th the active members of Sigma Alpha Iota were very uniquely entertained by their neophytes at a Theatre Party. The girls met at the Conservatory where they were presented with beautiful American Beauty roses, and then were taken to Sunbury in cars to the Strand Theatre.

After the show the girls were escorted to Betty Shippe's home where they were served with a delightful lunch and spent a very enjoyable hour in dancing and talking. Mrs. Linebaugh, one of the patronesses of the sorority also attended the party.

Three S. A. I. girls have been elected to the Student Council for the coming year; Francis Stambaugh, president; Margaret Ide, secretary-treasurer; and Esther Thurston.

Seniors Entertained by Sheldons

On Saturday evening, April 30, the seniors of the Conservatory were entertained by Professor and Mrs. E. Edwin Sheldon, with dinner at the Hotel Sterner, followed by bridge at their new apartment on North Market street.

Prizes were won by Anna Dunkelberger, Isabel Wagner, Mildred Lyon, and Ray Minich. Those present were Misses Kathryn Butner, Anne Dunkelberger, Arline Kanyuck, Anna Leinbach, Mildred Lyon, Margaret Markie, Ray Minich, Virginia Moody, Dorothy Puckey, Isabel Wagner, Bery Wyman, Prof. Elrose Allison, and Prof. and Mrs. Sheldon.

Try It

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder," murmured the sentimental woman.
"Oh, I don't know," remarked the matter-of-fact girl. "Did you ever try presents?"

ALUMNI NOTES

Marriage Announcement

Announcement has been received of the marriage of Miss Ethel Virginia Steger, daughter of Dr. Joseph Sylvester Steger, of Pittsburgh, to Harry Francis Sweeney, athletic coach and instructor at West Liberty College, West Liberty, West Virginia, which took place July fourth of last year. Mr. Sweeney will be remembered as an outstanding athlete while a student at Susquehanna University.

Theologs Graduate

The graduating class of the Gettysburg Seminary includes several Susquehanna alumni: Lee Deppen, Paul Raymond Hoover, Charles Ira Rowe, and David Ernest Strasser, all graduates of '29.

Book Published

A book, "Alliance and Entente," by Dr. George B. Manhart, Ph.D., '10, has been issued recently by Putnam's. The book has been adopted by California, Columbia, De Pauw, Vanderbilt, Chicago, and Minnesota Universities and by Lafayette College.

Selingsgrove Genealogist Honored

Harold W. Pollner has been honored by a "Who's Who in Genealogy," sketch of his work, which is included in the list of the leading genealogists in the United States. This is found in "The Handbook of American Genealogy," which was recently issued by The Institute of American Genealogy of Chicago.

Recognition in this field of activity affords access to the extensive files of The National Clearing House for Genealogical Information, as well as professional contact with genealogists throughout the United States and in sixteen foreign countries. This will enable him to expand the scope of his work very materially.

Seibert Hall Echoes

Mother's Day and the week-end found the majority of Seibert inmates away.

Once again "Libby" Vorlage can breathe a sigh of relief as the left student council's trials and tribulations to her successor.

It might be said that Student Council members do their duties the "Winchell" way.

Jo Hay has taken to crooning—we wonder if that boy in Jersey might have something to do with it?

Pledges are beginning to "take a beating".

Dorothy Clegg can tell us of a perfect man—here lies love.

"It's knowledge we're after," say certain co-eds as they wend their way to the library unfailingly each night.

A great time was had by all who attended the Phi Mu Delta party on Saturday night.

The "ASLEEP: ENTER AT YOUR OWN RISK" sign on room 57 has brought results at last.

Found: that not only gentlemen prefer blondes, Bea Gentzler prefers a masculine one.

This week's greatest need: the ways and means to end the June bugs.

New Topic

Wife: "Darling, I have a lot of things I want to talk to you about."
Husband: "Good, it is usually things you haven't got that you want to talk about."

S. U. PEPYS

Curse and bitter condemnations poured from the poor, foolish gentlemen who neglected their raincoats, slickers, umbrellas, or storm rubbers; for, as a fit conclusion to the Sunday evening repast, a thunder shower sprang up and some ten male members of the Hassinger Hall Demons and other honor organizations were driven in to the Sunday evening Vespers to escape the raging elements. There was a notable improvement in the singing qualities and the chapel hall no longer sounded like a hollow kettle.

Captain Malasky has become eligible for the World's Whoosits Whoosits in Sports by his remarkable work in Saturday's battle with Bucknell. A ball was driven far into "Mal's" territory by a Bucknell slugger. As usual our veteran left garden man gathered up all his capabilities (including the ball) and glared to ascertain the proper place to peg the ball. He noticed spreading oak in the immediate foreground. He was about to gather the trunk of the tree in his arms, dismantle it, tear it up by the roots, and discard it. Suddenly a small piping voice from the side lines cried: "Oh Captain! Oh Captain! disrupt not that tree, it's saved many a ball game and it may protect thee." Of course "Cappy" was startled, but he obeyed, again picked up the almost forgotten ball and flung it hard and fast into the waiting arms of the tree. It bounded ferociously back at him and the gallant young man had the privilege of seeing a run scored because of his love of nature.

It is unnecessary to say that we trimmed the Bisons 11 to 3.

The track team not only gave the Washington boys a good defeat to carry along back to Maryland or Delaware, or wherever they came from, but they also gave them some sore muscles; because the rooms occupied by the visiting team has a very peculiar odor. The pre-medical student coming in Hasinger have diagnosed the odor as emanating from alcohol (rubbing) and liniment. Further statistics show that the baseball team was responsible for the fine showing made in the field events on Saturday morning.

At one time a three-letter man at Susquehanna was looked upon as a super-man; but the recent game made by the Freshman on the various teams makes it look like the qualifications for letters will have to be raised or a price reduction will be found on next year's felt market.

A certain group of campusites have discovered a new phrase to be used in case of excitement. These "I-thought-I'd-poppers" are to be complimented on their philological research. This phrase is so new and so technically correct, as well as expressive, that within a short time it will be found in Greek and Roman culture to portray the volcanic eruption that destroyed Pompeii. "I thought I'd pop" is recognized by the best slang experts as a definite way to say that you are startled; you are surprised, you are shocked, you are astonished, you are astounded, and many other statements of complete amazement—or what have you.

The University authorities have deemed it wise to remove the bench from the fifth green of the golf course; because its occupancy by non-golfers and track mules (or two-milers) disturbs the tranquility of the intramural baseball games.

We have a sad announcement to make to the readers of this column. There will only be two more columns of this type in this year's paper. Now please, dear friends, consider yourselves as martyrs to true journalism, and put your criticisms of this combined column in the "Susquehanna" news box in Selingsgrove Hall.
Late to bed and late to rise

Goodnight dear children—

EPHSON SIGMA WHITEWASHES

PHI MU DELTA CLUB, 3 TO 0

Epilson Sigma fraternity subdued the Phi Mu Delta fraternity in a baseball game on Friday by the score of 3-0. Kramer pitched for the winners and had 12 strikeouts. Meyers pitched good ball for the losers, but his lack of control gave the Epilson Sigma boys the edge, and made things easier for Kramer, who was efficient in the pinches. Both teams played errorless ball, and two double plays were made, one thru the excellent playing of Hohmann, which was unassisted. The other was made by Schoffstall, when he picked up a hot grounder, touched second, and threw out the runner at first.

Tonight is your last opportunity to see Johnny Weissmuller, world's champion swimmer, in "Tarzan, the Ape Man," latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer jungle adventure picture and thrilling successor to "Trader Horn."

"Arsene Lupin" is the feature for Wednesday. The story concerns a Parisian thief and the captain of police, starring Jack and Lionel Barrymore.

On Thursday night, George Arliss will dominate in the picture, "The Man Who Played God."

Thomas Meighan gives a restrained performance and Charlotte Greenwood does an amusing job in "Cheaters at Play" which is the attraction for Friday evening.

George O'Brien rescues fair damsels in "The Gay Caballero," which is the feature on Saturday.

PI GAMMA MU PLANS COMMENCEMENT ACTIVITIES

Pennsylvania Gamma Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, the National Social Science Honor Society, held a regular meeting on Monday evening, May 2nd.

The ten Juniors, who were recently elected to membership in Pi Gamma Mu, were present at the meeting. The committee reports indicated that the plans for the banquet and the activities during Commencement Week are progressing.

Miss Thelma Crebs, of Selinggrove, was initiated into active membership at this meeting.

Tennis Team Loses Twice; 7 - 0 Score

After losing to Bucknell by a score of 7-0, Susquehanna's tennis team journeyed to Penn State on Saturday afternoon, only to lose again by a score of 7-0. This is the match that was to be played May 29 but due to examinations at Penn State on that date, the Orange and Maroon were asked to play Saturday.

Although the Susquehanna team was outplayed, Speer and Schlegel offered the most opposition in their games. Many of the games went to deuce, only to have State win the game.

The team will have a chance to stage a comeback this week on the home courts, when they will be matched against Villanova on Friday and Juniata on Saturday. On Tuesday they will play a match with Lebanon Valley on the home courts.

The results of the Penn State match are as follows:

Singles—
McKue won from Adams, 6-0, 6-0.
Hartzler won from Speer, 6-2, 6-4.
Skillen won from Petry, 6-1, 6-2.
Skillen won from Rummel, 6-0, 6-2.
Carter won from Schlegel, 6-4, 6-1.
Doubles—

McKue and Hartzler won from Speer and Adams, 6-1, 6-2.
Shaffer and Skillen won from Schlegel and Petry, 6-1, 6-3.

SOPHOMORES WIN FIRST HALF CHAMPIONSHIP

The first half of the inter-college baseball schedule was won by the Sophomores. By handing the Juniors an 8-3 defeat, they clinched their position at the top. In the first game of the week the Juniors defeated the Seniors in an old fashioned slugfest match. On Wednesday the Sophomores, supporting pitcher Meyers in great fashion, ran away with the first year men. The Frosh, after defeating the Juniors in the first game of the season, have suddenly gone to pieces and have played very erratic ball in the last two games. In the last game of the week Gray hurled the Sophomores to victory.

Last Week's Results

Juniors 23, Seniors 5.
Sophomores 10, Frosh 2.
Sophomores 8, Juniors 3.

WHERE COMMUNISM FALLS DOWN

For several reasons I find it difficult to get as excited as some of my friends about the threat of Communism.

In the first place, we have had universal education in this country for a long time. Nearly all can read and write, and quite a large proportion can think.

In the second place, our wealth, though very inequitably distributed, is enjoyed by far larger proportion of people than has ever been true in any nation before. Millions own homes, and land and stocks. Few are entirely satisfied; no one imagines the present social structure ideal, but very few care to risk losing what they have on the vague promise of acquiring more.

But there is a third and more fundamental reason. Communism, even if it came, would not continue. Some form of capitalistic society would very rapidly take its place.

Here is an interesting illustration. Back in the latter days of the Civil War, when it was necessary to draft men for the Northern armies, the Indians of the West thought it a propitious time to revolt.

Several regiments of Union soldiers were withdrawn from the front to settle the uprising. A Pennsylvania politician made a smart suggestion.

He said to Abraham Lincoln: "Our Federal military prisons are filled with Southern military prisoners. These boys are young and keen fighters, as we have plenty of reason to know. I'll bet that most of them would rather be outdoors fighting the Indians than sitting idly in jail. Why not recruit them into regiments and send them West?"

The proposal was adopted and was immediately successful. But this is what happened in one instance, which throws a fine clear light on the practicability of Communism. I quote from my father's Life of Lincoln:

"A thousand men were enlisted at Alton, Illinois, and Camp Douglas in Chicago. They left Chicago on two special trains. Each man had in his pocket two hundred dollars bounty in United States greenbacks, and none of them had any other money. During the period of their imprisonment most of them had become habitual card players. If they had not previously been so. It is said that before they reached their destination a very few individuals had the lion's share of the money. Perhaps never before on earth was there so equitable an experiment in the results of starting men out in life on the basis of equal division of property. The equal division appears not to have lasted very long."

Life is a battle and a gamble. We can improve the rules, give fairer handicaps to less favored, and make the game more humane.

But we can't alter the fundamentals of human nature. Communism tries to do that; and Communism will always fail.

Golf Widow: "You think so much of your golf game that you don't even remember when we were married."

The bridegroom was in a poetic frenzy as he strolled along the seashore. "Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean roll," he recited to his bride. "Oh, Gerald!" she exclaimed, "how wonderful you are! It's doing it!"

Muriel: "Yes, I had a little balance in the bank but I got engaged two months ago, and now—"

Bert: "Ah, love makes the world go round."
Muriel: "Yes, but I don't think it would go round so fast as to make me lose my balance."

BUCKNELL STUDENT BECOMES MATHEMATICS ANNOUNCER
Walter Ruch, a freshman on our campus with the class of '34 who matriculated at Bucknell University, last fall, recently became a radio announcer. He has been broadcasting all of the Bucknell baseball games this spring played at Loomis field, over WJBU, Lewisburg's radio broadcasting unit. Recently he announced the East Stroudsburg-Bucknell game, and did a very good job of it.

Walter had varied interests in the sports world, and during his stay of two terms with us he excelled in sports writing of all types. He was sports editor of the Freshman issue of "The Susquehanna" and a regular staff member of the same publication.

PROFESSOR GILBERT SPEAKS AT SABBATH SCHOOL BANQUET

Susquehanna just couldn't get started on University Field Tuesday afternoon and as a result, they met their third defeat of the season at the hands of Juniata by a score of 11-0.

Danks took up the pitching duties for the Orange and Maroon and pitched a fine game, but his support was lacking. Blough was on the mound for the visitors and with excellent support from his teammates, held the Susquehanna hitters to two hits.

LaPorte led at bat for the visitors, with three hits, a triple and two singles. Hummel and Blough also socked. Stroup and Foltz were the only Orange and Maroon men to find Blough's offerings.

Junior Prom Closes Saturday's Program

Committee Completes Arrangements for Finale of Week-end Celebration. Al
Hollander Has Good Following

"Al" Hollander's eleven piece orchestra will make its first appearance at Susquehanna University on Saturday evening May 21, when it provides the music for the Junior Prom, to be held in Alumni Gymnasium.

So far this year the Hollanders have appeared at the University of Virginia, Penn State, Dickinson College, Gettysburg College, and several other colleges and universities in the east.

The gym will be decorated for the affair with the colors of black and white. The favors are unique and will be presented to the ladies at the door. From all rumors and authentic reports the prom this year promises to be the biggest and most successful ever held on the campus. Tickets can now be secured from any member of the Junior class for the sum of three dollars.

Preparations for the event are in the capable hands of John Balentine, chairman, Fred Carl, Paul Edwards, Esther Geisel, Beatrice Gentzler, Barbara Jones, Joseph Malmoin, Walter Metzger, and Jack Petry.

Lantern Should Go To Press This Week

Staff of 1933 Yearbook Has High Hopes For Record Annual; Distribution to be About June 1

This year's Lantern, Susquehanna's yearbook, will probably go to press during this week, according to the opinion expressed by the Editor-in-Chief, Jay Worthington. He also stated that the annual will be ready for distribution about the end of the month or the first few days in June.

The progress of the 1933 Lantern has been held up from time to time because of financial difficulties, which have finally been straightened out. It was found necessary this year to put the book out at a cost of reduction approaching four hundred dollars under last year's cost, because of reduced enrollment and general financial conditions.

In spite of this," remarked the editor, "the staff expects to publish a record book this year which will equal, if not surpass any other previously issued at Susquehanna. Due to the splendid cooperation of Selon Dockey, Business Manager, and Laird Gemberling, Advertising Manager, in contracting and budgeting our annual, we have been able to turn a very discouraging outlook into one of greatest hope and promise."

The 1933 Lantern will incorporate some ideas new to previous campus publications, principally the art and color scheme, under the supervision of William Royer, Art Editor, and a more complete athletic section, in charge of J. Paul Edwards, Athletic Editor.

Carolan and McGeehan Elected To Board

William Carolan and Robert McGeehan were elected student representatives to the Athletic Board on the second ballot, having received a majority of the votes cast at the election, which was held after the chapel exercises, last Wednesday morning.

Harold Kramer was the only student elected on the first ballot, thus another meeting of the Association was held today to elect the additional representative to the board, from the following eligible candidates: Fred Carl, Lee Rishel, and Calvin Naugle.

PROFESSOR GROSSMAN ACTIVE AT DIRECTORS' CONFERENCE

In a recent edition of the proceedings of the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Society of Directors of Physical Education in Colleges, Professor L. D. Hughes, of Columbia University, were summarizers of the Round Table discussion on the administration of intercollegiate athletics. This meeting was held last December in New York City.

Ethel Luenig, Guest Soprano, Delights Audience With Solos in "Swan and Skylark" Performance

Last Tuesday evening in Seibert Hall chapel, the University Choral Society, comprised of several voices, under the direction of Professor Sheldon, gave a fine performance of the dramatic cantata, "Swan and Skylark," by A. Goring Thomas.

Miss Ethel Luenig, coloratura soprano from New York, delighted the audience with a brilliant rendition of two groups of numbers, the first consisting of a Swedish folk-song, and an aria from the French opera, Mignon, by Thomas, and the second a German selection by Strauss.

The solo parts in the cantata were sung by Miss Ethel Luenig, soprano; Mrs. Bertha Rodgers, contralto; Professor Frederick Stevens, tenor; and Professor David Lewis, baritone, supervisor of music at Hazleton. Professor P. M. Linebaugh assisted at the organ, and accompanied Miss Luenig, and Professor Elrose Allison at the piano, in the "Swan and Skylark."

The program was as follows:

Pre-Theolog Club Holds Last Meeting

Ended Semester Activities at Dr. Ahl's Home Last Thursday; Newly Elected President Clapper Led

The last regular meeting of the University Pre-Theological Club for this semester was held at the home of Dr. Ahl last Thursday.

The meeting officially ended at eight o'clock but at that time an informal discussion began under the leadership of the new President, Edwin Clapper. This discussion centered around two interesting questions: "What are the spiritual, mental, social, and recreational attributes of a minister?" and "what are the spiritual, social, mental and recreational attributes of a Pre-Theolog?" Each person present expressed his views on at least one phase of either question, and an hour and a half passed surprisingly fast in this way.

Dr. Ahl, speaking for the club, then bade farewell to the three Pre-Theologs who are leaving our campus for other schools next year. These three are Lewis Fox John Kindsvatter, and Lee Fairchild. The Club as a whole acknowledged a great loss by the departure of these three men.

Strawberry shortcake and coffee were served, and the Pre-Theologs proved the fact that future ministers do not only excel in eating chicken. Stories and remarks flew back and forth in the room until a late hour when the members left, with regret, the congenial atmosphere of Dr. Ahl's home.

Pastor Installed

Reverend Carl R. Simon, of Lewis-town, a graduate of Susquehanna University, was installed April 3, as pastor of the Union Lutheran Church in York, Pa. Rev. Simon fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. W. H. Feldman, who served that large congregation for a number of years.

"Y" Cabinet Makes Plans for New Year

Dr. Ahl Leads Members Into Retreat at Rolling Green Park; Economy Will Feature Coming Program

Seven members of the new Y.M.C.A. Cabinet, with Dr. William Ahl, Faculty Adviser, held their first "retreat" at Rolling Green Park on Sunday, for the purpose of planning a program for next year. Dr. Ahl and his trusty members to the park. They soon had installed themselves on one of the grassy hillsides and then the "retreat" began. It opened with devotions stressing the four-fold aim of life as through the life of Jesus Christ.

Plans for next year's program were then discussed at some length. The question of whether or not to print a cheaper handbook next year was thoroughly investigated. The idea of sending two men to a Y.M.C.A. Training Camp in New York state this summer was discussed pro and con, but the condition of the treasury at the present time almost made any argument in favor of this plan futile.

The program of the Y.W.C.A. was examined and a committee appointed to meet with them for further discussion of certain phases of the program. A committee on Vespers was also appointed to meet with a similar committee from the Y.W.C.A. for final arrangement of these services.

The problem of a budget was next settled, and certain clauses in this budget for next year are worthy of note. The membership fee has been set at one dollar instead of the two dollars asked this year, and in former years. In fact, the whole budget shows such signs of rigid economy.

Committees were appointed to carry out the Freshmen Week plans which were arranged. Deputation teams were explained and plans formed for their work next year.

A delicious lunch prepared through the kindness of our Dietitian and Mr. Oberdorf was enjoyed by all, after which miscellaneous problems were discussed. Another short devotional period followed, then the members returned to the University fired with the desire to do great things on the campus.

Those cabinet members present were: Dr. A. William Ahl, Faculty Adviser, Harold Rowe, Penn Dively, Luther Boyer, Martin Böttelger, Regis Kifer, Eric Shobert and Robert Clark

Professor Grossman Speaks at Altoona

Physical Education Head Gives Address at H-Y Banquet; Professor Stevens Renders Vocal Numbers

An address by Professor L. D. Grossman and a vocal recital by professor Frederick C. Stevens featured the annual father-and-son banquet of the H-Y at the Y.M.C.A. in Altoona last Thursday evening. Robert McNally was the accompanist for Prof. Stevens.

In his address, Professor Grossman said, "to win the game is great, to play the game is greater, and to love the game is greatest." Professor Grossman also presented awards to various members at the banquet.

This was the third annual banquet of the club. Awards were presented to the basketball team which won the junior championship of the city and letters were also awarded to the boys who represented the H-Y club on the team. Additional awards were presented to the boys who have done outstanding work in the club during the past year.

A. E. Pohle, 27, teacher in the Altoona High School, is sponsor of the club and served as toastmaster. Mr. Pohle also coached the successful basketball team which won seventeen out of twenty-two games, and received a special service from members of the team.

Seventy-five fathers and sons enjoyed the splendid banquet. Professors Grossman and Stevens also visited and spoke at assembly programs at the Roaring Springs, Mountaintop, Williamsburg, and Holidaysburg high school.

May Day Coronation Climax of Gala Day

Celebration of Washington Bicentennial on Campus Will Be Featured
By Queen of May Ceremony

Just as evening shadows begin to filter through the skies, Susquehanna's May Court, which includes Mary Esther Potter, Lady-in-Waiting, Harriet R. Leese, Edna E. Williamson, Dorothy V. Puckey, Etta E. Mumaw, Mary R. Weaverling, and Thelma E. Crebs, will crown Miss Anna L. Dunkelberger of Mt. Carmel as Queen of May of Susquehanna University, Saturday evening.

These beautiful coronation exercises will be followed by a lovely Washington pageant, as two hundred individuals will portray various episodes in his life which will bring to a close a gala day of festivities with the citizens of Selingrove uniting with Susquehanna University in their community observance of the Washington Bicentennial Anniversary.

After the dedicatory services of an improved plot of ground at the junction of the Susquehanna Trail and Freeburg road in the morning a parade will be formed in early afternoon. Traversing several sections of the town, the parade will conclude at University Field where Susquehanna will meet Bucknell on the diamond.

In the parade will be represented many of the schools, patriotic, civic, and fraternal organizations of the community, as well as floats representing periods of history, business and associations of the section. Numerous bands will provide for the marchers, including the University Band.

Band Concert Will Be Held on May 24

Victor Herbert Selections Will Be Feature on Annual Program Sponsored by Professor Allison

Tuesday evening, May 24th, the University Band will give its annual concert in Seibert Hall chapel. The band is composed of thirty men, under the direction of Professor Elrose Allison.

A varied program has been chosen, consisting of several Victor Herbert selections, an overture, and many other well-known compositions. The new percussion group, which was recently purchased, will be used.

On May 21st, the band will assist in the town celebration by playing at the dedication of some trees planted in the triangular tract of land formed by the junction of the Freeburg and Harrisburg highways. As one of their selections, they will play "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, with solo part sung by Wesley Stirling.

Move Up Day To Be Observed by Freshmen

Annual Move Up Day, Wednesday, May 18, will be the final day for Freshman regulations. This day marks the traditional close of the school year. Each class receives the social privileges that belong to the class one year their scholastic senior.

Customarily the Freshmen dispose of their dress regulations in any fashion suitable to their desires on Move Up Day following the regular chapel period. For some years the boys have made a bonfire of their "dinks" and "black ties" in order that they might publicly announce the fact that they are now Sophomores and consequently are to be considered and honored as such.

THE KIDNAPPING AND MURDER OF BABY LINDBERGH

Last Thursday afternoon and evening, the entire nation was shocked by the announcement of the discovery of the decomposed body of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., twenty months old son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, a scant five miles from the Sourland Mountain estate of his parents in New Jersey.

The discovery was made by the occupants of a transfer truck seventy-two days after the world's most celebrated infant had been spirited away from his home. An autopsy revealed the baby had died of a compound fracture of the skull which was the result of several tremendous blows on the head.

It is now clear that those who took a large sum of money on a promise to restore him were guilty of a cruel hoax upon the distracted parents. The killing of this child is an outrage against American parenthood and everyone hopes that those guilty of this atrocious offense against humanity may yet be discovered and punished, especially, since President Hoover ordered the secret service of the federal government to "make the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never to be forgotten case until those criminals are implacably brought to justice". If the greatest law enforcement agencies of the land fail to apprehend and bring to justice the perpetrators of the crime, another black mark will be scored against the efficiency of our police organizations.

The prominence of the victims involved gave the kidnapping an unusual degree of publicity. But it should not be forgotten that the menace is one that threatens every home, and that it is the duty of society to take every possible means of making such a crime too dangerous a risk.

According to an article appearing in a recent issue of the "Liberty" magazine, there have been 286 reported kidnappings in the United States during the past three years. Thirteen victims have been murdered, not including the Lindbergh baby, and forty-six have been transported from one state to another. There have been only forty-six convictions in cases of this character which is a challenge to the American public for the securing of better law enforcement.

We must eradicate the gangster, the bootlegger, the racketeer, the assassin, the hoodlum, and the kidnapper from this country, if we intend to make the United States a better nation for the present generation and the future. It is time to begin a relentless drive to end crime, for only in that way will outrages, such as this be frustrated.

FINAL EXAMINATIONS FOR SENIORS

THE SUSQUEHANNA is opposed to final examinations for seniors during the second semester and, especially, to the system which was recently adopted by the administration and faculty for the giving of this year's finals to the Class of '32.

In the first place, we cannot see any advantage to the seniors and to the faculty members in granting the seniors the privilege of taking the exams a week before the scheduled finals for the underclassmen. If anything it has resulted in several disadvantages to the professors, because a large number of students of junior standing are enrolled in Senior courses, and the seniors are not in the majority in these classes to the extent of eighty per cent.

According to the method in vogue, the professor would have to give the finals twice—to his senior students during the week of May 23 to 28 and then to the underclassmen the following week. The time element is another disadvantage, since the last week is generally set aside for a review and, without a doubt, the senior exams will eliminate that feature.

The examination system in general does not encourage the student to think for himself. His doubts, questions, and inspirations are silenced and suppressed. The temptation to "cram" and use the text-book is prevalent in this method and the result is not conducive to mental development.

We think the proper thing would have been to abolish the finals for the seniors this semester, since class honors have been announced and a majority of the members of the class are trying to make contacts for positions at the present time. By now the professors are acquainted with the classroom work of the seniors and have a fair index of their ability, ingenuity, and integrity, so that reasonable grades could be given.

If the abolishment of finals for the seniors was not feasible, the next best thing would be to conduct the exams during the week designated in the college calendar.

However, it would be well, if we could adopt a plan of excusing all students from the finals, since the energy that is put into preparing for and passing them is nine times out of ten wasted.

WORLD GOODWILL DAY

The World Federation of Education Associations has designated May 18th as World Goodwill Day for the purpose of fostering international goodwill. Tomorrow, the thirty-third anniversary of the first peace conference held at The Hague in 1899 will be observed in schools and universities.

Today, civilization is traveling on two roads; the road of altruism and enlightenment with resulting goodwill; the other highway leads back to the selfishness and ignorance of the older nations. It depends upon what the schools of this country and other nations accomplish during the present generation, which one will be taken by our posterity.

If we are willing to present world feeling and world problems in a half-hearted light and with little directed effort, we can look for a continuation of "peace" oratory backed by heavier tax levies for the building of superb navies and the maintenance of gigantic armies. If we get behind a movement to bring about "international-mindedness" with the spirit we put into extra-curricular activities, we can expect a new generation of voters who will not be satisfied with the half-hearted political promises with which we have been cajoled.

ALUMNI NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis K. Lecone, of Wilmington, Delaware, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Patricia Anne, on March 13. Mrs. Lecone before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Hurst, '23, Alpha Chi Omega, Bucknell University. Mr. Lecone received his degree from Susquehanna University in '21.

Mr. George W. Wagenseller, '29, of Pocatello, Idaho, spent four months of this winter in Los Angeles, while there he met Dr. and Mrs. Sydney S. Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. John A. S. Schoch, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Nipple, Mrs. H. D. Schunre and daughter, Mrs. Harry Thompson and Mrs. James Shindel.

Mr. Wagenseller underwent a minor operation in the Hospital of the Good Samaritan, Los Angeles, on March 25. He returned to his home on May 1.

Seibert Hall Echoes

Merry-making at the Phi Mu Delta house on Saturday night enlivened the week-end.

For some reason, Eleanor Brown is deeply interested in Phi Kappa's----- there's a key to the situation.

Dot Clegg is suffering from punishment as a result of accumulation of demerits but the suffering from not being able to see "him" is greater.

With Commencement drawing so near, Francis Hubler is concentrating upon how she can become a Senior over night.

When you think of the Junior "Prom", dear student, just give a passing thought to the exams that follow it.

We realize that statement was one of diabolical cruelty, but we couldn't resist it.

Y.; Treasurer, William Morrow, Lysville; Sergeant at Arms, Richard Fisher, Selingrove.

Phi Lambda Theta

Robert Sala visited with his brothers at the fraternity home on Sunday. He is planning on returning to Susquehanna next fall.

The local chapter added three pledges to its list by pledging Wesley Stirling, William Sullivan, of the Freshman Class, and Charles Lauver of the Junior Class.

Omega Delta Sigma Notes

Omega Delta Sigma sorority was entertained at a bridge and dinner at the country club, their hostess being the honoraries of the sorority. The girls while there for the club in cars provided for them by their hostesses at 3:00 and after a delightful afternoon they returned about 7:30. The prizes were won by Frances Marks, Mary Eltringham, and Mary Patterson. The three girls are pledges of the sorority.

Mrs. Seidel was elected as president of the honoraries of Omega Delta Sigma sorority for the coming year. She is a new honorary of the sorority and will succeed Mrs. Grossman as president.

Danks Will Hurl Against Bucknell

After resting for a week since the Pennsylvania Military College and Elizabethtown games were cancelled on account of rain, the Susquehanna nine should be ready to go against the Bucknell Bisons when they meet for the second time this season on the University field on Saturday afternoon.

A fast game is expected since the Bisons were defeated in the first encounter by the score of 11-3. Danks will probably receive the pitching duty for the Crusaders because of his excellent performance against Bucknell in the first game. Trudnak will surely receive the pitching assignment for Bucknell as he has always been a jinx to Susquehanna.

S. U. PEPYS

We hear there is to be a plot on ground dedicated this Saturday, to twist the May Day celebration, parades, baseball, Junior Prom, and a few other events. Why not dedicate our revamped golf course, for instance to those individuals whom it lures through the most violent of thunder storms and like discomforts?

It seems that the Queen of May has augmented our percentage of campus royalty by installing one King Fredrick I as the favored one. Let us hope that it won't create an interstate feud or jealousy.

The Junior Prom should relieve several of our "gay cobbler-leers" of making a decision between Seibert Hall and Rolling Green Park this Saturday.

Several defiant Juniors, either through class loyalty or Scotch ancestry, are still shouting their refusal to come down from the three-dollar price for Prom tickets. Random speculations as to the outcome hover between the depression and the potential of resistance of the holdouts. The Mighty Maimon leads a sturdy band of revolutionists in this campaign against price cutting. The next few days should tell the tale.

Manager Kozak takes his tennis team to State College. Kozak: "Can you tell me where the Zoo is around here?" Penn State man: "Whadda ya mean, zoo?"

Kozak, (hopefully): "Why, the one where they keep the Nittany Lion. Where is it?" The team becomes embarrassed and loses the match, 7-0.

Since Mr. Wormley has been at Dallas, all scholastic sports have reached a high degree of competition. This is the first basketball championship to be won at Dallas.

Leecrone Successful Coach at Wilmington

Ellis K. Leecrone '21, Athletic Coach of DuPont High School, Wilmington, Delaware reports that DuPont High, with fifteen high schools and two teams from the University of Delaware competing for the past two years, has been the only team to win medals at the Penn Relays. They have taken a third and two firsts at the Relays since the Susquehanna graduate accepted the coaching position. They are now defending "Champs" in both the New Castle Track and Field Meet and the Delaware Inter-scholastic, held on Frazier Field, University of Delaware. Coach Leecrone graduated from Susquehanna in 1921 with an A.B. degree. During his time here he played half-back on the Varsity football team. He is a member of Phi Mu Delta fraternity.

CAMPUS CLUB TO CONVENE AT SEIBERT HALL

On Thursday afternoon of this week, the Campus Club will hold its last meeting of the year at Seibert Hall. Plans are being made for an occasion of real interest, and refreshments will also be served to the male members of the faculty.

Cinder Stars Prepare For Meet With Bisons

Susquehanna's track team will have a chance to make it two straight victories when they meet Bucknell in a dual meet at the Bucknell Stadium on Wednesday afternoon. Last year the Crusaders won by a small margin. In the Washington meet, the Orange and Maroon proved to be much stronger than in previous years, particularly in the field events.

On Saturday, the Crusaders will be entertained in the C.P.C.T.C. meet to be held at the Bucknell Stadium. Susquehanna is entered in Class B with Drexel, Albright, Juniata, and Ursinus. Two years ago the Crusaders were tied with Drexel for first place and last year they finished in fourth place with Albright taking first place. The Orange and Maroon are expected to finish near the top this year, if not at the top.

MODERN LANGUAGE CLUBS HOLD PICNIC AT BROOKS POINT

Yesterday afternoon, the modern language clubs, including the French, German, and Spanish clubs hiked to Brooks Point for a picnic. The ninety who attended the picnic left school about 5:00 and arrived at Brooks Point about 5:20. Everyone seemed to have a healthy appetite and greatly enjoyed the picnic lunch prepared for them. After several games the hikers returned to school having greatly enjoyed their little holiday.

TENNIS TEAM TO ATTEMPT COMEBACK ON FOREIGN COURT

After winning the first match and losing the next two, rain prevented the Susquehanna tennis team from staging a comeback against Villanova and Lebanon Valley on the home courts last week.

However, there is still an opportunity, when they journey to Annville to meet Lebanon Valley on Wednesday. On Friday they will meet Bucknell on the home courts. In the first match against Bucknell, the Orange and Maroon lost by a score of 7-0.

"ELECTRIC BULLETS"

THE result of exhaustive wind-tunnel tests of conventional trolley car models revealed that at speeds of 70 and 80 miles per hour, 70 per cent of the total power was consumed in overcoming air resistance. Streamlining saves approximately 20 per cent of the power.

When the Philadelphia and Western Railway Company decided to replace its cars with faster and more efficient equipment, it chose "electric bullets"—new streamlined cars—each powered by 4 G-E 100-hp. motors. The cars, constructed of aluminum alloy, with tapered noses and tails, are much lighter in weight and capable of greater operating efficiency.

In developing transportation apparatus, college-trained General Electric engineers have conducted extensive tests to improve operating conditions. On land, on sea, and in the air, to-day's equipment is safer, swifter, more dependable, and more comfortable.

Sweet auburn—could hair be of lovelier hue?
And emerald eyes—are they less rare than blue?

Did cheek that is freckled ne'er work any harm?
Must woman be brazen or meek to entice?
Or will a firm calmness and sweetness suffice?

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM HOLDS CELEBRITIES IN SPEAKING FIELD

Alumni Day and Class Day Ceremonies Will be Climaxed by Sorority and Fraternity Dances.
President Smith's Reception Alumni Day

Preparations have been completed for an outstanding Commencement celebration which begins with the annual banquet of Pi Gamma Mu, National Social Science Honor society in Selbert Hall on Tuesday, May 31.

The commencement program will comprise three outstanding speakers. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered in the Trinity Lutheran Church on Sunday morning, June 5 by the Reverend Boyd Edwards, headmaster of the Mercersburg Academy. At the evening services the Reverend Clarence Krumholz, of Pittsburgh, will conduct the graduating exercises of the Department of Theology.

Commencement proceedings will come to a fitting climax when Dr. Harren Harrell Horne, a professor at New York University, addresses the graduating class of '32. Dean George F. Dunkelberger will recommend the degrees which will be bestowed by President G. Morris Smith.

On Thursday evening, June 2, the society parties will hold away for three hours at the various fraternity houses on the campus. Senior class exercises with the presentation of the class gift by W. Frederick Wilks and the acceptance by Dr. G. Morris Smith, president of Susquehanna University, will take place Friday morning and will be followed by a luncheon tendered to the graduating class by President and Mrs. Smith at the Susquehanna Valley Country Club.

The annual music recital by the students of the Conservatory of Music, which will be given in Selbert Hall, will be a feature on Friday evening's program. At 9 o'clock the fraternities will begin their commencement dances at their respective houses. Elaborate games are being made for the success of each dance.

The "Red Letter Day" of the week will be Alumni Day, which will be observed on Saturday, May 4, and will be opened by an alumni luncheon and business meeting at noon. Class reunions and informal sports will take place during the entire afternoon. At 4 o'clock the University Band will render a concert at President Smith's reception at Pine Lawn. The alumni banquet and play will be the evening features.

The final event will be the University Dinner for guests and friends, which will be served at the Horton Dining Hall on Monday, June 6, at 12:30 o'clock.

Women's Club Sponsors Tree Planting Ceremony

Formally opening the Washington Bicentennial program on Saturday morning, the Women's Club of Selinsgrove conducted a tree planting and tree dedication along the Susquehanna trail at the junction of the road to Freiburg.

Following the introductory playing of "America" by the Susquehanna University Band, Dr. Walter C. Beck delivered the Invocation, and Dr. G. Morris Smith gave an address.

Miss Naomi K. Hade then rendered a solo selection, "Trees," accompanied by the University Band. Mrs. William J. Groce, President of the Woman's Club then conducted the dedicatory ceremony, the Reverend Earl G. Kline following with the Benediction.

A community parade was held in the afternoon, with the school children, fraternal, patriotic, civic, and business organizations of Selinsgrove taking part.

Calvin Naugle Elected to the Athletic Board

Calvin Naugle, a member of the Sophomore class was elected as the fourth student representative to the Athletic Board on the third ballot, having received a majority of the votes cast at the election, which was held after the chapel exercises, last Thursday morning. His opponents for the office were Fred Carl and Lee Rishel.

The following men will represent the student body on the Athletic Board during the coming year: William Caron, Robert McGeehan, Harold Kramer, and Calvin Naugle.

Prom Climaxes the May Day Activities

"Al Hollander's Band" With Contrasting Black and White Decorations Appeared to the Modernistic

As a fitting close to Susquehanna's May Day, the Juniors held their annual Prom in the Alumni Gymnasium, with music by Al Hollander's eleven-piece band.

The decorations of black and white gave an atmosphere of modernism to the dance, quite in keeping with the gala spirit of the crowd. An entirely new idea was carried out in separate fraternity and sorority booths which provided rest for weary dancers. The favors were wooden jewel-boxes, engraved with the letter "S", and the programs of matching wood were similarly engraved.

"Al" Hollander's music seemed to meet with as much approval on Susquehanna's campus, as it has on others.

The guests of the Juniors were: Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Smith, Dr. George Dunkelberger, Dr. and Mrs. W. Ahl, Miss Naomi K. Hade, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Leese, Professor and Mrs. F. C. Stevens. Many alumni also returned for the dance.

The success of this affair was due to the untiring efforts of the committee, composed of John Ballentine, chairman, Fred Carl, Paul Edwards, Esther Geisel, Beatrice Gentzler, Barbara Jones, Joseph Maimon, Walter Metzger, and Jack Petry.

Annual Dedication Goes to Dr. Ahl

Lanthon Honor Decided by Popular Vote of Junior Class Members;
No Formal Dedication

Members of the 1932 Lanthon staff and the entire Junior Class wish to announce the dedication of this year's volume of the yearbook to Dr. Augustus William Ahl.

Since the annual is representative of the class of 1932, it was decided this year to determine the dedication by secret ballot of the members of the Junior Class, the results of which showed Dr. Ahl to have received a decided majority of votes.

Due to the uncertain and late date of the publication of this year's Lanthon, there will be no formal dedication, but through the medium of "The Susquehanna" the Class of '32 and members of the staff wish to extend their hearty congratulations to Dr. Ahl.

Lecturers from Penn Address Classes

On Saturday morning, May 21, 1932, students in English at the university were addressed by two visiting lecturers, Dr. Beaumont S. Brustle and Dr. Godfrey F. Singer, from the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Brustle lectured upon "The Plays of Eugene O'Neill," and developed the idea that the early one-act plays of the American dramatist served as a complete laboratory for the creation of his later full-length plays.

Dr. Singer discussed the subject of "Shakespeare in the Theatre" and presented sketches of the manner in which Shakespearean plays have been presented during the past three hundred years.

Dr. Brustle and Dr. Singer came to Selinsgrove upon the invitation of Dr. Wilson and spoke to the classes of Miss Corbin and Dr. Wilson.

Student Council

Seventeen regulations to be observed by next year's Freshmen were adopted and approved by the Men's Student Council at a meeting held in Steele Science Hall last Thursday evening.

Selon Dockey, Paul Edwards, William Swann, and Bruce Worthington were the members of the rules committee, who formulated the three new traditions which were added to the list of fourteen rules observed by this year's Freshman class.

The class rules, which will go into effect next year, are:

(e) Freshmen shall remain seated in chapel until everyone else has departed.

(f) Freshmen shall limit their smoking to their own dormitories.

(g) No Freshman shall be seen with a girl on the campus or in Selinsgrove at any time, except at college social functions, until after the first semester.

PI GAMMA MU BAN-QUET ON MAY 31

The Social Committee of Pi Gamma Mu has completed its plan for the annual banquet of the organization which will be held Tuesday May 31. The principal speaker will be Dr. Lee Francis Lybarger, a well known public speaker. The members are looking forward to a very pleasant affair.

Coronation of Miss Anna Dunkelberger of Mt. Carmel, as Queen of May at Susquehanna climaxed a day of colorful activity as the University and the town of Selinsgrove combined to celebrate the George Washington Bi-Centennial last Saturday.

Following a community parade earlier in the afternoon, an unusually large crowd gathered at the approach of evening to witness the coronation of Miss Dunkelberger by the Lady-in-Waiting, Miss Mary Esther Potter, of Anties Fort, Pa., attended by her court, which was composed of the Misses Harriet R. Leese, Edna E. Williamson, Dorothy V. Puckey, Eta E. Mumaw, Mary R. Weavering and Thelma E. Grebe.

Pennsylvania Knight Gregory, the only living daughter of the American Revolution in Pennsylvania, and one of the seven still alive in America today, was the guest of honor, viewing the ceremony and ensuing pageant. Mrs. Knight's home is on South Market street, Selinsgrove.

More than 200 college students and school children took part in the George Washington tableau, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Weiler Reeder, which represented six episodes in the life of Washington.

The first scene opened with Washington at the age of 16, when Lord Fairfax offered him the position of surveyor. Next he was seen at the French fort in western Pennsylvania, asking the French to leave the territory. The third episode is founded on the period following the French and Indian War, after Washington's marriage to Martha Custis. The Revolution in full swing, showing the period of mobilization and gloomy periods of the war comprised the fourth and fifth scenes, while the final episode is drawn from Washington's inauguration.

FINANCIAL HOLOCAUST

For some years in the past the Junior Prom Committee has been faced with a substantial deficit in its treasury following the Prom. This year's class is an ultimate and notable example of a financial sacrifice for no good reason what-so-ever.

True, the Committee has contended with a terrible condition emanating from the present depression, but the most outstanding evil was unnecessary and unexcusable. Human nature is peculiar in its endeavor to undersell and in its cut-throat tactics to secure material ends regardless of the means. The Prom Committee made a blunder by submitting two tickets to each and every member of the class and by requiring them to hold one for themselves and to sell the remaining one at three dollars, or else sell the two pasteboards. The twenty-first of May was close at hand and the Juniors still had their tickets to sell, but there was an insufficient number of buyers. Human nature allowed these people to sell their tickets for what they are worth at market price, ranging anywhere from twenty-five cents to three dollars. Such a selling, or rather under-selling program causes dissatisfaction among the buyers and is hard on the person that makes the sale. Because each Junior is assessed six dollars, does not necessarily mean that they will pay for two tickets, especially, since the Administration decided not to make collection from non-payers. The whole selling plan is weak and needs reconstruction for next year's Prom.

Since we have depreciated the destructible qualities of the selling plan, we must suggest another that will eliminate the evils that we find in the present system. By requiring each Junior to be assessed three dollars, for which he will be allowed to enter the Prom "on his face", you would not run the risk of having some person slip through the fingers of the men at the door. Further, have a central office or offices where Prom tickets will be sold, to people outside of the class, at a standard price. Such a plan will not permit the pernicious element of underselling. Those people not wishing to go to the Prom will not buy a ticket, and go merely because they can get one for fifty cents, and people who wish to go will not be kept away because the price is standard. This shows the fallacy of the student-to-student plan. The Committee should have complete control of the sale of tickets and thereby reap the reward of a better financial condition.

The present financial uproar of the world is expressed by the word—holocaust; the Juniors and the Prom Committee feel the same way about their condition.

The class is to be complimented on its fine Prom, but it is not to be complimented, but rather condemned, for its poor show of business methods. The result is that the present Juniors' folly should be a warning to the future classes that a Prom is only successful when it is paid for. A Prom can only be paid for when it is run on a solid business basis.

FROSH RULES

The action of the Men's Student Council in adopting more stringent freshman rules to become effective next September is not to be construed as a backward step. There is no doubt that the lax rules have had an effect upon the attitude of the freshmen this year both towards the upperclassmen and themselves. The Men's Student Council has been, not an institution demanding respect, but the butt of their jokes; hardly any of the yearling class have obeyed the few rules imposed upon them and fewer than this can sing the first line of the "Alpha Mater". This relaxation of discipline has had the detrimental outcome of creating egoists galore.

Many first year men come to college leaving the restraints of home for the first time. Strict freshman rules help to take the place of parental restraint, aid in the acclimation of the new man to his surroundings, and prepare him for his freedom, after he has attained his balance. If taken seriously by the upperclassmen and the incoming Frosh, the new regulations will turn out men who will be better to lead, because they learned to follow and will also induce stability and character besides a proper respect for Susquehanna University.

Seibert Hall Echoes

With so much going on, it was more or less quite a week-end for Susquehanna.

The old Dorm certainly had its multitudes of company, and everyone will agree that May Day was a huge success.

Numbers of the Alumni were back, and they seemed to enjoy themselves.

Was the Prom a success? Needless to say it was one of the best and most original ever staged, and here's to 33.

"Mood Indigo" went over big—especially with members of the Seibert Hall Club, or better yet, members of the "ball and chain" club.

We hear that "Dot" Hutter was disappointed because "Star Dust" wasn't sung.

"Lu" Lehman's tastes all lie in the same direction, judging from her escort to the Prom.

Even May Day had the "pairs" when it came to the Minnet.

Some people say that the gentle art of conversation has been lost—they never saw the line outside the telephones on every floor before ten-thirty each night.

Since this the last issue of THE SUSQUEHANNA for this year, we bid you a fond farewell until we meet again.

Fraternity Row

Bond and Key Club

A dizzy round of campus activities brought back many fraters who have graduated. Lee Vantage, Bill Roberts, Robert Wunderly, Clarence Derr, Stirling and Thurston Decker, and Archie Swanger returned to the club home to spend a few hours with the present brothers.

Brother Reverend Lester Lutz visited the House on last Wednesday to say "Hello" to the boys.

Charles Rummel, brother of Herb Rummel, was a week-end visitor at the House.

With down-town initiation almost over and the many tricks of our pledges pleasantly jotted down we await the coming of initiation.

Epsilon Sigma

Harold Kramer was elected president of the Epsilon Sigma fraternity at the weekly meeting held on May 18th. The remaining officers who were elected are: Fred Carl, vice-president; Laird Gemberling, treasurer; Nelson King, secretary; Daniel McKelvey, Jr., chaplain; and Daniel McMullen, monitor. Frank Ramsey, Benjamin Moyer, Fred Carl and Daniel McKelvey, Jr., were elected to the Board of Trustees.

Harold Crossman '30 and Joseph Smith, both of Bradford; Ralph Grimsley '25, of Forty Port; Clair Drebbel, of Millinburg; Nicholas Caster and John Senko '31, both of Hazleton, were among the visitors and alumni, who spent the week-end at the house.

Phi Lambda Theta

The local chapter held its election of officers at the regular meeting on Wednesday evening. The officers for the coming semester are: President, Walter Metzger; vice president, George Wentzel; secretary, Robert Sala; treasurer, James Bonsale; chaplain, Calvin Naugle.

"Fritz" Naugle, a former student of Susquehanna, visited the house on Saturday. "Fritz" is a student of the Pierce School of Business at Philadelphia.

AMUSEMENTS

If you don't go to see Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Crazy Gravy", tonight, you will miss a lot of laughs. Joan Bennett's charm makes "Careless Lady" the feature for Wednesday a delightful and entertaining film. "Murders in the Rue Morgue" a Universal production which will be shown on Thursday evening is a shocker with plenty of thrills and chills.

On Friday, "The Guilty Generation" a cinema with no machine guns but plenty of action will be featured at the Stanley.

Saturday will bring Hoot Gibson in "The Local Bad Man".

On May 30th and 31st "The Lost Squadron," a fine, behind-the-screen aviation picture will be flashed on the silver sheet.

S. U. PEPYS

May Day in review at Susquehanna:—Pages open the festivities as a trumpet sounds, at a distance (thank goodness) . . . George Washington Hubbard portrays "Jawge" as a 16-year old . . . Booker T. Bishop renders an authentic interpretation of the old darkey slave, as he sets up the Maypole for the kiddies . . . Kindsavater plays similar role, but doesn't get a chance to tell his pet story about the negro minister . . . Rowe wavers between an emulation of Paul Revere and the Prince of Wales in an unusual display of equestrian ability . . . The Band renders novel arrangement of "Yankee Doodle" . . . replica of the Spirit of '76 quite realistic except for the absence of the battlefield.

After watching several one-armed and otherwise handicapped track athletes perform with considerable ability in the high jump, hurdles, and other events at the Conference on Saturday, "Brute" Bishop was finally heard to exclaim in exasperation, "If they put any one-legged men in the two-mile run, I'm gonna quit!"

Questions of moment on the campus:—How are we going to collect that money for the Prom? (Johnny Ballentine) . . . How am I going to pass those exams? (All of us) . . . How soon can I get home after the last exam? (Ditto) . . . Should I cram, or rest my mind by sleeping and loafing afterwards? (I Flunka Zam Fraternity) . . . When are we going to study? (the Baseball Team) . . . Is the Tennis Team ever going to win a match? (Manager Kozak) . . . When is the Lanthorn coming out? . . . Aw, nertz!

This Move-Up Day is rather confusing . . . If the Juniors are Seniors now, why can't the co-eds go out every night? If the ex-Juniors are Seniors, then what are the ex-Seniors? And if the ex-Frosh are now Sophomores, why don't they stop acting like Freshmen? . . .

Just where did the police squad do the most good on May Day, watching the pageant or watching the baseball game, while a few dozen of our baseballs dropped into oblivion on the outside of the railroad tracks? . . .

And now, indulgent readers (all four of you), as all good things must come to an end, so must all bad ones, and with this last issue of "The Susquehanna" the Nertz Bros. must sing their swan-song for the year.

In parting, we cordially invite you to come around and see us some time; if you like us, bring your bouquets and tokens, but if you don't, kindly leave all decayed vegetable matter, etc., at home. We are overstocked in such at present anyway.

From this hour you may go, do, and think as you like with the assurance that the Nertzes will see and hear nothing. So take the padding from your keyholes, open up another keg, and drink to the passing of—

R. V. and I. M. NERTZ.

Trackmen Vanquish Bisons in Dual Meet

S. U. Boys Smashed Seven Meet Records and Three College Records to Best Old Foes from Lewisburg

Breaking records right and left, the Susquehanna Crusaders defeated Bucknell in a dual meet staged in the Bucknell Stadium at Lewisburg Wednesday. The Orange and Maroon trackmen broke seven meet records and Captain Neiswenter, Bill Swann and John Hanna carved new college records for themselves in the high hurdles, broad jump and javelin throw.

Captain Neiswenter topped the high hurdles at 16 seconds flat, setting a new college and meet record. The old meet record, which was held by Neiswenter, was lowered by 6-10 of a second when Bill Swann shattered the meet record in the broad jump when he jumped 21 ft. 5 inches, also establishing a new college record.

Johnny Meyers accumulated three new meet records; lowered the record 2-10 of a second in the 100-yard dash, ran the 220 yard dash and low hurdles in a second less time.

In the 440-yard dash, Swann slightly bettered his former meet record with the time of 53.2 seconds. John Hanna tossed the javelin 155 ft. 4 inches to establish a new school meet record and also a college record.

Captain Coates of Bucknell held his former meet record in the 880 and mile run. Sullivan of Bucknell established the pole vault record at 10 ft. 9 inches. Mackenzie jumped the high jump at five feet six inches to equal the record held by Gerhard, a former Susquehanna star. Geiger and Jones of Bucknell also continue to hold the meet records in the discus and shot put.

Crusaders Crushed By Lebanon Valley

Three Hits Apiece by Schaeffer, Morrow and Spigelmyer Not Sufficient to Overcome Opponents' Sixteen

With eight hits, two free passes to first, and two errors which resulted in ten runs in the first inning, Lebanon Valley defeated the Crusaders in their first meeting by a score of 17-4.

The Susquehanna scores came in the eighth and ninth innings. In the eighth, Spigelmyer led off with a triple, Morrow singled to score Spigelmyer, Malasky and Martinec singled to score Morrow. With one out in the ninth, Schaeffer singled, Maimon drew a free pass to first, Spigelmyer reached first on an error. Morrow singled to score Schaeffer, Malasky reached first while Maimon was being thrown out at home. Martinec singled to score Spigelmyer.

Brinninger started on the mound for the Orange and Maroon, but was immediately touched for six hits. Maimon relieved Brinninger in the first and retired the side after allowing them two hits. Maimon was forced to retire in the seventh in favor of Danks.

Spigelmyer, Morrow and Schaeffer led the Crusaders' hitting attack with three hits apiece, one of Spigelmyer's being a triple. Boran led at bat for Lebanon Valley with a home run, triple and a single.

Nine Crumbles for Bisons; 9 - 3 Score

Fry and Danks Both Yield 10 Hits, But Crusaders Only Cross Plate 3 Times. Errors Cause of Defeat

The Susquehanna nine crumbled before the Bucknell Bisons on Saturday in the annual May Day game held on University Field, and lost by a score of 9-3 in a game featured with errors.

Bucknell took the lead in the second inning by scoring two runs on a triple, a single and an error. They added two more in the third on two errors and a single. In the seventh inning, they scored four on a base on balls, four errors, and singles by Peters, Mills and Ruch.

The first of Susquehanna's scores came in the fourth inning when Martinec tripled and scored on Palmer's single to right field. They added another in the sixth on Palmer's double and a single by Hanna. The last run came in the eighth when Hanna drew a base on balls and advanced to second as Fry was throwing Foltz out at first. Schaeffer singled to score Hanna from second.

Danks was on the mound for the Orange and Maroon and would have turned in a victory had it not been for the costly errors. His offerings were found for ten hits, the same number as in the previous game with Bucknell, but they scored nine runs where as they scored only three in the first game. Susquehanna found Fry for ten hits, three less than in the first game, but were only able to convert them into three runs. Both pitchers allowed ten hits and had seven strikeouts.

Stroup, Palmer and Hanna led at the bat for the Orange and Maroon with two hits apiece. Vetter and Peters each had three hits for Bucknell. Peters having a triple and two singles.

Team in Best Form Defeats Danville

Three Double Plays Feature 10-4 Victory Over State Hospital Nine. Brinninger Gives Six Hits

After losing to Lebanon Valley in a game featured with many errors, Susquehanna staged a come-back and turned in their best fielding performance of the season when they defeated the Danville State Hospital team at Danville on Friday by a score of 10-4.

The Crusaders could not be stopped as they turned many hits into outs. At the bat, they pounded out the offerings of Shippe and Bendinsky for fifteen hits. Another feature of the game was three double plays turned in by the Orange and Maroon. Morrow, at second for Hanna, took every chance without a slip-up, while Anderson, in center field for Stroup, handled that position like a veteran.

Schaeffer, Anderson and Foltz led at the bat for Susquehanna with three hits apiece. Schaeffer and Anderson each having a triple. Malasky was close second with two singles. Kramer led his Hospital team-mates with two singles while Conrad was second with one triple.

Brinninger did the pitching for the Crusaders and turned in his best performance of the season by holding the Hospital team to six hits. His success was largely due to the fine support given to him by his team-mates. Shippe started for the Hospital but was forced to give way to Bendinsky in the fifth inning.

Track Team Fourth In C. P. C. T. C. Meet

Neiswenter Sets New Conference Record in 220 Low Hurdles, Team Totals 2 Firsts, 2 Seconds, 5 Thirds

The Susquehanna track team took fourth place in the C. P. C. T. C. meet staged in the Bucknell Stadium on Saturday afternoon. Susquehanna was entered in Class B with Albright, Ursinus, Drexel, Juniata, and Dickinson.

Susquehanna placed two firsts, two seconds, and five thirds in the meet. Swann placed first in the 120 high hurdles and Neiswenter placed first in the 220 low hurdles. Meyers had a second in the 100 yard dash and 220 yard low hurdles. Truckenmiller took third in the 220 yard dash. Botteiger took third in the two mile run, and Swann placed third in the broad jump and the 880 yard run.

Wayne Neiswenter, Captain of the Susquehanna track team, set a new C. P. C. T. C. record in the Class B 220 yard low hurdles, with the time of 25.9 seconds. He also took a third place in the 120 high hurdles.

Two Freshmen Win 3 Varsity Awards

For the first time in years Susquehanna University can boast of two Freshmen athletes who have won three varsity awards their first year.

This unique honor goes to Stephen Martinec, of Coaldale, and John Hanna, former Bradford high school athlete, who are two of the most promising athletes to have enrolled at Susquehanna in recent years.

Both have received varsity football awards. Martinec held down a varsity halfback post last fall while Hanna was the regular fullback for the Crusaders. These two boys were rated by Coach Ullery as his best backfield men, both being hard hitters and excellent defensive players. Martinec did the bulk of the punting and passing.

Several weeks ago, Martinec took first position in the discus throw in the Washington College meet, which entitles him to a track letter. Hanna placed second in the same event and second in the javelin throw, which earned a track award for him.

These same athletes are doing their part on Susquehanna's baseball team this season, which is one of the best on record and is credited with victories over Penn State and Bucknell. Martinec patrols the outfield for Coach Ullery and is also available as a relief catcher. Hanna is guardian of the key-stone sack and is leading his team-mates in the hitting department.

Sports Program Closes With Lebanon Valley

Next week marks the close of Susquehanna 1932 baseball and track season. Saturday, May 28, will find Lebanon Valley here for the last home base ball game. On Decoration Day, the Crusaders will close the season at Juniata. Susquehanna has lost to both of these teams in their first game but are expected to make a better showing than in their previous games.

The track team will travel to Juniata on Friday, May 27, to wind up their season. The Crusaders have lost to this team for the past two years but are expected to win this year. Susquehanna played more first and seconds in the C.P.C.T.C. meet than did Juniata, and for that reason a close meet is expected. Susquehanna will also have her weight men available for that meet, whereas they were not entered on Saturday.

Netmen Take Three Defeats Last Week

The Susquehanna netmen failed to stage a comeback last week and lost three matches. On Tuesday, they met Juniata on the home court, but were forced to bow to them by a score of 6-2. Speer defeated Stewart, 6-3, 6-4, and Adams defeated Settle 6-3, 6-1.

On Wednesday they journeyed to Lebanon Valley, only to meet defeat there by a score of 5-1. Petry and Schlegel defeated Snyder and Rank in doubles by a score of 6-3, 6-4.

On Friday they met Bucknell on the home courts and again they lost, this time with a score of 7-0.

This week finds the Orange and Maroon closing their season when they go to Juniata on Friday, May 27. Perhaps they may do better this time.

AUXILIARY TO HOLD ITS FINAL MEETING

The Women's Auxiliary of Susquehanna University will hold their last meeting of the year on the first Saturday in June. This organization has helped Susquehanna in various ways since the beginning of its organization. Mrs. Magee, and Mrs. Groce were charge of the selling of sandwiches and cake at May Day on Saturday, and they deserve much credit for their fine work.

LOCAL PASTOR RECEIVES HONORARY DEGREE

Rev. Dallas C. Baer, who received his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Susquehanna University in 1927, was awarded the degree of Master of Sacred Theology at the Commencement exercises at Mt. Airy Theological Seminary, of Philadelphia, which were held on May 19th. At the present time, Rev. Baer is pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church at Selingsgrove.

NOTICE

Wit That's Fit

Gentleman Wash
A little boy had taken his mother's powder puff and was in the act of powdering his face when his small sister, aged 5, snatched it from him. "You mustn't do that," she exclaimed, "only ladies use powder. Gentleman wash themselves."

And Those Were Quoted
"You enjoyed my latest book?"
"Yes, I thought those verses you quoted from Tennyson were wonderful!"

Prices of Other Years
Customer (from the country): "I'd like a dollar dinner, please."
Hotel Restaurant Waiter: "Yes, sir. On white or rye bread, sir?"

Marvelous
"What a terrible writer Potts is! He once sent a letter to Smithsonian, the greengrocer, asking him to send round some tomatoes."

"What happened?"
"Well, after Smithsonian had used it for a passport to France and Spain, and as a driving license in Italy, he played it on the piano."

An Unfair Remark
"My poor husband was a wonderful artist," sighed the landlady as she hacked at the pie crust, "and always said he found inspiration in my cooking."
"A sculpture, I presume," said the gloomy boarder, surveying his bent fork.

The New Cook
"What was your reason for leaving your last place?"
"Well, ma'am, the truth is that the master and missus was always dickerin' in."
"Really?"
"Yes, ma'am. When it wasn't me and her, it was me and him."

Per Request
The traveler arrived in the village in the early hours of the morning, and, proceeding to the inn, set down his bag and threw stones at the windows to wake the landlord. After a while a window was thrown up and a head peered out.

"Can I stay here for the night?" shouted the traveler.

"Sure," was the reply. A moment later a pillow came hurtling down. "Take this," the voice continued, "in case you find the doorstep a bit hard!"

Right-Hand Man
The teacher was using the phonograph to make the children familiar with good music.

Two famous opera singers had just finished a duet, and the teacher said: "Now, children, who can tell me the names of the singers we have just heard?"

"Caruso," replied a small boy.
"Yes, and who was singing with Caruso?"
"His man Friday," was the disconcerting answer.

84 DAYS OF TRAVEL AND STUDY IN EUROPE AND MEDITERRANEAN LANDS

By DR. GEORGE F. DUNKELBERGER

During the past summer I spent eighty-four days in Europe and the Borderlands of the Mediterranean Sea. We took the southern route across the Atlantic, and after a voyage of eight days reached Gibraltar. The Rock of Gibraltar is a massive limestone rock about three miles long, three-fourth mile wide, and about 1400 feet high, located at the extreme southern point of Spain. This rock has its counterpart on the opposite side of the strait on the African Coast. These twin rocks were known to the ancients as the Pillars of Hercules. As one approaches the rock from the sea, it looks like a bare mountain of stone devoid of all vegetation. The whole rock fairly bristles with artillery. As strong as the Rock of Gibraltar is a meaningful statement to the person who has been privileged to see it.

Our next port of call was Algiers. Algiers has a population of about 300,000 consisting largely of French, Mohammedans, or Arabs, Spaniards, Italians and Jews. The city is under the control of the French Government. French is the recognized spoken language, and the street signs and advertisements are in French. We found the movies and the Ford everywhere. On some of the streets, it seemed that every other house was a beer and wine shop. The best part of the city had a distinctly modern appearance, and the stores and market places were very attractive. The older and poorer sections of the city presented scenes of squalor and degradation well-nigh indescribable.

I spent the fourth of July in Cannes, France. This city is a famous resort and watering place. Cannes is evidently a very old city since walls going back to Roman days are still standing. From here we sailed for Naples, passing

European Travelers To Address Chapel Tomorrow Morning

Miss Naomi Hade, Dr. Dunkelberger, Miss Evelyn Allison, and Miss Lucy Irving Will Speak on Topics of Interest

Miss Naomi K. Hade, Dean of Women at Susquehanna, who recently returned from a European trip abroad, will deliver a lecture at the chapel exercises, tomorrow morning.

Susquehanna's Dean of Women, who is also an instructor in the English Department, will speak "Concerning the Oxford of Today." While in England, Miss Hade took work in that university. Following Miss Hade's lecture, it is intended that other talks of similar nature will be given by Dean George F. Dunkelberger, who spent three months studying in the Holy Lands; Miss Evelyn Allison, instructor of French, who studied the past year in Paris, and Miss Lucy T. Irving, instructor of Spanish, who followed research work in the University of Madrid this summer.

A resume of the trips made during the summer months by Dr. George F. Dunkelberger and Miss Evelyn Allison appear in this issue of "The Susquehanna." Next week, a story of the European tours made by Miss Naomi K. Hade and Miss Lucy T. Irving during the summer vacation will appear in this paper.

Sororities Hold Tea For All New Girls

The annual Inter-Sorority Tea for all freshmen and new girls was held on Saturday afternoon in Seibert Hall parlors from three to five o'clock. This year, instead of only the customary Seibert Hall girls attending the tea, there was also a representation of the honoraries of the various sororities.

The vice presidents of each of the three sororities, Margaret Williams, Madlow Nichols, and Daley Reese served. Each sorority girl brought her "little sister" with her and presented her to the presidents and to the honoraries.

Some very dainty and delicious sandwiches and cakes were also served with the tea. Ruth Bengtresser had complete charge of this part of the afternoon's entertainment.

Miss Evelyn Allison Returns from Year's Leave of Absence

Head of French Department Spends Eight Months in University of Paris; Granted Honor in Phonetics

Miss Evelyn R. Allison, head of the French Department in the University has returned recently from the University of Paris, where she spent the one year leave of absence granted her by the college. She docked in New York August 29, on the S. S. Minnetonka.

Students and faculty members alike welcome her back to her duties in the French Department. Susquehanna University gave Miss Allison her first degree and then she got her Masters Degree from Columbia University. She several native graduate work at Penn State summer sessions, having attended the French Institute there. The summer of 1928 was spent in France, where she studied in the University of Grenoble. The past year's work was spent in the Sorbonne, the linguistic school combined with the University of Paris.

The student body at Sorbonne is comprised of interested French students of many nationalities, including several natives. During vacation periods she took short sight-seeing tours in and about Paris. She received a diploma from the University of Paris after eight months study. A special certificate was given her by the University because of special work and excellence in phonetics.

Following her stay in Paris she spent the month of July as French instructor in the American War Memorial in Chateau-Thierry, maintained there by the Methodist church. This Memorial is a social center for American people traveling in Europe and does a fine work among the visitors to this foreign land. Following this month's work she decided upon a travel program.

First she visited friends in Southern France and made a return trip to northern France by way of Geneva and Lausanne, Switzerland. England was her next choice and while there planned to see Scotland. From London and Edinburgh she took a short trip into Mary Griesemer, a sophomore at Susquehanna this year was awarded the scholarship of the Golden Memory Book by the Ladies Auxiliary of the university.

Electoral Committee of "The Susquehanna" Fills Few Vacancies

At a recent meeting of the Electoral Committee of the Susquehanna Publishing Association, A. Carl Messinger, former editor-in-chief of "The Anvil" weekly publication of the Valley Forge Military Academy, was elected to one of the vacancies on the Editorial Staff. Elmer Devereaux was selected to fill the vacancy on the Business Staff which was made by the failure of Regis Kifer to return to college.

The Electoral Committee which is composed of Luke Rhoads, president of the publishing association; Dr. Arthur H. Wilson, faculty advisor to the Editorial staff; Dr. Charles Lees, faculty advisor to the Business Staff; Harold Kramer, business manager, and Laird Gemberling, editor-in-chief, decided at the meeting to raise the yearly subscription price of "The Susquehanna" from a dollar and a half, to two dollars in order to balance the budget for the ensuing year.

Twenty Men Report for First Band Rehearsal

Last Tuesday evening, Susquehanna University Band, under the direction of Professor Elrose Allison, held its first practice, with an attendance of approximately twenty men. Eight new men have enrolled as members, and with only three members of last year left through graduation, all signs point toward a banner year in the history of the band.

On Thursday afternoon, at 4:30, the first field practice was held, when they drilled on tactics, which they will perform for the spectators at our football games.

Plans are already under way for the presentation of several worth-while programs, consisting of concert and military music, as well as several well-known arrangements.

Indoor practice will be held regularly every Tuesday evening, at 7 p. m. in the gymnasium, with at least one field drill each week during the fall season.

PI GAMMA MU WILL MEET MONDAY, OCTOBER THIRD

The initial meeting of the Pennsylvania Gamma Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, National Social Science Honor Society, will be held on Monday evening, October 3, at 6:30 o'clock in room 102 of Gustavus Adolphus.

Notice—Frosh

A meeting of the Freshman Class will be held in the lecture room of Steele Science Hall on Thursday, September 29, at 12:30 o'clock. Harold Kramer, business manager of "The Susquehanna," will explain the business organization of the weekly and Laird Gemberling will give an explanation of the workings of the editorial department. The primary objective is to secure Frosh candidates for the paper who are interested in newspaper work.

Formally opening the college year, Susquehanna University also celebrated her Diamond Jubilee at the exercises in Seibert Hall Chapel on Thursday, September 15. Addresses by Dr. G. Morris Smith, president of the University, and by the Rev. Dr. William M. Rearick, president of the Board of Directors constituted the major part of the ceremony, following which classroom instruction immediately began.

This official opening of Susquehanna's seventy-fifth year of educational activity culminated a three day program of orientation for the freshmen and other new students. An organ prelude by Professor Percy M. Linebaugh, of the Conservatory of Music, and the procession of the faculty, garbed in full academic regalia, impressively opened the exercises.

After an address of welcome to the entire body of students and faculty members, Dr. Smith introduced Dr. Rearick as the principal speaker. Dr. Rearick, who, in addition to being president of the Board of Directors of Susquehanna University, is also president of the Susquehanna Synod and pastor of the Elias Church in Mifflinburg, capably delivered an extemporaneous address in place of the scheduled speaker who was unable to appear.

In developing his topic "What Is Your Purpose in Coming to this Institution?" Dr. Rearick referred to education as the signboard along the highway of life which is to direct the future of the student. He emphasized the necessity of establishing an early objective of attainment.

Prior to the formal opening, the new students were well taken care of during their three day sojourn on the campus. Dr. Smith opened their program of orientation with an official welcome and advised them of their position and opportunities under present economic stress.

Tests were given in Bible by Dr. A. William Ahl, and in intelligence by Professor E. K. Rumberger, while Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, dean of the college, Dr. Paul J. Overbo, and Dr. Franklin G. Williams spoke on the ideals, duties, and regulations of the first year students. The college songs and cheers were learned under the instruction of the faculty.

GREETINGS TO THE CLASS OF 1936

Life for you freshmen has been, lately, just a series of congratulations on the wisdom of your choice in coming to Susquehanna University. Even the upperclassmen are glad, for your sake, that you are here.

Do we appear conceited or egotistical in congratulating you for coming to Susquehanna? Our justification is that we have all been here a number of years, that we have been thru the mill, have made our mistakes but have progressed all the while. We have profited immensely by our college experience. Such being the state of our satisfaction, THE SUSQUEHANNA welcomes you in the name of the student body; we congratulate you on your selection of a college; and we wish you the best of luck as you start to live the best years of your life.

THE UNIVERSE IN ESSENCE

The stars have returned to their orbits and the earthlings have returned to their toil. . . . All of which is another way of saying that the Seniors are about to grasp the coveted place in the sun of the college world and the Freshmen are to grovel in its condescending rays.

For the space of ten months of the year our universities are worlds within the world. Into the academic routine, there creeps—bit by bit—fragments of the struggle that is going on without. Tucked in amongst or obtruding from our Greek and math, our history and science, we find love and ambition, failure and hope, jealousy and courage, laziness and generosity, kindness and cruelty. . . . In short, the very acids of later life that make college the proving ground of youth.

How many hearts must be mended from the amorous wreckage of an inter-fraternity prom? What tales of despair and ambition, jealousy and hope could the mid-year exams tell! How can words portray the courage and cruelty, kindness and conflict of the athletic field! Within the triangle of college drug-store, football field, and girls' dorm, Haroun-Al-Raschid could find a new lease on life.

If you are a Freshman, it is time you began your evolution—through the four years of college life unto the pinnacle of the Senior year. If you are the Upper-Classman, it is time to refine what college has already given you. . . . Life begins anew, in this concentrative world of ours. By you and you alone will the pen of fate be guided.

CAMPUSMANIA

We have returned. . . . Yes, we have returned to the campus where one may wake at six to the weird mournful whistle of Selinsgrove; to the campus bounded by corn-fields; to the beldium of piano, violin, voice, etc. that is housed in the quaint old institution of the Conservatory. . . . But, with Sir Oliver Lodge, may we make the observation that whatever aspects the (collegiate) universe may have, it does not seem to suffer from dullness.

Over in far-away Mt. Airy the theme song is, "How Long Will It Last?" We understand that horn accompaniments to songs in Spanish are not appreciated. . . . The rumor that co-eds will do their own laundry is justly founded on "sweet nothings". . . . If you want to know the first name of the night-watchman, ask a certain resident at Seibert Hall. . . . Recitations on the top floor of G. A. might well be said to be held in pent-house classrooms. . . . And, Oh, what pent-house blues the mid-years could then give us! . . . The down-town circulating libraries seem to be dawning a flourishing business. . . . Of course, you know that the absence of hot water in Hassinger is just a subtle stroke of Prof. Grossman's physical culture. When will the Freshmen raise enough courage to make their "getaway"? . . . It Lukes the Virginia will still have a consistent visitor. . . . "Daisy" Reese is making a Selinsgrove importation in boy-friends. However, there's a distinct improvement in band rehearsals—practice without instruments! . . . If only our Freshmen hadn't taken to heart Maurice Chevalier's idea of an Apache costume! Newcomers in Seibert apparently advance rapidly. . . . A blonde from the faculty discovers that Al Youngerman reminds her of Gary Cooper. . . . How are the peanut plants coming along, Phof. Scudder? . . . "Aw, nuts! . . . Strange, isn't it, that some of our most ravishing co-eds should miss the Star Course? We notice that hockey is well enjoyed by occupants of corner rooms. . . . A young man from Lehigh is making in co-education and keeping a card-index file of his subjects. . . . The attempt by a certain young lady to substitute letter-writing for journalism has failed. She is now carrying both but prefers the former unpublished, please! . . . "The Inside Ear" reports that the next catalog will have a cover in "colors of a plate of Hobart Hot Ice-cream. But won't someone please pit out the cherries!"

Banquet Given by Joint Y's to Frosh

Freshmen Week consisted of several important events under the direction of the Y. W. and the Y. M. C. A. The "get-together" party, September 12, opened the week's activities for the freshmen. At this the "infant" additions to Susquehanna were each given a bootee with their last names written thereon, to be supplied later with first names. Games, songs, dancing, and refreshments made the freshmen feel that they were indeed welcome to this campus.

The banquet served in Horton Dining Hall September 13, was a big success. William Morrow was the toastmaster. He had some very clever jokes to pass on to the new students. Dr. Ahl was the speaker for the evening, and his words were truly inspiring. He urged new students to join the Y. W. and the Y. M. C. A. as they were two of the most helpful organizations on this campus.

Wednesday was marked by two very successful events: first, the "Big-Sister" tea. All the "big-sisters" brought their "little-sisters" and served them with tea and cookies. Margaret Ide and Ruth Bergstresser poured; second, "The Trail of an Inactive Girl". She was Pauline Crow, and was condemned for her inactivity and her procrastination by all the organizations on the campus. The judge sentenced her to membership in one half the organizations represented and to pay one year's dues in advance.

Pre-Theological Club Holds First Meeting

The first regular meeting of the Pre-Theological Club of Susquehanna University for the 1932-1933 term was held in room 205 of G. A. Hall on September 24 at seven fifteen o'clock.

The meeting was opened with devotions in charge of the President, Edwin Clapper. Dr. A. William Ahl, Faculty Advisor, welcomed the new members to the Club, and explained the aims and purposes of the organization to them.

Ernest Huston, Chairman of the Program Committee, then took charge and presented three speakers—Harold Rowe, Kenneth Anderson, and Robert Clark—who each talked concerning the three Fundamentals of Religion. After these talks a general discussion of the subjects produced many fine thoughts, and the arguments brought forth by the question "Should Conscience be a guide in our lives" were particularly helpful.

Both old and new members reluctantly terminated this interesting discussion and the meeting adjourned with the praying of the Lord's Prayer.

Recognition Service Held by Y. W. C. A.

Recognition Service of the Young Women's Christian Association was held September 21, 1932, in the chapel at Seibert Hall.

Hazle Naught, the pianist, opened the Candle Light Ceremony by playing the hymn, "Lead on, O King Eternal". The leader, Ruth Bergstresser, read passages of Scripture, while Esther Geisel, the newly elected president of the Y.W.C.A., prayed and lit the candles of the members of the Y. W. Cabinet. These members went among the audience lighting their candles, then everyone marched out on the terrace in front of Seibert Hall and sang "Follow the Glean", which was followed by the Mizpah Benediction.

GIRLS TRAVEL EXTRA MILEAGE ON HIKE TO MILL

Seibert Hall girls hiked to Renning's Mill on September 17, after leaving themselves to the extent of five extra miles. There they were supposed to use stepping stones to reach the mill on the island, but rain storms had hidden the stones and the girls had to wade across the stream. The lunch consisted of delicious food prepared by Mrs. Humphries, with candied apples for desert.

CO-EDS LEAD VESPER SERVICE

Vesper services were in charge of Esther Geisel Sunday evening. The subject was "Learning Religion from a Famous American", and parts of the life of Russell Conwell were given. Freda Stephens read a resume' of his Woodruff was elected president of the board of trustees of the Selinsgrove State Colony for Epileptics at its August meeting. The vacancy was made by the death of the late president, Judge B. F. Harley, of Selinsgrove.

Besides taking deep interest in the colony since its establishment, Dr. Woodruff was one of the outstanding citizens of Selinsgrove, taking a great interest in all projects for the welfare of the community. He was also a former member of the Legislature.

BUDDY ROGERS IN PERSON

AT ROLLING GREEN PARK

Formal announcement was made Saturday night by George D. Wilmer, manager of Rolling Green Park, that Buddy Rogers, celebrated Paramount movie star, and His Band have been secured for concert and dance on Wednesday, September 28th.

Rogers and his orchestra are leaving New York City for only four days and Rolling Green was fortunate enough to secure him for one of these days. It will be his first appearance in this section of the state and a record-breaking crowd is expected. This will be without a doubt the highest-priced attraction ever brought to this vicinity.

Buddy Rogers needs no introduction to the movie-going public and his appearance, in person, here will be a gala occasion. The film star who has been swinging the baton before his orchestra in one of Gotham's leading hostilities for the past year, is himself a musical and a master of several instruments.

Buddy and His Band will give a concert early in the evening of Wednesday September 28th, in the Strand Theatre, under a special arrangement with J. M. Blanchard, city manager. This concert will be from 7 to 8 o'clock and will be presented in conjunction with the regular movie show. The idea of this concert is to give as many people as possible the opportunity to see the movie favorite. Dancing will prevail at Rolling Green from 9 to 1 o'clock.

AMUSEMENTS

Tonight, "The Washington Masquerade" with Lionel Barrymore as a respected attorney, who goes wrong, will be shown for the last time.

John Barrymore plays a great role in "State's Attorney" which is the attraction for Wednesday night. "County Hospital" a Laurel-Hardy comedy will precede the feature.

On Thursday evening, be sure to see Jean Harlow, the platinum blonde, in "Red-Headed Woman".

Friday night, Jimmy Cagney will be featured in "Winner Take All" one of the fastest, laugh-provoking pictures on the screen.

Saturday's attraction is "The Rider of Death Valley" with Tom Mix and his horse, Tony.

Next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Jack Gilbert will be seen as a chauffeur in "Downstairs".

DR. WOODRUFF ELECTED PRESIDENT OF TRUSTEES FOR STATE EPILEPTIC COLONY

A prominent member of Susquehanna University, Dr. John L. Woodruff was elected president of the board of trustees of the Selinsgrove State Colony for Epileptics at its August meeting. The vacancy was made by the death of the late president, Judge B. F. Harley, of Selinsgrove.

Besides taking deep interest in the colony since its establishment, Dr. Woodruff was one of the outstanding citizens of Selinsgrove, taking a great interest in all projects for the welfare of the community. He was also a former member of the Legislature.

Captains of Spring Sports Announced

Three Seniors, One Junior, Will Lead Teams: Two Captains Chosen For Track Squad

The athletic officials have recently released the names of the captains who will lead Susquehanna's spring sport teams through the 1933 season. Hugh Brininger, of McClure, has been chosen baseball captain; in track, John Meyers, of State College, and William Swann, of Milheim, will serve as co-captains and Jerauld Schlegel, of Thompson, will lead the Orange and Maroon tennis team through its spring campaign.

Captain Brininger will enter his fourth year under the tutelage of Coach Ullery. He is a right-handed hurler and two seasons ago entered baseball's mythical hall of fame when he pitched a "no-hit and no-run" game over Moravian College.

Varsity lettermen in track honored John Meyers and William Swann, who have been the leading point gatherers on Coach Grossman's cinder-path artists for the past three seasons. It was Meyers who thrilled the crowd at the annual Central Pennsylvania Collegiate track conference of 1931, when he ran the hundred yard dash in 9.8 seconds. Besides being Susquehanna's best century man, he is also a steady winner in the 220, 440, broad jump and low hurdles.

Swann will likewise enter his fourth year as a trackman. He and Meyers have been battling for high scoring honors through their college career. During the past season, Swann carried a new record for himself in the broad jump besides winning consistently in the 880, 440, low and high hurdles.

Jerauld Schlegel has been chosen to guide the destinies of the tennis team. Captain Schlegel is a three letter man, having won varsity awards by playing end on the football team, jumping center on the basketball team and as member of the tennis team.

Intra-Mural Board Organized for Year

At a recent organization meeting of the Susquehanna University Intra-Mural Board, which governs intra-mural athletics, Robert Sala was elected president; Herbert Hohman, vice president and Donald Henry, secretary.

The representatives on the board from various groups on the campus are: Senior, George Truckenmiller; Junior, Calvin Naugle; Sophomore, Timothy Barnes; Bond and Key, John Meyers; Phi Mu Delta, Jack Petry; Epsilon Sigma, Donald Henry; Phi Lambda Theta, Robert Sala; Theologs, Herbert Hohman and Non-Fraternity, Bruce Worthington.

The president of the board has appointed John Ballentine, Director of Tennis; Hugh Brininger, Director of Golf; Bill Swann, Director of Cross Country; Calvin Naugle, Director of Soccer; William Morrow, Director of Football.

It has been announced that another faculty tennis tournament will get under way in the near future under the direction of Prof. D. Irvin Reitz.

Heads Crusader Eleven

Captain John "Bull" Extrom, who will lead the Orange and Maroon grid squad on the field of battle, when Susquehanna opens the 1932 campaign with Moravian College on Saturday afternoon. "Bull" has been a member of the varsity squad for the past four seasons and played a consistent game at a tackle bench last year. He is a graduate of the Emporium High School where he starred at football and captained the eleven in his senior year. He is a member of the Epsilon Sigma Fraternity.

New Football Rules For 1932 Explained

Intercollegiate Committee Acts to Protect Players During Present Grid Season

At a recent meeting of the American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee, there were six outstanding rules passed, four of which are designed solely and definitely for the protection and safety of the players. The season of 1931 clearly demonstrated that hazards were creeping into the game, which resulted in many unnecessary deaths and injuries.

The principal rule changes are enumerated here so that when the opening whistle ushers in Susquehanna's 1932 gridiron season, the readers will be fully familiar with the game.

A. Rule 5, Section 2, now permits a player withdrawn from the game to return at any time except in the quarter in which he is withdrawn. Substitutions may be made only when time is out for some other purposes, except for the replacement of an injured player.

B. Rule 5, Section 3, now requires outside padding on certain protective equipment, prohibits hard knee and elbow pads, and specifies that all players must wear soft knee pads.

C. Five players of the team receiving a kick-off or a free kick are required to remain within five yards of their restraining line until the kick is actually made. (The receiving team may signal for a fair catch and thus be protected from interference even though the kicking team is eligible to recover the ball.)

D. Under the new provisions of Rule 7, Section 7, the ball becomes dead automatically when any portion of the player in possession of it, except hands or feet, touches the ground. This does not apply to the holder of the ball in a place-kick.

E. Under Rule 10, Section 1, Article 5, the use of the flying block and the flying tackle are forbidden.

F. Players on defense are allowed to use the palms (only) of their hands above the shoulders of opponents to ward off or push them in order to get at the ball or the player carrying it. Striking with the hands on head, neck or face of an opponent is prohibited.

Opening Football Game With Moravian College Should be Strong Test

Moravian College comes here next Saturday to open the grid season for the Crusaders and the Orange and Maroon is planning on starting the season off with a victory. Moravian is new to our schedule and may offer a tough battle. Due to deaths of two of their men several years ago, they had discontinued football, but they revived the game there last year. Coach Finn, former Villanova star, has thirty-five of last year's squad of thirty-six back with him this year, besides several high and prep school stars who entered this year.

This year's team is built around Captain Waldron, flashy halfback, who has been making sensational runs in scrimmages. In their opening game with Franklin and Marshall, they displayed a fine aerial attack and were constantly fighting for every inch they gained. In view of these facts, Moravian should give the Crusaders a hard battle on the gridiron next Saturday.

—Come out and see the opening grid battle with Moravian Saturday.

FACULTY RECEPTION HELD IN
On Thursday evening, September 15, the annual Faculty Reception was held in Horton Dining Room, Seibert Hall. The room was simply but effectively decorated with seasonal flowers. The receiving line was composed of Dr. and Mrs. G. Morris Smith, Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, and Miss Naomi K. Hade. They welcomed other faculty members, old students, and new, with the hope that this would be their best year at Susquehanna. Refreshments were served buffet style.

Veterans, New Candidates, Shape Up Well; Five Injuries May Affect Early Games

The Crusaders completed a rather hard week of practice by ending up with a regulation game between the Orange and Maroon teams on University Field on Friday afternoon. The return of eleven letter men to the ranks points to a successful season for Coach Ullery and his Crusaders. This year's team will be built around Captain Ex-ton, Tice, Sullivan, and Eisenhower, tackles; Kramer, Carmichael and Schoffstahl, guards; Fisher at center; Schlegel, end; and Meyers, Martinec, Hanna, Wasilewski, Rishel, Walsh, Krear and Carl, backs, all remaining from last season's squad.

The Freshmen are well represented on this year's squad and offering much competition to last year's veterans. Sassaman, an All-State back from Williamsport, showed up great in Friday's game, both by his running and punting. William Wasilewski, a brother of Konstanty Wasilewski, of last year's squad, showed up well in his offensive work.

Rishel, Tice, Sullivan Fanti, and Van-Nuys are out on injuries sustained last week, but may be able to enter the line-up on Saturday.

A play-by-play description of Friday's game follows:

First Quarter

Sassaman kicked off for the Orange team to the Maroon twenty yard line, where it was caught by W. Wasilewski and returned to the 25. On an attempted end run, K. Wasilewski was thrown for a loss of five yards. Martinec punted from his own 15-yard line, the ball rolling to the Orange 20 yard line. Meyers was held for no gain on an end run. Sassaman punts to the Maroon 45, and Wasilewski returned it to the 50. Walsh makes 3 yards through tackle. Orange was penalized for off-sides. The Maroon then drew a penalty for holding. Martinec hits the line for two yards. Walsh adds another two yards. Martinec punted to the Orange 40 yard line. Hanna is sent through the line for nine yards, but the Orange are penalized fifteen yards for holding. Sassaman punts to Maroon 40 yard line and is returned to the Orange 45 by Wasilewski, as the quarter ended.

Martinec runs the ball out of bounds on the Orange 44. B. Wasilewski was held for no gain. Martinec passes, but it is incomplete. Martinec punts out of bounds on the Orange 1 yard line. Meyers skirts right end for two yards. Sassaman is sent through the line for eight yards, just missing a first down by a foot. Sassaman stands on his own goal line and punts, the ball getting away from Wasilewski and rolling to the Maroon 15 yard line. Walsh and Martinec make two yards through the line. Martinec punts to the Orange 25 yard line, where it was caught by Meyers and returned to the 40. Hanna gets six yards through the line. Carl makes a pass to Meyers, but it is incomplete. Sassaman punts to Maroon 5 yard line. Hanna hits line for 1 yard. Orange off-sides. B. Wasilewski knives through tackle for 9 yards. Martinec adds three yards, but Walsh is held to no gain. Wasilewski lost two yards on an attempted run around right end. Martinec punted to the Orange 30 and Meyers returned it 5 yards. Sassaman is held for no gain. Two passes were incomplete and Sassaman punted to the Maroon 35. Wasilewski returned it for 15 yards as the half ended.

MISS EVELYN ALLISON

RETURNS FROM YEARS

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

The Scottish Lake Country, so well known to students of English literature. After selecting a route she returned to London to do some sight-seeing. One place of popular interest that she saw was the Shakespeare country, Stratford-on-Avon.

She sailed from Southampton, August 30, on the S. S. Minnetonka and docked in New York, August 29. The chronology of her trip abroad follows:

October 23, 1931—Embarked from New York on the S. S. Westernland.

November 2 to June 25, 1932—Attended classes in the Sorbonne, University of Paris.

July 1 to August 1—Instructor in Methodist War Memorial, Chateau-Thierry.

August 1 to 20—Touring in France and England.

Miss Allison is the daughter of Dr. Herbert A. Allison, head of the History Department in our University.

canals are streets and gondolas, motor-boats, and long narrow barges are the means of transportation.

From Venice we sailed to Brindisi, the southern terminus of the old Appian Way in Italy, and from thence to Athens by way of the Corinthian Gulf and the Canal. The first object of interest to attract the attention of the visitor in Athens is the Acropolis. When standing at the base of the Acropolis, a person can have a good view of the Hill of the Muses, the Prison of Socrates, the Pnyx, the Hill of the Nymphs, the Temple of Theseum, the Agora, Mars Hill, and of the city proper. We entered the Acropolis through the massive and beautiful gateway called the Propylaea, then to the Temple of Nike, then to the Parthenon, and finally to the Erechtheum with its caryatides supporting and adorning one of the porches. Earthquakes have shaken the Acropolis, armies have plundered it, so that today many call it the monarch of all ruins. Days may be spent profitably on the Acropolis. Among other places visited in Greece were Daphne, Eleusis, Megara, Cenchrea, and old and New Corinth.

From Piraeus we sailed for Constantinople. Sailing on the Aegean Sea and through the Dardanelles gives the voyager special historical interests. Around these bodies of water clusters so much of legendary history, and of the achievements of ancient, medieval, and modern civilization. The thing that impressed me most in Constantinople was the modern appearance of the city. The red fez was nowhere to be seen and veiled women were rare exceptions. People generally were dressed like western Europeans. Of all the Mediterranean countries visited, Turkey and Italy give by far the greatest promise for the future.

We next visited the island of Rhodes, famous for its Colossus and the island of Cyprus of special interest to the student of the Bible. We landed at Beirut, Syria, just one month after leaving home and after having traveled over eight thousand miles by boat, train, and automobile. For the next three weeks we traveled by automobile, train, donkey and camel through Syria, Palestine, and Egypt. Of special interest were the Lebanon Mountains, the massive ruins of Baalbek, Damascus, and numerous sites and scenes in northern, central, and southern Palestine. What impresses the traveler most are the common poverty of the land, the backward state of the population, the universal squalor and filth, the incessant contentions among the different classes of people, and the fact that the whole land must be heavily policed. I shall not soon forget my visit to Cairo, the Pyramids, the Sphinx, the Museum, the Citadel, and the Nile Valley.

We traveled by train from Cairo to the old historical city of Alexandria. Here we boarded the boat for Syracuse, Sicily. We saw Mt. Aetna smoking and Mt. Stromboli in action during the nighttime. The display of fireworks around the crater was a most interesting and unique spectacle. We landed at Genoa, the birthplace of Columbus, visited Milan to see the famous cathedral and Leonardo da Vinci's painting, "The Last Supper," in the Church of Santa Maria della Grazia, and then left to see the "Lion at Lucerne." We were especially interested in such places around the Lake of the Four Cantons as the Oxenstrasse, the Schiller Rock, Tell's Chapel, the Alt-dorf as the scene of the legendary exploit of Tell's shooting the apple from his boy's head commemorated by a beautiful bronze statue. At Interlaken we saw the Jungfrau with its summit covered with perpetual snow. Bern, Burgdorf, Baden Baden, Worms and Wiesbaden we found sufficiently attractive to evoke a desire some day in the future to visit them again. No trip to Europe is complete without the boat ride on the Rhine between Mainz and Cologne, a distance of 115 miles. The Rhine River is different from any other river I have ever seen. I can easily understand now just why the German people have so much love for the Rhine.

A trip through France and a two-day visit to Paris are all the time the schedule allowed for sightseeing in that country. We crossed the Channel from Calais to Dover and from thence by train to London. Here we saw the Parliament Buildings, Westminster Abbey, the Buckingham Palace, St. James' Palace, the Tower of London, St. Paul's Cathedral, the British Museum, Old Curiosity Shop, and numerous other places of historical interest. Trips were made to Hampton Court, Windsor Castle, Eton College, Stoke Poges, the Shakespeare Country, Warwick and Kenilworth Castles and Runnymede.

We next visited the English Lake country immortalized by Southey, De-Quincey, Wordsworth, Coleridge and John Ruskin. We saw Edinburgh, Abbotsford, Melrose and Dhyburg Abbeys, the Trossachs, Glasgow, and the Burns Country including Ayr, Kilmarnock, Mossiel, and Dumfries. We took a steamer at Stranraer for Belfast, Ireland. The most remarkable natural phenomenon I saw on the entire trip was the Giant's Causeway, a few miles from Portrush, Ireland. It is a miracle in stone. A person finds it hard to believe that the Causeway is the work of nature. A visit to the Donegal District of northern Ireland and to the old historic city of Londonderry completed my rambles in Europe and the Mediterranean Countries.

struction of Professor Elrose L. Allison, and the use of the library was discussed by Mrs. Martha Dodson, Librarian.

The introductory education of the yearlings was further rounded out by Mr. Joseph Maimon, president of the Men's Student Council, who enlightened them concerning the matter of Susquehanna traditions and freshman customs.

Social relations were under the direction and encouragement of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. These friendly and helpful organizations arranged a general get-together in the Seibert Hall Social Rooms on the first night, and conducted a dinner program on the following evening. Mr. William Morrow acted as toastmaster, introducing Dr. Ahl who contributed cheerful and instructive advice to the newcomers.

Naomi K. Hade, Dean of Women, addressed the residents of Seibert Hall on the day of formal opening, following her return from abroad.

At ten minutes after ten o'clock on that Thursday morning, activity was once more in the hands of the faculty, and Susquehanna's seventy-fifth year of instruction had begun.

DEAN OF WOMEN ATTENDED SUMMER SESSION AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY

Speaks on Highlights of European Trip at Chapel Exercises, Last Wednesday; Homeward Journey Delayed by Storms

During the past summer Miss Naomi K. Hade, Dean of Women at the University, attended the American Women's Summer Session at Oxford University, England. This European trip included side trips to many sections of England. Last Wednesday morning Miss Hade gave a short talk in chapel, giving the students a synopsis of the most interesting features included in her tour.

The following review is taken directly from material given to a "Susquehanna" staff representative:

"We landed at Plymouth, England, going from there to the Cathedral Towns. First, to Exeter, seeing the famous cathedral and Moll's Coffee House, the rendezvous of famous Elizabethans, including Sir Walter Raleigh. In one room of this coffee shop are the chairs of the knights, and above each one the coat of arms. There is a bow window of original panes of glass, a famous remnant of those days. The glass is irregularly cut, small panes, each one an individual. Next, to Salisbury, which has the longest cathedral in England and the highest spire. Shakespeare is supposed to have acted in the garden of the Crown Hotel in Salisbury. There are many other literary associations in this town. We made a trip to Stone Henge, which is within a stone's distance of Salisbury. Next to Winchester, where we saw relics of King Arthur's Court, including a large round table attributed to King Arthur as the original Round Table. Other features of interest were Jane Austen's house and memorial tablet, and the tomb of Isaac Walton."

"Finally we arrived at Oxford for the American Women's Summer Session. This included a trip to Stratford-on-Avon, a performance of Twelfth Night there. Shakespeare's birthplace and tomb. Ann Hathaway's Cottage, and the Stratford Church. Also John Harvard's house, a trip to Stone Poges, Elton, Windsor Castle, a trip to Bath and the famous baths where we were the guests of the English Speaking Union. A later trip included Sulgrave Manor, the ancestral home of George Washington. Blenheim Palace, a reception and an out-door performance of Gilbert Murray's Iphigenia.

"From Oxford to London, visiting the theatres, Tate Galleries, where we saw Hogarth's 'Rake's Progress,' pictures also by Blake, Rossetti, Turner, and many others. In London, visitors see about the same things. Dr. Dunkelberger has mentioned the points of interest in his talk. In addition we saw the Peter Pan statue in Kensington Garden, and went on Bank Holiday to Madame Tousseau's Waxworks mentioned as a spectacle in 'David Copperfield.'

"Into the Lake Country to Windsor, mere, by boat to Ambleside, then to Wordsworth's Country, Dove Cottage, and Keswick. From London to Canterbury to visit the cathedral, then to Dover, and a smooth Channel crossing to Ostend. From there to Cologne, by boat down the Rhine to Mainz, then (Concluded on Page 4)

Worthington Follows Maimon as President Of Student Council

Dockey Elected to Fill in Vice Presidency. Election Tomorrow in Chapel to Fill Vacancy

Joseph Allen Maimon resigned as president of the Men's Student Council at a meeting of that body, which was held last Friday evening. He was succeeded by Bruce Worthington, who had been the vice-president of the council, and according to parliamentary custom was the only member eligible for the office.

Selon Dockey was elected to fill the office of vice-president, which was vacated by the elevation of Worthington to the presidency. An election will be held tomorrow morning after the chapel exercises with Herbert Snell and Alexander Youngerman the competing candidates from the non-fraternity for the seat left vacant by the withdrawal of Maimon from the council.

Susquehanna to Lose Theological Seminary

A merger of the Susquehanna Theological Seminary with that of Gettysburg Seminary, Hartwick Seminary at Brooklyn, and the Mt. Airy Seminary at Philadelphia, is recommended in a report by a committee of the United Lutheran Church in America, following a study of the question for the past two years.

The report will be presented at the biennial convention of the church at Philadelphia, October 12 to 19. The committee proposes reducing the number of seminaries from eleven to four in all parts of the United States. This will eliminate seven, including that at Susquehanna.

The seminary committee suggests no location, except to recommend that the seminaries not be in towns where there are church colleges, which would include Susquehanna and Gettysburg.

Fairchild in Select Group at Princeton

Word has been received from Princeton University that Lee M. Fairchild, a graduate of Susquehanna University last June, was one of sixteen students out of seventy-seven in the Theological Department of that institution whose college preparation in Greek omits him from continued study of the language.

While on Susquehanna's campus Mr. Fairchild was quite active in extra-curricular activities, holding offices in the M. C. A., various fraternal organizations, and also participated in athletics. He was a variety letterman in track and during his Sophomore year was a member of the relay team which represented Susquehanna at the Annual Penn Relay Carnival.

Mr. Fairchild's home is at Canton, Penna., and during the past summer was a student at the University of Alabama.

Summer Marriage of Herman-Steininger is Surprise to Friends

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Madeline Steininger, to William Herman came as a complete surprise to their many friends on this campus. The wedding took place at LaPlata, Maryland, on July 11, at the personage of the Rev. W. McDonald, Methodist minister. The couple are living at Middleburg. The groom, a graduate of Susquehanna University in the class of '31, is a member of the faculty of the high school. The bride was a member of the class of '34, and an active in Sigma Alpha Iota. Mr. Herman was a member of the Bond and Key Club, and was very active in athletics while a student here.

VACANCIES FILLED ON WOMEN'S STUDENT COUNCIL

At a meeting of the Women's Student Council last Wednesday afternoon, two new members, Margaret Williams, of Omega Delta Sigma, and Helen Hall, of the Theological Seminary in '26, were formally inducted into the train crash near Montgomery. While attending the University, Rev. Schwirlian was coach of debates for one year, and was very successful in this capacity.

After one unsuccessful attempt, the Freshmen staged all upper-class predictions by staging their getaway, last Tuesday evening. More than seventy of the eighty-five members of the Freshman Class left the campus stealthily and retired to the Pennsylvania Railroad depot on North High street.

At the election which followed, these officers were selected: Robert Sassaman, of Williamsport, president; John McGuire, of Ashland, vice-president; David Evans, of Somerville, N. J., treasurer; Anna Mease, of Selingsgrove, secretary.

The getaway was a huge success from a Freshman standpoint, because their rendezvous was unknown to the Sophomores until after the meeting was adjourned.

After the election, the Freshmen hurried to Reichley's for a celebration, and then they tried in vain to crash the gate at the Stanley Theater. Finally, the "yearlings" headed for the campus, plugging boxes and signs in the middle of the road, and concluding their celebrations with a few cheers.

The first attempt to stage the getaway was foiled by the Men's Student Council, when several members of the Class of '36 were called before that body for the breaking of Frosh rules, but the success of the second try made up doubly for the failure of the initial attempt.

The feminine element played a conspicuous part, inasmuch as Anna Mease was the only one successfully to crash by theater-guardian Art Bolig.

Ladies' Auxiliary Hold First Meeting of Year

Initial fall session of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Susquehanna University was held in Seibert Hall parlors Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The program arranged by Mrs. D. Edwin Ditzler consisted of piano solos by Mrs. Margaret Benner Burns, dance numbers by Jack Potteiger, and songs by the vocal trio of Mrs. William G. Phillips, Miss Aberdeen Phillips, and Mrs. Luthier D. Grossman.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has accomplished much for Susquehanna University. They gave five hundred dollars for redecorating the rooms of the dormitory, and also a scholarship, which aids a worthy student each year.

REV. KELLER ELECTED TO WATSON TOWN PASTORATE

Rev. Eugene S. Keller was recently elected pastor of the First Lutheran Church at Watson town. He was graduated from Susquehanna University with the class of 1926. His first pastorate was at Minersville, where he served six and a half years. Mrs. Keller was also graduated from Susquehanna University. She was formerly Miss Bessie Pettit.

With a series of line bucks and flashy field running by Rishel, Susquehanna's powerful grid machine came from behind in the last quarter to score a touchdown and win their first game of the 1932 season over Moravian College on the University Field by a score of 12-7.

The way was paved for victory in the second quarter when the Crusaders started a fifty-two yard drive from their own forty-eight yard line and with a series of line smashes carried the oval to the Moravian eight yard marker. The ball was then given to "Bob" Sassaman, former captain of Williamsport High, who carried the pigskin through tackle for Susquehanna's first score of the season.

However, Moravian wasn't to be beaten so easily when they came back in the third quarter full of life and took a one point lead on a beautifully executed pass from Surran to Waldron, who ran thirty yards to score their only tally. Surran added the extra point on a drop-kick.

Susquehanna's winning score came in the fourth period when Culligan fumbled on his own thirty-five yard line and Captain Extrom immediately recovered. Meyers, Sassaman and Martinec carried the ball to the fifteen yard line where Rishel broke loose and scored the winning points.

Captain Extrom and Russell Carmichael were the outstanding linemen, while Sassaman, Martinec, Hanna, Meyers, and Rishel provided most of the necessary yardage in the Crusader's backfield. Martinec took care of the punting assignment and averaged nearly forty-six yards. His outstanding kick came in the fourth period, when he stood on his own goal line and kicked out of bounds on the Moravian eighteen yard stripe.

Play by Play

Meyers kicked off for Susquehanna and was returned by Waldron to the twenty-five. Moravian was held for three downs and then punted to the fifty. A pass from Meyers to Hanna was good for twenty yards. Another attempted forward pass was intercepted by Geyer of Moravian. Waldron and Leonard registered a first down, but were penalized fifteen yards for holding. Solits punted out of bounds on his own twenty-four. Martinec, Meyers and Hanna gained eight yards and were then penalized five yards. A pass from Meyers to Hanna was good for eight yards and a first down. Hanna then passed over the goal line on an (Concluded on Page 4)

S. Walter Foulkrod, '31 Elected Grand Officer of Phi Lambda Theta

S. Walter Foulkrod, a member of the graduating class of 1931, and the local chapter of Phi Lambda Theta, has been recently elected Grand President of the National Chapter of Phi Lambda Theta at their convocation held at Beta Chapter at Kansas State Agricultural College.

While on the campus, Mr. Foulkrod was a very prominent man, being president of his class for four years, president of the Debating Society, '29-'30; member of the Varsity Debating Team for four years and Captain in his Senior year; President of Tau Kappa Alpha, '30-'31; and a member of Pi Gamma Mu.

"Wally," as he was known to his many friends, is now entering his second year at Temple Law School at Philadelphia.

Conservatory Graduate Booked For Opera Tour

Miss Amanda Brown, a student at Susquehanna Conservatory of Music in 1905, renowned soprano singer, has recently been booked for an opera tour to South America.

Miss Brown has been quite active in the professional field for a number of years, and in recent years, has frequently been heard broadcasting from some of the more important radio stations.

DOLLARS TO YOU

"Patronize THE SUSQUEHANNA advertisers and help keep your paper on a weekly basis", is a slogan which deserves the serious consideration of every student on the campus during the present school year.

All those who are more or less closely connected with the destiny of THE SUSQUEHANNA know the serious financial difficulties that dogged its footsteps last year. In fact, several issues had to be omitted during the last semester in order that the paper might complete the year without going "in the red".

This fall the business manager, Harold Kramer, returned to a serious situation. To stay in the weekly class seemed out of the question. First, the Electoral Committee raised the subscription price to two dollars, in the belief that such an increase would not be felt to a great extent by the students and at the same time the additional revenue derived would put the paper on a more sound financial basis; then, Edwin Clapper with his assistants began soliciting for advertising, the one factor which would decide the matter.

The results were unfavorable, although some of the local merchants cooperated to the limit of their ability by purchasing additional space, as was evidenced in the first issue. Advertising is to these merchants a business proposition. Only if they receive the patronage of the Susquehanna undergraduates, will their advertising in THE SUSQUEHANNA take on a definite value.

The managers on the business staff have a number of merchants in Sunbury and Selinsgrove, since the publication of the first issue, but have failed in their endeavor to secure sufficient ads to make up for the advertising space which has been withdrawn during the past month.

In this edition is a complete list of THE SUSQUEHANNA'S advertisers. Read the advertisements and support the business men who are most interested in the students of Susquehanna University. You cannot lose by it!

HISTORY

Blazing heat of tropical suns, icy blasts accompanying Norse Mariners, naked savages pounding tom-toms with savage abandon and courtiers overburdened with cloths playing soft and delicate music on fragile piquets, barbaric communities living only for the primitive needs of the day and civilization groaning under the weight of elaborate ritual,
 Virgins and courtesans, swashbucklers and dervishes of every faith; fighters that carry their bloody conquest of the sword over seas and continents, statesmen that intrigue as zealously in a similar lust for power; bright red of blood-tinged suns, foamy blue of unfathomable seas, deep shadows and steel gray of assassin's knives, a potpourri of colors splashing gaudy landmarks in the evolution of man.

History, the mending story of human progress and human fertilities. History, peopled with men and women long rotted into dust but pulsating with the life of their surging hates, loves, fears, ambitions. The book of fate, a study that continually fascinates the student and enthralls the interest of the casual reader by the glamour of its pages, *clated with his father in the building and contracting business.

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the lowdown on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you.

We dedicate the following lines from the Arabic to a certain sun of Steele and G. A. classrooms, Sweethearts, like wives, often forsake virtue's path of monogamy. "Rahim, the old astronomer, is wise... He knows a comet's path across the skies: And yet knows not his wife's accustomed flight; To meet her lover in the starry night."

We send our congratulations to the Freshman who said he was looking for the paper when he caught one morning on the third floor of Seibert Hall.

Several collegians have enrolled in the Sunbury Fire Department. . . . Glenn Blair has not breakfasted since arrival. And, by the way, did you know that his brother's real name is not May but Sylvanus? Both brothers became uncles since arrival at school. . . . Can the fact that our registrar was seen with a handsome young man in her arms (in the dining hall) have anything to do with the fact that she failed to respond to her first recitation of the year? . . . The "Inside Ear" authentically reports that several of the pictures in a G. A. classroom will be purchased by the Gillette Company. . . . America smokes 120 billion cigarettes a year. . . . The girls just had to be in at ten-thirty. . . . Democrats are writing Hoover a campaign song, "California Here I Come, Right Back Where I Started From". . . . Herb Snell is carrying the heaviest schedule—thirty-eight hours. . . . Saturday demonstrated convincingly that Susquehanna is a place where a mother can send her boy to study football. . . . Resolved: That there are too many people looking at the world through blue spectacles. . . . Zimlick considers Hollywood Seibert's newest arrival. . . . Al Youngerman and numerous Hassinger Hallsters, clad in pajamas and bathrobes, during wind and rain, pursued the Selinsgrove freshman thirteen miles, deciding to pass it but then reflecting that, after all the smoke-eaters were leading the way. . . . Who will send "Dottie" Clegg roses this year? . . . "It's knowledge we're after," say certain comely wenches as they wind their way to the library night after night. . . . A Prof. is still searching for a man who can read Ah! his handwriting. . . . The car that last year turned around on a dime now turns around on a nickel. Kenneth Anderson, of the "City of Petersburg," is a firm believer in the "back to the farm" movement. . . . Useless statistics: Prof. Scudder fell off his teaching platform eleven times in one period.

We wonder if the Moravian full-back has found out what his him in the second quarter when "BULL" Exton broke through the line and pinned him to the ground.

The programmes at the game came in handy to the fellow who covered his head with one to keep the rain from spilling his curls.

The opening whistle brought out a great uproar of whispers. The upper-class members showed keen meaning of the word "cheer" by this time. If the Freshmen do not, they will soon be taught. The usual pep meeting was omitted on Friday evening.

The band showed up well on the field drills on Saturday and surprised the crowd by not playing "Roll On Mississippi, Roll On".

The Haverford team should be the second opponent added to the Crusader's list of victories.

twen Hunlock Creek and Salisbury is becoming shorter and shorter. . . .

Pen Portrait

She is a blonde often dated by the literati. . . . Very blue eyes and just the possibility of a double chin. Taken a very good picture; neither drinks nor smokes and is well-liked by the faculty. Probably the girl who takes life too seriously yet reads Elinor Glyn in secret. She was born in the coal regions. . . . She is not a "dangerous" woman, but there are probably susceptible men. . . . By Wenckell

Seibert Hall Echoes

Good old Seibert opened another year to look forward to, what with new countenances taking the place of the old gang. . . . seems mighty queer to some of us. . . . "dashing" Freshmen boys have the reputation of sending sweets to our inmates by way of introduction. . . . then there was the one about the Frosh girl who came up to a Soph and related that it was reported the Frosh were having their Get-away and she guessed she'd have to go. . . . last Saturday night one of our outstanding Senior girls went into the A & P store to do a little shopping, and suddenly, a voice from the rear calls "mamma"—imagine her embarrassment. . . . So many of our Frosh girls have that wish-I-were home feeling—Rules, m'dear, Rules. . . . Pat Huber has quite a weakness for white shoes, "purty" white shoes—we wonder if they get by as Evans? . . . Good old Star Course appeared at the right time this year—has it ever failed? . . . Frosh date rules off for one night. . . . And did you hear about the Dean's dance?—very exciting—for the Freshmen. . . . Peg Ide has a weakness for cream colored roadsters. . . . Star Dust is a thing of the past—Dot Hutter and Maimon have a new theme song, "We Just Couldn't Say Good-Bye". . . . Western Maryland has its attractions—ask Louise Mehning. . . . Dot Clegg spends her week-ends in Harrisburg when "he" isn't in Selinsgrove. . . . That class of 1932 was a swell class. . . . Ruth Bergstresser knows her business. . . . We just couldn't resist this one—a certain Frosh bought a Freshman English book and made the check payable to "Current Prose". The bank became curious and wished to know whether we had a new addition to the Student Body. . . . Gumby'll sit next time. . . .

SPORT BITS

The Orange and Maroon came through with that final period punch to win on Saturday. That is something that has been lacking for some time. Keep it up.

We wonder if the Moravian full-back has found out what his him in the second quarter when "BULL" Exton broke through the line and pinned him to the ground.

The programmes at the game came in handy to the fellow who covered his head with one to keep the rain from spilling his curls.

The Haverford team should be the second opponent added to the Crusader's list of victories.

AMUSEMENTS

Tomorrow night, Edmund Lowe will give a grand performance in Columbia's production "Attorney for the Defense".

John Bennett in "Week Ends Only" is the feature Thursday evening. Friday night, Ben Lyon will take the leading role in the cinema "By Whose Hand?"

Saturday's attraction will be Tim McCoy in "Cornered". Next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Marion Davis will star in "Blondie of the Follies" Marion and Jimmy Durante do a burlesque of "Grand Hotel".

S. U. PEPYS

With the opening issue it seemed that S. U. Pepys had gone the way of all bad columns, but this week we have a horse of a different color—and perhaps a longer pair of ears. . . . Anyway, plug up your keyholes—Nertz is in again. . . . We leave it to that native ingenuity which Freshmen are supposed to have to figure out our apparently insane title, as it would take too long to again delve into the etymology of said caption. . . .

On the matter of pronunciation, however, we are inclined to be a bit squeamish. . . . How a five-letter word can be pronounced in so many different ways is a bit puzzling, but please don't let us hear "Pep's", "Pips", "Peeples" and other variations. . . . "Pep's" is what we want. . . . It affords a much more suggestive connotation.

But to get down to business—other people's business, of course—we hear that the Freshmen are already contributing assorted surprises. . . . On chivalrous and gastronomical—yearling sent candy to Seibert Hall but it came back to Robert. He sent it again, with the true spirit of an aspiring author. This time no message of rejection was forthcoming. . . . But neither was the candy. . . .

Several Frosh co-eds started out on a get-away a few days early, but presently discovered that they must have their dates mixed. . . . Just a get-away that got-away. . . .

On the night of the real get-away other yearling co-eds detracted a group of sneaking Sophs by leading them a merry chase over town until the real thing was over. . . . Was that Freshman loyalty, or Sophomore appeal? . . . The rest of the Frosh are still wondering from whom they were supposed to be getting away. . . .

A certain young man from New Jersey should be spending more evenings about town this year. . . . The woman in the case has moved from Sunbury to Philadelphia. . . . In case you're interested, he is a Senior and measures about six feet upwards, with his hair combed. . . .

An airplane flight recently raised hopes of a possible double elopement between two or more or less innumerable couples. . . . Alas, it was only our local aviator, accumulating flying hours in a generous mood. . . .

Renovation of Seibert Hall gave employment to several alumni and students this summer. . . . Rumor has it that one of the latter worked overtime embellishing a certain room, whose occupant is no stranger to him. . . .

Believe it and like it! (Perhaps we'll make this a weekly feature)—In pre-war days Susquehanna offered a year's tuition in Latin, Greek, German, French, higher mathematics, rhetoric and logic for $27.00. . . . What war. . . . Oh yes, that was the Civil War! . . .

We nominate to the All-Advertising team the local merchant who supplied megaphones for Saturday's game. . . . The cheering was a great improvement over previous years. . . .

Give up?

Eavesdropping.

POET'S CORNER

Why So Woe-Begone?

Why so woe-begone, sweet maiden,
 Why so woe-begone?
 Have you been by chance passed over
 By a faithless, heartless lover?
 Why so pale and wan?
 Why so woe-begone?
 Why so woe-begone sweet maiden,
 Why so woe-begone?
 Come, dear maid, the you've been jilted
 Here am I, so be not wilted,
 Weak, and pale, and wan,
 And so woe-begone?
 —William Evans.

A little bit o' honey, and a little bit o' sting.
 A little bit o' cryin' thoughts, and some that make one sing.
 A little bit o' happiness, and quite a little bit that's sad.
 Sometimes a little bit o' good, and other times some bad.
 When one is feeling blue, the thing that challenges "Look up!"
 The will to overlook the dregs while drinking from the cup.
 Watching folks writhe in anguish, pale as sharp as any knife.
 Yet seeing beauty, nice things through it all; ah, that is life!
 —Della Torre.

Team Meets Haverford In First Game Away, Saturday, October 8

Saturday, October 8, the Crusaders will journey to Haverford College and participate in the opening game of Haverford's 1932 grid season. Practice at that institution was retarded because of infantile paralysis, and therefore the Orange and Maroon should have the edge. In 1930 Susquehanna upset the dope by holding the strong Haverford team to a scoreless tie and repeated in 1931 by defeating the Scarlet and Black on University Field by a score of 18-0.

Although the Crusaders showed up well in the opening game, there are a few flaws which must be ironed out prior to the Haverford classic. There were no major injuries in the Moravian fray and every man will be available to Coach Ullery in their second game.

Former S. U. Halfback Treated for Hand Injury

George Moser, a graduate of Susquehanna in the Class of '31 and now engaged in selling insurance with the Philadelphia Life Insurance Company, suffered a fracture of a small bone in his right hand while playing football Monday. He played on the Orange and Maroon Varsity for his four years in college, and was one of the best halfbacks to ever wear a Maroon jersey.

Fraternity Row

John Oberdorf was recently elected to fill a vacancy on the Inter-Fraternity Council left vacant by Hollis Muir, '34, who did not return this semester. By this appointment, Oberdorf also becomes chairman of the Inter-Fraternity Ball.

Among the week-end visitors were Dr. I. S. Sassaman and his son Ira Sassaman, 31, Robert Hartman, '32, Donald Leshler, 31, and Bill Roberts, '29. Bill Herman, 31, and Herb Spigelmyer, '32, have been frequent visitors, both having played on the championship Middleburg baseball team during the past summer.

Epsilon Sigma

Walter Wloslowsky and Russell Elsenhower, both members of the Sophomore class, were recently initiated into the brotherhood of the fraternity.

Howard Werts '30, Maurice Sheaffer '32, Charles Shoemaker '29, Byron Haffer ex-'32, and George Kenney ex-'34, visited at the house over the weekend.

Omega Delta Sigma

Miss Enza Wilson, a member of Omega Delta Sigma sorority, visited at Seibert Hall last week-end. Miss Wilson is a teacher of commercial subjects in Lewistown High School.

Members of O. D. S. were pleasantly surprised with the gift of a unique sorority light, which was presented by Elizabeth Vorlage, a member of the class of '32.

ULLERYMEN DEFEAT MORAVIAN IN LAST QUARTER RALLY, 12-7

Meyers received Surran's punt on the thirty-five and carried it to the forty-eight. Martinec rips off two first downs on three tries. Sassaman carries the ball to the eight yard stripe for first down, and then scored on an off-tackle play. His placement for extra punt was short. Conks returned the kick-off to the thirty-five where they lost thirteen yards on two tries and then punted to Susquehanna's thirty. Martinec and Hanna made first down on nice gains through the line. Sassaman breaks loose for nine yards and Hanna makes first down, but Susquehanna was penalized fifteen yards. An exchange of punts gave the Crusaders possession of the ball in mid-field as the half ended.

Meyers returned Surran's kick-off to the forty-four. Decker recovered Sassaman's fumble on the forty yard line. An exchange of punts gave Moravian possession of the ball on Susquehanna's twenty-five. With second down and three to go, Susquehanna's famous forward wall held on their sixteen yard line. Hanna gains twelve yards on a nice run. After Martinec's punt, Moravian made it first down on the fifty. Waldron and Surran gained another first down, but were penalized fifteen yards on the next play. Surran dropped back and heaved a long forward, which was taken on the thirty yard line by Waldron, who raced for their lone tally. Surran drop kicks extra point. Beahm recovered Martinec's fumble on Susquehanna's thirty-five. Moravian then drew a penalty of fifteen yards. A shoestring pass from Surran to Waldron was good for twenty yards, but were held on the fourth down. Sassaman races nine yards as the quarter ended. Rishel, who replaced Hanna, made first down, but on the next play Leonard intercepts Meyers' pass on his own forty. Extrom recovered Culligan's fumble on Moravian's thirty-five. Meyers makes eleven yards and Sassaman and Martinec broke the oval to the fifteen yard stripe. Rishel broke loose on an off-tackle and scored standing up with a beautiful exhibition of field running. Meyers' placement was wide. After the kick-off, Moravian made first down on their own forty. Surran punts to Susquehanna's ten and then Martinec stood on his own goal line and punted out of bounds on Moravian's eighteen. Surran then punted to his own forty. K. Wasilewski and Hanna registered two first downs, and then Rishel and Hanna carried it to the six yard line. Rishel carried the oval to the three yard marker as the game ended.

DEAN OF WOMEN ATTENDED SUMMER SESSION AT OXFORD

(Continued from Page 1) to Heidelberg, the famous university, and castle ruins, on to Nuremberg to the Meisteranger's church, home of Hans Sach, the famous castle. Then to Munich where we heard several operas by Wagner and saw the famous German Museum. From Munich to Salzburg for the music festival which included operas, orchestral concerts with Bruno Walter as conductor; a recital by Josef Levine, and a status opera with the composer in the conductor's box. We stayed two weeks in Salzburg, visiting the famous castle, making a trip to Konigssee, and seeing also an out-door performance of 'Jedermann', produced by Max Reinhardt, who lives near this town. This is extremely crowded in summer and very picturesque with men and women in peasant and native costumes thronging the streets. There are expensive automobiles, bicycles, ox carts, and carriages to be seen on every street at any time.

"From Salzburg to Venice in time for the Regatta. A visit to St. Mark's, the Fine Arts Academy, the Lido, and Doges Palace. Also the famous Titians in the art galleries and churches there. From here by way of Milan to Stresa; a motor trip to Lausanne, where we visited the room in which the famous European Peace conference was held. Next to Montreaux to the Castle of Chillon on Lake Geneva. From here to Paris, where in addition to the usual tourist points of interest we visited the Cite Universilas with the dormitories for Americans, Dutch, Chinese and others, each one patterned after the architecture of its country."

On the return trip the vessel was delayed by severe storms, but Miss Made returned in sufficient time to take up her teaching duties in the English Department of the College and her position as Dean of Women.

SUSQUEHANNA GRID MACHINE ROLLS UP 37-0 VICTORY OVER HAVERFORD

Six Touchdowns Net Largest Crusader Score in Twelve Years; Aerial Attack and Reserve Strength Feature Victory

Piling up a total of 37 points, the largest score made by an Orange and Maroon team since 1920 when they defeated Drexel by a score of 59-0, the Crusaders ran wild over Haverford College with an attack of spinners, reverses, end runs, and forward passes, to turn in their second straight victory of the season.

The Ulferymen immediately took the offense in the first quarter with Meyers, Sassaman, Martinec, and Hanna slashing the Red and Black line for consistent gains, while the strong Susquehanna forward wall was breaking through to break up Haverford's attempts to gain ground.

Both W. Wasilewski and Meyers carried the ball over Haverford's final stripe twice, while Hanna and Walsh accounted for the other pair of six points.

Perhaps the most sensational play of the game came in the final period when Walsh, substituted for W. Wasilewski, took the ball on the enemy's twenty yard line and wormed his way through the entire Haverford team in a spectacular exhibition of broken-field running.

Susquehanna put across its first touchdown just before the close of the first quarter, after an exchange of punts which benefited neither team to any great extent. Meyers returned one of Pleasant's punts twenty-four yards to the Susquehanna forty-five. With Sassaman carrying the ball most of the way, the Crusaders advanced to the enemy's thirty-six. Here Susquehanna was forced to punt with Martinec's kick going back to the goal. When Pleasant's kick sailed out of bounds on his own forty-five the Crusaders were again in scoring position and this time they didn't let the opportunity slip by.

In the second period, Sassaman went through for a first down on thirty-third yard line, where Meyers broke loose and ran the remaining distance to the goal. Sassaman's placement try for extra point was low.

In the second period, Susquehanna made four consecutive first downs which netted sixty yards but lost the ball on Haverford's seventeen yard line. Haverford kicked on the first down and K. Wasilewski returned to Haverford's thirty-five. On a reverse spinner play, Martinec went through tackle for thirty-four yards and was stopped by Moss within one yard of the goal. Hanna then went through center for the remaining distance and the score.

Not contented with two touchdowns, the Orange and Maroon pushed over another score in the second period when Sassaman threw a forward to W. Wasilewski, who eluded two tacklers and ran forty-eight yards for the third touchdown. Again his attempted place kick was wide.

With the score 18-0 at half time, Susquehanna came back to score two more touchdowns and register eight first downs to Haverford's none in the third quarter. Sassaman passed to Meyers for nine yards, but Meyers waded his way through the Red and Black team to score. His try for extra point was too wide. The fifth touchdown was a result of a twenty yard pass from Hanna to W. Wasilewski. Susquehanna was given the extra point when Haverford was called for off-sides. The final marker was made on a sensational run by Walsh on the Haverford twenty. (Concluded on Page 4)

Rev. Wilson P. Ard Visits Alma Mater

Rev. Wilson P. Ard, president of the Rocky Mountain Synod of the United Lutheran Church, was present at the chapel exercises on October 9, at which time Rev. Dallas C. Baer led the devotionals.

Rev. Ard's eastern trip includes a week at the biennial convention of the United Evangelical Lutheran Church of America, which will be held at Philadelphia from October 12 to 19.

Rev. Ard is an outstanding alumnus of the Susquehanna College of Liberal Arts and School of Theology. He is also a leading figure in religious and social activities in Colorado.

Parents' Day to be Held Here Saturday

Mothers and Dads Will be Guests of College For Day; Banquet and Football Are Feature Attractions

Parents' Day, one of Susquehanna's most important and popular features on the college calendar, will be welcomed for the fourth time on the campus this Saturday. With the Hartwick-Susquehanna football game and the Inter-Fraternity Ball as added attractions, the day will offer a full program of gay and colorful activity.

Last year several hundred parents were present on the campus, and a similar number is anticipated this year for the banquet which will be held in their honor. The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. will again cooperate in guiding and helping the fathers and mothers of the new students to become acquainted and feel at home.

At the banquet an address will be delivered by the Reverend Evans, father of freshman David Evans, of Somerville, New Jersey. It is expected that many alumni, some of them parents of Susquehanna students, will also attend.

Seibert Hall will extend its hospitality to our guests, following the football game, under the sponsorship of the Y. W. C. A. Refreshments will be served, and the parents will be given an opportunity to meet and mingle with the various members of the faculty and student body.

College Debaters Select Question

Dr. Dunkelberger and Professor Gilbert Are Elected Officers of State Group

The eleventh annual meeting of the Debating Association of Pennsylvania Colleges was held at the Penn Harris Hotel in Harrisburg on Saturday, October 8. Professor Russell Gilbert, debate coach at Susquehanna, was elected secretary-treasurer of the association. Dr. Prizel, of Penn State and Professor Crittenden of Temple University, were elected president and vice-president respectively. Dr. George P. Dunkelberger was chosen chairman of the auditing committee. Susquehanna had the largest faculty representation of the colleges in the association. The Susquehanna faculty group included Coach Gilbert, Dr. Dunkelberger and Professor George W. Wood. Edwin Clapper, a member of the varsity debate teams during the past two years, was the only student representative from S. U.

The following questions were selected:

1. Resolved that all inter-governmental World War debts, including reparations, should be cancelled.
2. The federal and state governments should take action to control the electric heat and light companies within the United States.
3. Japan should be restrained from pursuing her present policy in Manchuria.

During the week a call will be issued for candidates for the debate squad. Why not be a member of it? It is a chance for some excellent experience.

CONSERVATORY QUARTET AT RALLY DAY SERVICES

Last Sunday morning, a quartet from the Conservatory of Music, composed of Margaret Williams, soprano, Frances Stambaugh, alto, Roland Pritchard, tenor, and Wesley Stiffing, bass, accompanied Dr. G. Morris Smith to Middletown, where they sang at the Rally Day services at the Lutheran Church in that place. They sang two selections, "Teach Me, Lord" by Attwood, and "Lead Me, Lord" by Wesley. Professor Frederick Stevens, who is directing the quartet, also sang a solo, "If With All Your Hearts" by Mendelssohn. The singers were accompanied by Horace Hutchinson.

Publishers From 23 Counties Meet Here

Convention Decides That the Paper is Holding Its Balance During the Period of Depression

Publishers of newspapers of twenty-three counties convened on our campus Saturday afternoon, October 8, to discuss the problem of maintaining standards of excellence for their publications during a period of depleted revenues. This group of men is known as groups 3 and 4 of the Pennsylvania State Publishers Association.

The first meeting on the campus was held at 12:15 o'clock at Horton Dining Hall, at luncheon. Dr. G. Morris Smith made the address of greeting for the school, and Barton Gardner, editor of the Independent, of Montrose, responded for the convention.

Steele Science Hall held the afternoon session, where the discussion was presented by different speakers. Marion S. Schoch, editor of The Selinsgrove Times, introduced the speakers of the afternoon. The convention lasted until about five o'clock.

One interesting characteristic of the paper field was brought out. The weeklies and dailies in this section are maintaining as high a standard of excellence as ever, and printing as many columns of news as in the most prosperous times, although the advertising columns are far below normal.

At the same time that the publishers convened here a similar convention was being held by daily publishers at the Susquehanna Valley Country. Walter W. Krebs, editor of the Johnstown Tribune, officiated at this convention. Counties included in these two sessions were Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Perry, York, Bradford, Center, Clearfield, Clinton, Columbia, Elk, Lycoming, McKean, Northumberland, Potter, Snyder, Sullivan, Tioga and Union.

William N. Hardy, prominent president of the publishers association, and formerly of the staff of the New York Herald-Tribune, spoke at the meeting in Steele Science Hall.

O. D. S. Sorority Held Outdoor Rush Party

Omega Delta Sigma held the first annual Outdoor Rush Party of this year on Friday afternoon at "The Nubshell," a cottage owned by Mary E. Tringham. All freshman and new girls met in Seibert Hall parlors and were taken in cars to the cottage.

Invitations to the party written on orange paper cut in the shape of a Griffin, were sent out to the new girls. These invitations were enclosed in the shell of a nut and were tied with orange and grey ribbons, the colors of the sorority.

There were various nut scrambles and treasure hunts, games were played, contests were staged and some of the girls participated in croquet and "Bad Mitten." All the girls received little souvenirs of some sort.

After a very delicious supper, consisting of hamburger sandwiches, pickles, doughnuts, coffee and candied apples, a skit was presented which surpassed any dramatic presentation given before by the members of the sorority.

RUSSELL SHEETZ ELECTED HEAD OF CONSERVATORY STUDENTS

At a meeting of the Student Organization of the Conservatory, the following officers were elected: Russell Sheetz, president; Robert McNairy, vice president; Mary La Haza, secretary; Peter Blackwood, treasurer, and Fred Billman, Monitor.

The organization will hold its first meeting of the season on Tuesday, October 11.

John C. Oberdorf, Sr., Purchaser and Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings for the University, died at the Joseph L. Potter Hospital, Middleburg, a few minutes after midnight, Saturday, October 8. He had been a patient at the hospital since September 30, when local physicians were in doubt concerning the complications which his illness offered. Since occupying his position with the school his residence has been on University Heights. He was 54 years of age; death resulting from a complicated abscess.

He was born in Berwick, Pennsylvania, in 1878 and lived the greater part of his life in that place. He was a progressive merchant in Berwick, but the Allentown Y. M. C. A. called him to be a membership secretary. He served in this capacity until 1927 when he accepted his position with the University.

The town has benefited from Mr. Oberdorf's services to the extent of his willing cooperation in any welfare or social improvement. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church, and was its Sunday School Superintendent for the past several years; a good member of the Masons, Shriners, Knights Templar, Blue Lodge, and 32nd Degree Masons. He was a graduate of the Berwick High School and had developed a sense of business organization and ethics that made him a much-loved man in the business world.

Susquehanna can feel gratified in having had such a capable man in such a responsible position, for his keen business mind has produced much in the school's economy program. Faculty members, students, and employees were fond of Mr. Oberdorf. His pleasant smile, cheery greetings and personality will cling to their memory.

His untimely death leaves the following survivors: his wife, Celeste, nee Sandie; three daughters, Mrs. Alice S. Coover, Batesburg, South Carolina, Ella C. Oberdorf, teacher in the Selinsgrove grade schools, Mrs. Emma L. Potter, Middleburg; two sons, George S. and John W. Oberdorf, both at home; two sisters, Mrs. Charles S. Trunk, Coatesville, and Mrs. J. Boyd Robinson, Berwick; two brothers, Fred P. Oberdorf, Berwick, and Elmer R. Oberdorf, San Diego, California.

Funeral services were held in the Seibert Hall Chapel on Tuesday afternoon, October 11, at two o'clock. The services were in charge of Dr. G. Morris Smith. Interment was made in the Union Cemetery.

Tribute to a Friend of the University

By DR. G. MORRIS SMITH
Following a two week's illness, Mr. John C. Oberdorf, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds and Purchasing Agent at Susquehanna University for the past five years, died at the Potter Hospital in Middleburg early Sunday morning, October 9. Mr. Oberdorf gave invaluable service to Susquehanna University in the post he occupied. Faithful to the duties of his office, he was ever ready to lend his services to the promotion of the general welfare of the campus. Interested in the students, his name was a familiar one in student programs as a patron. He lent notable assistance to the University in the financial campaigns, pressing as he did great enthusiasm for the institution. While on the administration for only five years he left a lasting impression on the institution in a beautiful campus, renovated and improved buildings, and a harmonious staff of help.

Mr. Oberdorf was born May 29, 1878, at Berwick, Pa., where he lived practically all his life until he moved to Selinsgrove five years ago. He was the son of Peter and Alice Oberdorf, residents themselves of long standing in Berwick, to whom were born in all

ON THE DEATH OF A FRIEND

The death of John C. Oberdorf, Sr., marks the passing of a loyal friend of Susquehanna. As the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, Mr. Oberdorf, through his graciousness, endeared himself to everyone connected with the University. Closely interested in and associated with campus life, he was an ardent worker in graduate and undergraduate organizations simply because they represented a Susquehanna of progress.

His death removes a man of sterling character and kind personality from the University, but the memory of him will always remain vividly to his campus friends.

STRENGTHEN HOME BONDS

Parental love is as old as the hills.

Certain phases of contemporary civilization, however, tend to sap the vitality of this instinct. As Justice John Ford of the New York Supreme Court aptly phrases it, "A home does not mean what it used to because people are born in hospitals, entertain in clubs, eat in restaurants, take visitors to cabarets, and are buried from funeral parlors". In this instance, the home may be used as the symbol of a parental fortress and filial attachment.

As a counterbalance to these destructive forces launched upon father and son relations, common interests or mutual understanding of separate interests will once more cement the bond. That is why Susquehanna University has since 1929 sponsored an annual Parents' Day. Not only is it an opportunity to see them, but you, as the son or daughter, will have an excellent chance to make your school a really interesting place to them.

Most of the faculty will be present and all will be anxious to make your parents' acquaintance. Dinner, football game, and a tea given by the girls for the mothers will afford the pleasure of a pleasant day together and a more complete parental picture of the university.

Remember that next Saturday is your date with mother and dad!

THE DRUM BEAT

Drums of the heat-drenched, passion-soaked jungle. . . . calling naked savages to nocturnal conclave under Africa's tropic moon.

Drums of Egypt, beating their monotony into the souls of the slaves who build the pyramids. . . . Drums of the Revolution, as France reels in the blood of its population, feeding the guillotine and feeling in its pulses the throb, throb, throb of violent energy. . . . Drums of the Indian slowly stimulating senses to the emotional boiling point. . . .

Follow the drum; let its beat enthral you. It keeps time for marching men; it disciplines their step until they are no longer a mob but a battalion or a regiment. When the sun comes up and the sweat rolls down your back. . . . or when the snow flies and the cold makes you shiver—keep marching, stay in step, listen for the beat of the drum and remember its age-old power.

Civilians may scoff at the drummer, but we remember that he is as important as any man in the army. And when the moon comes up, and the night begins, you'll probably find those same civilians dancing somewhere to the beat of what they pretend to despise. . . . In ranks, the instrument of good, maintaining discipline by its very insistence. . . . in the cafes reducing man to an animal level, drum power, drum orgy, drum blues.

Follow its beat while marching!

RICHARD SHADE SELECTED AS PRESIDENT OF BAND

The officers of the band were elected at a recent meeting. They are: Richard Shade, president; Frank Bernardi, vice president; John Ballentine, secretary; Peter Blackwood, treasurer; Robert Clark, business manager; Horace Hutchinson, librarian; Roland Pritchard and Stephen Azary, stage managers.

The student director will be appointed later in the year.

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you.

Campus vista on a rainy mid-night: The graceful eucalypt-like columns of Seibert. . . . A shaft of light from the G. A. entrance, accentuating the loneliness and silence. . . . and leaving the night a little more stygian. . . . The library looking more like a library than it does during the day. Those three figures near the Conservatory are not the night-watch but only a group of pine trees. . . . That gigantic shadow crouch thrown on the side of the gym-somewhat sinister. . . . Beyond the football field a blue blur and soft whirl of industry. No moon—no stars: the pavements shiny and leaves glistening under an arc-light. . . . Shadows, shadows, shadows. . . . with here and there a light-island. . . . A campus with the nocturnal lid clamped down. Sweet dreams and friendly gloom!

The first ten femmes asked to the Prom were Frosh. The blonde vacationer of the faculty dream of Gary Cooper complex. What a case for Freud! Mary K. is crooning "Ahl of Me!" in the library these days. . . . Hey! Prof! Does the fact that you take a fair senior to the movies mean she's slated for Inter-Fraternity?

Well, they do say that a young man from Sunbury with an R in his name is very circumspect about his "cuts" . . . Wesley does on consistency in cravats. . . . The fraternities are making a concerted effort to freeze out members. . . . And all Johnson's ceaseless competition with the "Talkies" even if he is dating. . . . Yes, sir, a gentleman from U. of V. finds life quite strenuous. . . . Mrs. Aikens terms Susquehanna "the match factory" . . . We have five "Who's Who" on the campus. . . . Herb H. has been subsidized by the West Chester Registrar's Office and will be functioning on October 15. . . . Spigelmeyer and Kindsavater are always welcomed back heartily. . . . New York's Radio City will be opened the latter part of December. . . . Will the Geigel-Hausman-Quinto triangle ever explode? . . . The rumor that "Bobbie" Smith writes this column is utterly unfounded—neither does the night-watchman. . . . A. Carl will escort the Buffalo brunette to the dance. . . . Jerome is "that way" about an import from China. . . . Will the rainy evening driver of RY 278 please send in the telephone number of the "babe in his car"? We noticed you parked in front of Hassinger. . . . The President may O. K. a musical comedy production for next semester. . . . That Virginia should catch cold en route to New York with Al is extraordinary. But that "Luke" should have a cold the next day is not. . . . Four girls and two boys left the first week because of home-sickness. . . . One of our faculty is not at Ahl adverse to doubling for Freshmen in soccer. . . . The blonde who tried to drop journalism for letter-writing has switched from Phi Mu to B. and K. this year. . . . Seibert's pajamed Southern blonde collects rain-water for personal use. . . . Clegg's former Goucher whoopee-mate visited her last week. . . . "Ex-Crooner" Maimon is publicity hungry. . . . Our Bursar insists that Hassinger Hallsters need a house-mother. . . . Daniel '34 may clean a new room, but someone else occupies it! . . . Of course you've heard of the Frosh femme and Senior pre-theolog who had a rendezvous in Sunbury. The former was campused for two weeks and Ken is still quaking in his shoes. . . . "Boss" Steele will not be as "ruthless" at Inter-Fraternity as he is in politics. . . . Very useful: the two rear fire-escapes of Seibert may be opened from the inside only. Millie and Hugh are alleged to have received a few hints from "Week-Ends Only."

Here's the real low-down on the bon-bon incident that fluttered the doves of Seibert and was sketched in S. U. Pepys last issue: The alleged Frosh being two roommates of Hassinger and operated independently and each without knowledge of the other at the time. Now for a sequel! Shortly afterward the recipient of the candy was invited by one of the roommates to go trolley-riding for the evening. "Where?" you ask. Oh, just anywhere!

Campus Episodes

Pity poor Pearl! Here she was under Frosh rules at a school surrounded by corn-fields. Pearl, in case you haven't met her, is a sweet, young, blue-eyed, brown-haired thing.

For the first two weeks of school, however, our heroine had the company of a fond Mother. Together they toured the girls' dorm, paying calls and making new acquaintances. Together they toured the local soda-emporiums and gained contact with Pearl's professors. (Don't get the wrong impression from this sentence). From the interest displayed, one might have thought that it was Mother herself going to school.

And here you are inquiring as to why the elaborate catering to poor Pearl. Were the other girls unkind? Not at all! Was it that Pearl disliked the topography of the local country? Not exactly. Well, just what was the matter?

Pearl had two or three dates an evening while at home. The Susquehanna solitude made her terribly home-sick for Jimmy and John, Bill and Bob, etc., etc.

Mother has gone home finally. So it is we who are broadcasting poor Pearl's pitiful appeal: Won't someone lift the Frosh rules and give Pearl dates and dates and more dates!

Pen Portraits

She has the finely-drawn eyebrows of a Java goddess—but she's a Wrigley fan. Her Auburn hair, limpid brown eyes, and slow smile (How much does it know?) have ensnared the campus's best-looking male. She's better avoided I. Q. tests, yet she's fickle and sensitive. We might call her exotic—but not wearing starched collars. She is "smooth" as the purr of a happy tigress—but every female has sheathed claws.

Even your best friends will tell!

By Wenchell.

Seibert Hall Echoes

The week started out with: Cross right leg over left ankle . . . people in second row move up close to chairs in front row . . . hands behind backs . . . hold it . . . gee it's hot in here . . . if I keep my face in this position much longer I'll fade away. . . . now if good old "Pinky" were here . . . The week ended with . . . say, what a week-end, what a week-end . . . on the other hand . . . yes, we had fish, and a wild west show . . . also those of us who were here over the week-end got a chance to get all steamed up about the 37-0 victory over Haverford. . . . It not being a moral victory. . . . My goodness and there was a co-ed who cut all her classes one morning in order to "make" the curly haired photographer. . . . task, task . . . "Ken" anyone tell us the boy who got a Freshman girl's privileges "canned" for a period of two weeks? . . . The gossip is all busy trying to find out who is taking which to the Inter-frat Ball. . . . He was only a ham, but his sugar cured him. . . . we hear that the Frosh had a get-together the other night on that age-old prob—"why I came to S. U. . . . Advanced classes eventually, but not now. . . . Chivalry has its own excuse for being. . . . our own dear "Prexy" happened along just in time one day, climbed the spreading apple-tree, and presented the fair demellees with the luscious fruit. . . . We were asked what we did for amusement around here by a "bright" yearling. . . . one of these days we'll bark down and confess. . . . We wonder what Luke thought about on Saturday evening when Virginia was out with the most handsome man in Western Maryland—so they say. . . . 10:30 and all is well. . . .

Carl Stars at Quarterback Post For Snell's Proteges: "Al" Garman, Former S. U. Star, Mentor of Losers

Susquehanna J. V.'s emerged victorious in their opening game on University Field on Friday by defeating the Sunbury Owlets by a score of 18-6. The Owlets were coached by "Al" Garman, former grid star at Susquehanna, and captain of the 1930 team.

Regardless of the fact that many of the members of the J. V.'s were playing their first game of football, they showed up exceptionally well in their opening game. They were led by Carl, who held down the quarterback position and scored two touchdowns, one of them being a result of a forty-three yard run.

Carl was aided in the backfield by Deveraux, Shaffer, and Anderson, who hit the Blue and White line for consistent gains.

The Owlets threatened to score early in the first quarter when they drove the ball to the J. V.'s twenty-five yard line, but the Orange and Maroon held for four downs. After an exchange of punts, Carl was forced to punt from his goal line, where he kicked out of bounds on Sunbury's forty-yard line.

The victors first score came in the second quarter when Carl broke through the line and eluded the secondary defense to race forty-three yards to score. Carl added another in the first half on a line buck from the three yard line.

The J. V.'s came back in the second half to gain three first downs in succession and carried the oval to the visitors' six yard line, but the Black and White held with their backs to the wall. Susquehanna's final score was a result of an intercepted pass and a line plunge by Deveraux.

Sunbury's only score was made by a pass from the J. V.'s twenty-five with the receiver running ten yards to score.

Made Sensational Runs Against Haverford Foe

Johnny Meyers, alias "Laddie," beginning his fourth year under the Orange and Maroon colors, played the best game of his career on Saturday when he scored two of the six touchdowns against Haverford College, one of them being a result of a thirty yard run and the other came from receiving a pass and racing twenty-six yards for a touchdown. Meyers, hailing from State College, holds down the signal barking position in the varsity backfield and is famous for his speedy end runs.

Crusaders to Meet Hartwick For First Time Parents' Day

After the Crusaders' great victory over Haverford College on Saturday, Coach Ullery will put his men to work this week in preparation for the Parents' Day fray with Hartwick College on University Field next Saturday.

Hartwick, located at Oneonta, N. Y., will come to Susquehanna an unknown quantity, this being the first time the two teams will meet. In their opening game, Hartwick lost to the National Farm School by a score of 22-0, but they staged a comeback and defeated the New York Aggies on Saturday to the tune of 7-6.

Although they had a small squad last year, they possessed a team with exceptionally strong defense, therefore they may spring a surprise on the Crusaders.

The Orange and Maroon came through Saturday's tussle in fine shape with every man available for duty next Saturday.

Scored Touchdown In Moravian Struggle

"Skipper" Rishel, former Selinsgrove High School star and playing his third year of varsity ball at Susquehanna carried his first college touchdown across the end stripe in the Moravian game. Coach Ullery sent "Skipper" on the gridiron to relieve Hanna in the final quarter and the Selinsgrove gridster wasted little time in carrying the winning touchdown across. During the latter part of the pre-season training period, Rishel was laid up with a neck injury, but has recovered again. It is expected that he will make someone stop pretty lively for a starting berth in the Orange and Maroon backfield.

A CLASSROOM EXPERIMENT

By Dr. George F. Dunkelberger

An indispensable factor in effective classroom teaching is to find out just where the students are in the subject at the beginning of the course. How much do they know in that special field? How well do they know it? What don't they know about it? Good teaching must begin where the learner is and then guide him to where he ought to be. We see things from where we think they are. Every experience we are in process of acquiring must necessarily be colored by the experience we already possess. Such rather commonplace psychological principles reinforce the necessity of the instructor to know just what his students know of the subject-matter and how well they know it at the very beginning of the course.

At the beginning of the first semester of the year 1931-32, the writer planned such an experiment with his group in General Psychology. It was decided to give the group a rather comprehensive objective test, and then to repeat the very same test for the final examination at the end of the semester. The students were not told of the nature and purpose of the experiment, nor did any surprise anything of its intent and purpose. The instructor purposely tried to forget the definite content material of the test during the giving of the course so that the instruction would be as little influenced as possible. Great care was taken so that no part of the test would be given special emphasis during the semester. Every reason exists for believing these conditions were complied with. The test consisted of four parts. These were 75 true-false statements a completion test of 35 blanks, twenty simple definitions, and 10 matching statements. The true-false test was scored according to the common method for scoring such tests. All the other data were arbitrarily assumed to be of equal value and one point assigned for each item correctly answered. A perfect score in the entire test was 140 points. Since the scoring of such a test was primarily objective, it was possible to make a fairly reliable comparison of the score of students at the beginning and the end of the course.

The class in General Psychology consisted of 65 students divided into two sections of 31 and 34 students respectively. In the initial test the scores ranged from zero to 72 points. In the final score the range was from 45 to 120 points. The average score in the initial test was 14 points. For the final test it was 87 points. The following table of frequency shows a distribution of the scores in the two tests:

Score	Test I	Test II
110-119		5
100-109		17
90-99		9
80-89		10
70-79	1	9
60-69		8
50-59		5
40-49		1
30-39	3
20-29	9
10-19	30

In the test at the beginning of the semester, one student made a rather unusually high mark for a beginning student in General Psychology. This is easily explained by the fact that the person is matured, very capable and had a course in Educational Psychology during the summer preceding. In the final test her rank was sixth in the group of 65 students.

In working out the coefficient of correlation between the test at the beginning of the semester in the initial and final tests, according to the method of rank differences, a coefficient of correlation of $-.173$ was found with a probable error of $-.082$. This correlation is too low to have any special significance. In consequence the instructor cannot prognosticate the success of his students by considering only what their general knowledge may be of the subject-matter before the course is really begun. The real value of such an experiment undoubtedly lies in the satisfaction of knowing the progress made by the students in a course of study during a semester when exposed to it through readings, lectures, and classroom discussions. One of the compensations of teaching is the satisfaction of knowing what has happened to a class during a given period of instruction.

eight children. Of these, besides his aged mother who still lives in Berwick, surviving are two brothers and two sisters, Mrs. Boyd Robinson and Mr. Frederick Oberdorf, Berwick; Mrs. Charles Trunk, Coatesville, Pa., and Elmer Oberdorf, San Diego, California. Mr. Oberdorf was married to Miss Celeste Sander, Danville, Pa., who with her five children, survive. They are Mrs. Julien K. Cooner, Batesburg, S. C.; Mrs. Joseph L. Potter, Middleburg, Pa.; Miss Alice Oberdorf, teacher in the Selingrove public schools; George Oberdorf, Selingrove, Pa., and John Oberdorf, a member of the sophomore class at Susquehanna University.

After attending the public schools in Berwick, Mr. Oberdorf early launched out into business. For twenty-five years, he conducted a store of his own, and for two years was manager of the Cooperative Stores in Berwick. Leaving his work in Berwick to accept the position of Promotion Secretary of the Allentown Y. M. C. A., he lived in that city for a short time, before he was called to his present position at Susquehanna University in June, 1927.

Mr. Oberdorf was active in Masonry, having been elected to membership in the Blue Lodge, Shrine, Consistory, Knights Templar, and Irem Temple.

But his highest interest was his devotion to the church and its institutions. For twenty-five years he has been superintendent of Holy Trinity Lutheran Sunday School in Berwick, and through his enthusiastic leadership the school rose greatly in membership. When he died he held the position of superintendent of Sunday School at Trinity Lutheran Church, Selingrove, Pa. He was also active on the church board from time to time holding office as councilman. On more than one occasion he was elected by the Susquehanna Synod of the Lutheran Church as one of their representatives to the general conventions of the church. As a faithful layman always eager to serve his church and promote her welfare, he was outstanding. He was a conscientious student of the Bible and knew a great many of its choicest passages by memory.

The funeral was held from the University Chapel on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, the Reverend Dallas C. Baer being in charge of the services.

Dr. G. Morris Smith, President of Susquehanna University and a friend and colleague of Mr. Oberdorf, gave the funeral sermon. Students and faculty formed a guard of honor as the procession moved from the superintendent's home to the college chapel. The Masons had a part in the service at the grave.

Active pallbearers were Messrs. R. L. Schroyer, Frank A. Eyer, James McGee, A. D. Carey, Professor E. M. Brungart, and Mr. U. Grant Buchanan. Honorary pallbearers were Dr. M. M. Allbeck, former State Senator Charles Steele, Dr. G. Morris Smith, Mr. Roscoe C. North, Attorney J. P. Carpenter, and Dr. Harry C. Michael.

CRUSADER VICTORY MARCH CONTINUES AT EXPENSE OF HARTWICK FOE, 45 TO 0

Varsity Eleven Scores Six Touchdowns in Few Minutes; Coach Ullery Uses Three Teams in One-Sided Fray

Susquehanna's powerful Crusaders completely outplayed Hartwick College on University Field in the annual Parent's Day classic and turned in their third consecutive victory of the 1932 season with a score of 45-0.

Coach Ullery sent in his second string players at the beginning of the game and they quickly sewed up the game in the first three minutes to play. The Orange and Maroon's famous pony backfield composed of W. Waslewski, Rishel, Walsh and K. Waslewski took the ball on their own thirty yard line and carried it over the goal in twelve plays. K. Waslewski went through tackle for thirty yards in the first play of the game and later carried the oval across from the two yard line for the first six-pointer.

Late in the first quarter with the ball in Susquehanna's possession on Hartwick's forty yard line, Coach Ullery sent in his first team. On the first play, Susquehanna broke loose for fifteen yards and Meyers skirted right end for twenty-five yards and the second touchdown of the period.

Hanna scored on the sixth play in the second quarter after the ball had been advanced from the forty yard line to the three yard line on a twenty yard pass from Sassaman to Hanna and pass by Martinec and Meyers. The Ullerymen's fourth pointer came in the middle of the second quarter when Sassaman broke through the line and eluded the secondary defense to run fifty-three yards with perfect interference. Hartwick kicked-off to Susquehanna's thirty and Meyers, Hanna and Sassaman immediately carried the pignisk to the Hartwick fifteen where Meyers ran around right end to score.

The Crusaders added two more six pointers in the third quarter. Rishel scored from the five yard stripe on an end run after having added Meyers and Martinec carry the ball from Hartwick forty-five. Immediately after the kick-off, Owens, Hartwick's hard plunging halfback, punted out of bounds on his own twenty yard line. Meyers went around right end for seven.

Lutheran Church in Biennial Conclave

Church Budget and Seminary Merger Are High Points of the Discussion

Convening in Philadelphia for the biennial convention, delegates of the United Lutheran Church, for the past week, have been discussing problems pertinent to the policies and management of over 4,000,000 communicant members in the United States and Canada.

The convention opened Wednesday evening when Holy Communion was administered to the delegates in the Holy Communion Church at Philadelphia. At the communion service the delegates were addressed by Rev. F. H. Knobel, D.D., LL.D., S.T.D., President of the United Lutheran Church, who spoke on "God's Open Hand." The services were conducted by prominent members of the United Church. Liturgies were conducted by the Rev. A. R. Wentz, D.D., Ph.D., acting Secretary. The Administration of the Sacrament were Rev. J. L. Morgan, President North Carolina Synod; Rev. H. H. Bagger, President Pittsburgh Synod; Rev. M. R. Hamsher, President West Pennsylvania Synod, and Rev. J. Reble, President Canada Synod.

The Communion vessels used in this service were first used by Dr. Henry Melchior Muhlenberg in 1755.

Business sessions of the convention have been held in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. In the opening sessions of the convention Dr. F. H. Knobel was re-elected President of the United Lutheran Church. This marks the eighth year of Dr. Knobel's leadership of the U. L. C. Dr. W. H. Grever, executive secretary of the Southern Lutheran Seminary, Columbus, S. C., was elected secretary of the U. L. C. A. upon the third ballot. He succeeds the late Dr. W. G. C. Sherer, who died last November and whose post has temporarily been filled by Dr. Wentz.

The budget of the Church for the ensuing two years was cut $400,000. Much opposition was raised to the cutting of the budget as some of the delegates felt that a cut would mean a retrenchment for the Church. The cut was made as financial conditions made it a necessity.

Charges of loose financial methods made against the Board of Ministerial Pensions and Relief and a demand for its investigation stirred the delegates. The charges were brought by Judge Ellwood N. Rabenhold, lay delegate from New York City. A loss of $61,221 from foreclosure costs on properties to which the board held mortgages was the basis of the attack. E. E. Clarence Miller, Treasurer of the Church, defended the Board of Ministerial Pensions and Relief. A committee was assigned to investigate the matter and report to the convention during the closing days of the sessions.

Criticism of the Church's sanction of uniformed Army chaplains was voiced by Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder, of Baltimore, following the report on the army and navy, and an address by Chaplain John Hall, a major in the army at Fort Hayes.

Action on the merger of the thirteen seminaries into four seminaries has been extended to the closing sessions of the convention. This merger question is one of vital importance to the delegates and the Church. The report of the Committee of Six investigating the seminaries was accepted by the President's committee consisting of the 33 synod presidents. The plan which calls for the merger of Susquehanna, Hartwick, Gettysburg and Philadelphia seminaries into one seminary to be located within a radius of twenty miles of Philadelphia, and the establishment of three others in different sections of the country was opposed by Dr. Arthur S. Hardy, of Long Island, and Dr. Jacob Diehl, president of Carthage College.

SUSQUEHANNA HOST TO MANY PARENTS AT THE FOURTH ANNUAL CELEBRATION

Banquet and Football Game Are Highlights on Program for Fathers and Mothers; Reverend David Evans Speaks

Librarian Attends State Convention

State College is Host to 125 School Librarians in Week-end Meeting. Discuss County Problems

Mrs. Martha Dodson, Head Librarian of the University Library, returned Sunday evening from a three day convention trip. She attended the state convention of the Pennsylvania Library Association at State College. One hundred and twenty-five librarians, including school librarians, convened at the Nittany Lion Inn on Thursday afternoon, October 13, for the purpose of deciding the policies of the libraries in our state for the coming year.

Thursday evening and Friday morning were filled with preliminary matters and business sessions, but starting with the Luncheon Session on Friday the group discussed the most vital subjects of the school and public library movement.

The most important trend of the whole convention was the discussion of the county library. The meeting decided that the problem of community book service must be directed by the county. County Commissioners should appropriate financial aid and the state should assist the counties in this work, according to the size of the communities. At the present time five counties in Pennsylvania are giving definite appropriations to a free library system. The total population of the Commonwealth is 9,831,350 but the public library does not reach 3,500,000, or 37% of our people. It is the desire of the Association to make free reading material accessible to everyone. Snyder county is one of the unfortunate counties without a free public library.

Very fine addresses were given by representatives from the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Pennsylvania State Grange. Dr. James N. Rule, Superintendent of Public Instruction, read a paper on the relation of school libraries and the public libraries. His knowledge of the subject was refreshing and enlightening.

One of the very important projects discussed at the College Sectional Meeting was locating historical material, either state or local, which may be in the vicinity of the various colleges. Much needed material exists of which we are not aware. This work could be handled directly by the college library or by individuals; the material, however, should be placed at some central point.

Mrs. Dodson reports that the convention was stimulating and educational to the delegates in general.

Dr. Marsh Addresses Honor Science Club

On Tuesday evening, October 11, the Honor Science Club held its initial meeting, in the lecture room of the Steele Science building. Dr. Chester Marsh, head of the State Epileptic Colony, read a paper on "The History of Medicine," after which he answered as many questions concerning epilepsy, and what was being done to cure it in Pennsylvania's State Colony and in other states, as was possible in the short time remaining.

Many members of the faculty and their wives attended, as well as the student members of the Club.

DEBATERS BEGIN EARLY PRACTICE SESSIONS

Susquehanna University Debating Association held its regular meeting Thursday evening, Oct. 13. The turnout was unusually large, and Professor R. W. Gilbert has chosen the question: Resolved that all inter-governmental war debts including reparations, should be cancelled. There was discussion concerning plans for the coming year and it was announced that there would be no formal treaty.

Fathers and mothers were welcomed and well cared for during their one-day sojourn on the campus last Saturday as Susquehanna University celebrated its fourth annual Parents' Day. A banquet, a brilliant football victory, and an informal tea following the game constituted the major features on the program.

With classes ending at eleven o'clock, parents, professors, and students gathered for the dinner one hour later. Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, Dean of the College, acted as toastmaster, prefacing addresses given by the Reverend David Evans of Somerville, New Jersey, and Professor Luther Day, Grossman of the college faculty, in which each expressed the aims and offers of the college from the point of view of the parent, and of the faculty, respectively.

After watching Susquehanna's football machine perform so effectively against Hartwick College, the parents were invited to attend a tea at Seibert Hall, in charge of the Y. W. C. and here they were given a better opportunity to meet each other and also members of the college faculty.

All fraternities and sororities extended similar hospitality so that each father and mother, whether a new or former visitor to the campus, was satisfied that son or daughter had not gone amiss in their choice of an alma mater.

MISS HADE LEADS Y. W. C. A. MEETING

Miss Naomi K. Hade was in charge of the Y. W. meeting Thursday evening. The scripture lesson was taken from the Psalms—the 15th and part of the 17th chapters. The topic was "A College Girl's Religion." Her talk was based on the facts that when girls go away from their homes, parents and the church, they have opportunities to grow lax in their religious life. At school they have the chance to strengthen or weaken their religious faith. All our relationships on the campus reflect the fruit of our spiritual life, as is shown in the attitude toward student government and classroom fairness.

The meeting closed with the hymn, "Fairrest, Lord Jesus."

Student Returns to School After Wreck

Three Susquehanna Students in Auto Collision Near West Chester on October 8

Edgar Hutchinson, of Downingtown, a Junior in the Business Department of the University, returned to classes Monday morning, October 17, after spending the past week at home, recovering from a slight concussion of the brain, received in an auto accident Saturday, October 8.

Mr. Hutchinson, accompanied by two other Susquehanna students, Miss Aberdeen Phillips '34, and Miss Sarah Ulrich '33, of Downingtown unfortunately met with an accident near West Chester. While driving down a hill preparatory to making a left hand turn, another car, coming from a crossing at a high rate of speed, collided with the Susquehanna car with sufficient power to overturn both machines.

The car rested on Miss Phillips' arm after the impact. Mr. Hutchinson was thrown clear, but Miss Ulrich was enclosed in the car and was forced to climb from the car through the rear window.

Hutchinson suffered lacerations of the head and Miss Phillips had a badly bruised arm. Miss Ulrich received a deep gash in her leg. The students were rushed to the West Chester Hospital.

The girls were able to return to school after treatment of their injuries, but Mr. Hutchinson did not return until the following Saturday.

Mr. Hutchinson's car was completely wrecked; it is beyond repair. The driver of the other machine was held under bail. It was discovered that his car was not legally inspected.

IN SYMPATHY

Death has again visited the homes of Susquehanna students. The fathers of two Juniors have passed away during the past week. Calvin Nangle and Elmer Hawk were both called home recently. The Susquehanna Staff records the deepest sympathy expressed throughout the entire campus for these students and their bereaved families.

DOLLARS, FANS, AND FOOTBALL

"Sexual and economic problems are the natural diet of the soul of man," as Rebecca West sagely remarks. To these we must make a seasonal and purely American addition in the form of football.

There is no more thrilling spectacle than the football epics our major colleges annually wage. Bands, small armies of players, tumultuous cheering sections, thousands of spectators, and all the hubbaloos of a Roman gladiatorial show staged by a P. T. Barnum make these contests into more than mere athletic struggles. They are an opportunity to relax from the high-tension of modern life by plunging once more into the raucous riot of a collegiate classic. It is more than football. It is like shouting for a good old "alma mammy" (be she genuine or adopted) who has suddenly changed into a rakish, ribald, carousing blonde.

The public pays plenty for these spectacles. Even in the Dark Ages of Depression, the price of general admission is usually one dollar ten—enough to feed a bread-liner for three days.

Now to come home, Susquehanna offers a pretty good brand of football, but without the side-dishes. If we ever expect to increase attendance, it is therefore our duty to do one of two things: either provide the circus atmosphere or lower the general admission price.

Numerous townspeople and parents have already remarked as much. Since they are our greatest source of potential fan material, we agree. And the time to do it is while we have a winning team. It has come to the point where we must either drop into step with current economic conditions or forever content ourselves with the paltry handful of people we now have attending our games. From the publicity standpoint, a price drop is eminently sane. From the business angle, it is undoubtedly the coup that will make football financially profitable. There is no more reason why it shouldn't be than there is reason why hundreds of Susquehanna sympathizers should be forced to read results in the newspapers.

Think it over, members of the Athletic Board, and let us see how promptly you can act!

Fund Created by Association Netted University Over $2,700; Thirteen District Clubs Formed Susquehanna University can boast of one of the most complete Alumni Associations which serves and binds together 2258 Alumni who are located in thirty-six of the forty-eight states and fourteen foreign countries.

The organization consists of a local body on the campus whose work is headed by Luther D. Grossman, general secretary of the association. The work of the association is carried on in foreign parts by thirteen district organizations centered in New York City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Johnstown, Lewistown, Williamsport, Mt. Carmel, Hanover, Centre county, Altoona, Wilkes-Barre and Washington, D. C.

Each of these clubs have their own officers and help to constitute a stronger alumni body. The district clubs meet at least once a year. Over half of the general alumni body is embraced by one of these district clubs.

The year the Association has been particularly ambitious and successful. It launched for the first time in Susquehanna's history an Alumni Fund which netted the institution over $2,700.

Aside from the Alumni Fund, the Susquehanna Alumni Association published an Alumni Directory with all graduates and former students classified with their years of attendance and proper addresses.

Rhoads '30, Cashier at Hummel's Wharf

Simon B. Rhoads, '30, assistant cashier of the local Farmers National Bank relinquished his duties there the end of last week and entered yesterday upon the work of his recent selection as cashier of the Snyder County State Bank at Hummel's Wharf.

Rhoads succeeded L. B. Eichman, cashier of that institution since organization five years ago, who goes to the Mechanicsburg Trust Company.

Rhoads is 23 years old, a native of Richfield, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Rhoads, of North Orange street. He was graduated from the Selinsgrove High school with the class of 1926 and from Susquehanna in 1930. He was associated with the Hummel's Wharf bank in a clerical capacity while attending college. He joined the force of the Farmers National Bank two years ago and was advanced to assistant cashier eighteen months ago.

Rhoads is secretary of the Selinsgrove Chamber of Commerce and a member of Pi Gamma Mu, the local lodges of Masons and Odd Fellows, and the Dauntless Hook and Ladder Company.

In entering the banking profession Rhoads follows the example of his distinguished and lamented uncle Samuel H. Miller, who fared forth as a youth from his native Oriental and entered the Chase National Bank in New York City as an accountant. He rose to the first vice presidency of that great institution.

POET'S CORNER

WHERE ARE YOU?

You swore, as long as stars would shine That I'd be yours, and you'd be mine. The stars still shine up in the blue, And here am I—but where are you?

You swore the sun would cease to rise Ere you should gaze in other's eyes. Each morn, the sun doth rise anew, And here am I—but where are you?

Those idle vows you meant, I'm sure, When underneath the moon's allure, But morning came, and you 'came to', So here am I—but where are you? DoDo

THE DREAMS THAT ARE

The dreams that are, and never cease Till death has quenched their Maker's flame,

Don't die. Though he could not appease Their passion, yet, because they came To live their brief, hazardous day,

And perished not, as other kinds, When hardships oft beset their way, They live again in other minds.

THE DREAMS THAT WERE

The dreams that were, and ceased to be Are faintly tinged with tragedy, For dreams that were, and things that are

In future years, are different far From what we hoped they'd be. DoDo.

"K. C. M. G." Translated

When Sir George Reid, a man prominent in Australian politics, was made knight commander of St. Michael and St. George, he was rather embarrassed by his new dignity, for he liked to be referred to as plain George Reid. At one of his meetings someone called out: "Say, Sir George, what does K. C. M. G. mean?" Without in moment's hesitation the new knight answered, "Keep calling me George."

Sophs Take Time Out To Beautify Campus

There is no unemployment among the brown Sophs on the campus this year. Several weeks ago this same group literally "took the bull by the horns" and helped beautify Susquehanna's campus. This is the origin of what is to be called "Sophomore Day," a day to be set aside annually when this class shall help beautify the campus.

Probably the greatest incentive for the initiation of such a day was the dismissal from their classes in the afternoon when most of them should have been kicking a soccer ball around. They turned masons and in fact became magicians.

For the past several years, the ash pile behind the heating plant has taken a decided incline and at the same time has become increasingly unsightly. This was the scene of activity on the first Annual Sophomore Day, when the class assembled and worked one whole afternoon carrying the ancient stones and bricks of the dismantled "Sleepy Hollow" about the ash pile and then proceeded to surround the heap with a rather substantial stone wall.

At some future time it is planned that the class shall plant roses and vines along the wall and in time these should cover the stones and make a beautiful sight.

JUNIOR GIRLS REMAIN UNDEFEATED IN HOCKEY

The first meeting of the Women's Athletic Club was held on Monday evening, October 3. The initiation of new members will take place at the next meeting.

The standing of the girls' hockey teams are as follows:

	W	L	Pct.
Juniors	3	0	1.000
Sophomores	2	1	.666

JUNIORS CAPTURE SOCCER LEAD THRU FORFEIT

In the Inter Class Soccer league the Juniors are leading the other classes, having won one game and lost none. The Sophomores are in last place, having lost their only game to date to the lowly Freshmen.

Results of games played:

Seniors 4, Frosh 2
Juniors 1, Seniors 0 (forfeit).
Frosh 4, Sophomores 1

Standing of the teams:

Juniors	1	0	1.000
Seniors	1	1	.500

Leads S. U. Scoring

Ullerymen to Meet Washington College

The Crusaders will journey to Washington College on Saturday and attempt to turn in their fourth straight victory of the season. Susquehanna has defeated the Washington team the last two years, and last fall the Orange and Maroon turned in the highest score of the season against the Marylanders on University Field.

With such ball carriers as Hanna, Meyers, Martinec and Sassaman, the Crusaders should have little trouble in scoring while their powerful line is holding Washington to small gains.

Washington College this season has lost to Loyola and tied Gallaudet.

CRUSADER VICTORY MARCH CONTINUES AT EXPENSE OF HARTWICK FOE, 45 TO 0

enteen yards and Martinec added the final touchdown on a line plunge from the three yard stripe.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter, the Junior Varsity was given a chance to show its wares. They took the ball on Hartwicks forty yard line and advanced to the thirty but Carl's pass was intercepted by Owens on his own fifteen. On an attempted punt, the pass from the center sailed over Owens' head and he was downed in the safety zone thus adding two more points to the score.

Only twice did Hartwick threaten to score, the first coming late in the second quarter when Shaw, easily the outstanding ball carrier for the visitors, gained fourteen yards on an end run. Another run took the ball to Susquehanna's thirty-two. Two forward passes from Owens to Haller carried the ball to the six yard mark where Hartwick lost the ball when Owens heaved the oval into empty space over the goal.

Their second drive came late in the fourth period when Blanchette ran twelve yards to carry the ball to the enemy's twenty-five. The J. V.'s momentarily checked the drive by holding the visitors for four downs but they came back to complete two forward passes and carry the ball to the twelve yard line. Again Owens threw a forward into the end zone to lose the ball. The game ended with Susquehanna in possession of the ball on their own thirty yard line.

SUSQUEHANNA TO CONCENTRATE ON COLLEGE AND MUSIC DEPARTMENTS

By DR. G. MORRIS SMITH

The merger of the theological department with the Gettysburg, Mt. Airy, and Hartwick seminaries would be helpful to Susquehanna University in enabling it to concentrate attention on the college and music departments. Within the college there are three well-defined curricula now offered—Liberal Arts, Business Administration and Commercial Education. At the present time the college and the music departments comprise the great bulk of the student body, enrolling 440 students. There are only eleven students in the three seminary classes, for whom three full-time professors are engaged and several part-time instructors. Thus it is clear that there is a well-established work at Susquehanna University in the college and music departments. While the theological department has done a significant work in the past by furnishing the church with pastors and leaders, the two other Lutheran Theological seminaries at Gettysburg and Philadelphia have in recent years lessened the need for continuing a Theological Department at Selinsgrove. Susquehanna University will by the merger be able to concentrate its resources on the college and the music school which now draw 440 students from different states and one foreign country. By building increasingly strong college and music departments, she will serve the church in a still more effective way than by scattering her efforts. She will continue to serve the church by sending to the proposed new merger seminaries the best graduates from her college who shall be better equipped for the ministry by virtue of attending a strengthened college and because of the opportunities to be enjoyed at a united seminary furnished by the merger of the four seminaries above referred to. The consolidation of the four seminaries would be in the interest of a better and stronger college at Selinsgrove which is already the major work at Susquehanna University and would also redound to the interest of a united ministry in the Lutheran Church.

Susquehanna University is firmly established as a coeducational Lutheran college of high grade. She is accredited not only by the State Department of Public Instruction, but also by the Regional Rating Association of the Middle States. Her graduates enter the best professional and graduate schools and are teachers in many of the high schools. In recent years increasing praise has been won by the administration at Susquehanna University because of emphasis on quality rather than quantity. Five years ago she discontinued offering work for the M. A. degree because she wanted to do a

Poll to be Conducted In Chapel Tomorrow

Newspaper Deputies Bonsall, Clark, Dively, Worthington and Henry

Student opinion on the coming presidential election is the aim of a straw vote which will be conducted by "The Susquehanna" at the chapel exercises in Seibert Hall tomorrow morning. The votes will be tabulated and announced in the issue of November 1.

The ballots will be issued to the students and faculty at the chapel entrances by Jay Worthington, Penn Dively, James Bonsall, Robert Clark, and Donald Henry, members of the newspaper staff.

The above-named representation of the staff will collect the marked ballots at the chapel exits, as the members of the student body and faculty leave the building. The reason for requesting each voter to list his class and the professors to indicate their position as such is to be able to give a tabulation not only of the popular vote, but also the vote by groups.

The purpose of holding the poll is to ascertain the choice of Susquehanna for the presidency of the United States in the current campaign which holds so much interest for the country at large and also to note any political tendencies on the part of the students that might indicate a change from the past.

Prohibition Nominee Addresses Students

Afternoon Informal Speech Followed by Political Address in Selinsgrove by William D. Uphaw

Congressman William D. Uphaw, Prohibition nominee in the coming presidential election, addressed Susquehanna students, faculty members, and Selinsgrove townfolk on Monday afternoon in Seibert Hall Chapel.

After his afternoon talk, Mr. Uphaw delivered an address in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Selinsgrove on the Moral Challenge of the Presidential Campaign. This speech was concerned definitely with the platform of the Prohibition party, which he has sworn to follow. In a former speech he claimed that no woman has ever had a place in the President's cabinet. He proposes to have at least one woman in the cabinet if elected.

His extemporaneous talk to the students was one of generalities; it was not concerned with references to his party platform. He gave the students valuable general advice, several maxims, and solid witty stories.

The "Georgia Cyclone," as Mr. Uphaw is known in congressional circles, has spoken in behalf of the dry organizations for the past several years. He is a vigorous speaker and a powerful thinker despite his crippled condition caused by an accident in early youth.

For several years he represented Georgia as a Democratic congressman and was a strong Democrat until his party selected former Governor Alfred E. Smith as its presidential hope on a wet platform. This year he became a nominee for President after the Republican party had placed President Herbert C. Hoover on a wet ticket.

Y. W. C. A. Addressed By New President

Esther Gelsel, president of the Y. W. spoke at the regular meeting Thursday evening, on "When is a Youth Well-Educated?" Her topic was taken from the book "What Ails Our Youth," by Dr. George A. Coe.

Five points were discussed, as follows: What is the relation between the "well" in well-educated and the "well" in well-living? Do conventional concepts of the educated man take into account the vocation of well-living? Shall we assign to the educated man any specific function in society? Education should preserve and cultivate, not neglect or suppress, the natural variability of youth. How the spontaneous variability of youth may become a cultivated variability?

Lutheran Seminaries In Important Merger

Susquehanna Theological Department Will Combine With Gettysburg and Hartwick in Eastern District

Merger of the eleven seminaries of the United Lutheran Church into four major institutions, to be located at strategic points of the nation was unanimously approved at the special session of the biennial convention of the Lutheran Churches at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel at Philadelphia, Tuesday evening.

The project was advanced as an ideal toward which the board of education was charged to lead the church. Its adoption followed more than an hour's debate. It was one of the most interesting sessions of the convention since it considered this momentous question of the merger. At one time the argument became quite bitter and personal. It was, of course, unfortunate but it made the interest all the keener.

Of special interest to students on this campus was the merger of the theological departments of Susquehanna, with that of Gettysburg, Philadelphia, and Hartwick of Brooklyn into a single seminary. It is to have a special department for the training of Teachers, scholars, editors and foreign missionaries. It will be known as the Eastern Seminary of the United Lutheran Church.

The theological department at Susquehanna represents less than five per cent of the student body, although its importance is far in excess of its proportion to the total number of students, embodying the only graduate department of the institution.

The committee, which has had this project under consideration for a long time, reported to the convention the fact that Susquehanna has three professors in the department, and nine students, making an average of three to a professor. The department is not separate from the college and therefore its expense is absorbed by the college. The cost per student was not reported. However, Pacific seminary, temporarily closed, which has three students to one professor costs $2.65 per student, while Gettysburg with seventy-nine students and thirteen to one professor costs $597 per student. Therefore Gettysburg will lose more than any other seminary in the merger, so far as student costs are concerned. However the cost to the institution is $47,188 per year, and the transfer of the department will remove a considerable burden. Hartwick has sixteen students, four to a professor with $11,140 annual expense.

Mount Airy, prior to the church merger, was conducted under the Ministerium of Pa., and is still so operated. Locally St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Sunbury, Pa., operates in the Ministerium, while Zion, Grace, and Trinity Churches are members of the Susquehanna Synod. A territorial redistribution of the state of Pennsylvania, cul-

Scoring in the first five minutes of play, the Crusaders stretched their winning streak to four consecutive games by defeating Washington College on Saturday at Chestertown, Maryland, by a score of 6-0. Although the Ullermeyers easily outplayed their opponents, they lacked the necessary punch to carry the ball past Washington's stubborn line when they were within scoring distance.

Coach Ullery changed his starting line-up with Alexander replacing Roach at right end, Sullivan filled the guard position in place of Kramer and W. Wasilewski replaced Hanna, who has been laid up with a neck injury, in the fullback post.

The Orange and Maroon showed up exceptionally well on the defensive as they held the Washington backs without a first down. However, after the first period, Susquehanna's backfield flashes were kept in check by the fighting forward wall of the opponents aided by the Steller punting of Rhinehold.

The Crusaders shoved across their only score in the first period after they had attempted a forward pass on the first play following the kick-off, which was intercepted and returned to the Orange and Maroon thirty yard stripe. However, Eisenhower recovered a Washington fumble on the twenty-five yard line to allow the Crusaders to open up with their offensive plays. With a series of short line plunges, the Orange and Maroon carried the ball to the opponents five yard line, where Sassa-man dove through tackle to score. His placement kick for extra point was blocked.

The Ullermeyers came back in the last half to work the oval to the opponents ten yard line on three occasions but were held for downs as the Washington line stiffened and then Rhinehold punted far out of danger.

Meyers and W. Wasilewski broke loose on several long gains but failed to convert them into scores. The long est run of the game came in the third quarter when "Johnny" Meyers skirted right end for twenty yards.

Farmer: "Drat that cow! She's probably miles away from here by now."

A WORTHY FOE

On Saturday our football team will resume athletic relations with a Swarthmore team for the first time since 1928. This team was selected to fill an open date on our gridiron schedule and the Athletic Board should be commended on its foresight in scheduling such a capable opponent. Our past relations with the Quaker institution have been of a high order, marked by keen competition and exceptional sportsmanship. Although the Swarthmore eleven has not had a single victory this season the calibre of their opposition is a sufficient index that this game will be one of the best of our season.

At the present time arrangements are being made for the band to accompany the team on this trip. For two years the band has not made a single trip to a football game and it is hoped that the band and many students will be able to attend the contest. Much of the success of this encounter with Swarthmore depends on student interest, and for that reason the team should be able to see a crowd of Susquehanna faces in the grandstands. Good-luck, boys!

ARE YOU A WHISPERER?

A football game is like a Harlem night-club floor show: it needs action, a good band, and plenty of noise from the spectators. We have all of these (plus a "crooner"), except the noise from the spectators. To listen to our cheering section is to hear the whispering sibilance of denuded trees swayed by a mournful autumn wind. They both give no evidence of life.

Are you whispering encouragement to the pigskin booters? Why not come into the open and tell the whole world what a grand place it will be if Susquehanna goes undefeated this season. Let your spirits rise with your metabolism on Homecoming Day, as you drown out P. M. C. vocal efforts. Cheer those Crusaders on to victory, until your voice is as hoarse as a rabid football rooter's voice should be.

STRAW VOTES

Tomorrow, THE SUSQUEHANNA will conduct a straw vote of the undergraduate body and faculty. No doubt there will be many who will cast their ballots with faecious intent, and others who will not even trouble to register an opinion. In face of such opposition, we felt little distress, for in any community as highly specialized as a college campus, there are always to be found the full quota of practical jokers and other moronically inclined individuals.

The coming vote should be one of intense interest. Many years have elapsed since the American electorate has been called upon to face a more turbulent or more important election day than it will on November 8. Lean and hungry years whet political appetites.

In normal times 1932 would witness a Republican landslide. Franklin D. Roosevelt could march and talk from coast to coast pointing the finger of reproach at his rival, but as far as putting himself in the White House, he wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance. Obviously, however, these are not normal times. These are the days that try men's souls, and, to listen to the arguments of many of the voters, days seem also to warp their reasoning power.

Whether Herbert C. Hoover is re-elected or defeated will not depend so much on whether the nation feels the New York governor a better man, or the doctrines of his party better doctrines. It will be a protesting vote against hard times, against the administration at Washington which picked the most ill-fated moment to occupy the seats of the mighty, since Abraham Lincoln held office. It will be essentially a vote of passion and emotion. It will be fundamentally a physical and not a rational protest.

This is the background with which all college students, if they have studied the situation at all should be in agreement.

It is not an indictment against one candidate or the other. It is merely a recognition of the setting of national hysteria in which one of the most crucial and possibly one of the most far-reaching elections in the history of the country is to be decided.

Now, if ever, there is the crying need for intelligent voting. It is a chance for our college throat the nation to make a frank and compelling declaration. Future leadership must have its voice—either with or against the instincts of the mob. A straw vote certainly is in order!

Well, we've buttered our bread—and now we'll sleep in it. Although we are not disclosing the results of our Wenchell poll, we are printing his picture in next week's issue. We want you to know his identity, so you, too, can be a correspondent. Don't forget—Wenchell photograph in next week!

Pen Profruits

She is the sweet and clinging type of minister's daughter that simultaneously attempts to "make" a prof. and a tall handsome Junior. . . . You see, the one's a campus celebrity and the other a subdued Adonis. . . . When she comes to the point of actually possessing either or both, her ardor will die like a squelched rocket. She has some of the playfulness of a beer-garden frau but she is not too buxom to be coy. Her hair is nondescript brown, figure curveless, eyes brown. Cigarettes are a vice. . . . but a friendly under-the-table slap on the thigh is the height of subtlety. . . .

Some call her dumb while others call her clever. She is often convalescent the morning after a date with her prof. She is a consummate actress, a demure fraud, and a skittish coquette. Members of her own sex dislike her.

Even your best friends will tell.

One Should Not Dote

Youth I entreat
 You note to dote
 On any maid, however sweet
 She be, for note
 It's indiscreet—
 Will spell defeat
 For one, defeat.

It's been confessed
 By sages hoar,
 That doting brings a strange unrest,
 A conflict sore
 Within the breast
 Of one oppressed
 By love—oppressed.

Yet—what's to do?
 When one sees,
 When one spies a maiden who
 So charmingly
 Tempts one to woo

Sigma Alpha Iota

Mrs. Hazel Card, president of Eta province of Sigma Alpha Iota, visited Sigma Omega chapter on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. She was accompanied by Mrs. Maukes, house-mother at the Epton chapter-house at Ithaca Conservatory of Music. During her stay here, she interviewed each of the sorority girls. The triennial province convention will be held in New York City this winter, with Alpha Theta chapter of Columbia University, acting as hosts.

Kappa Delta Phi

Helen Gaudin Lauer visited Selbert Hall recently. Dorothy Hutter and Diana Lidasas spent the week-end at their respective homes.

Sigma Sigma Delta

Sigma Sigma Delta Sorority is proud to announce that Miss Gail Hemminger has become an honorary of their group. Miss Hemminger was received at a combined business and social meeting which was held last Wednesday evening in the sorority room.

Business Club Elects Officers for the Year

The Business Administration Society held its first meeting on Monday night, October 17, at which time the members elected the officers which are to guide the destinies of the organization throughout the school term. The officers chosen are: President, John Balentine; vice president, Walter Metzger; secretary, Harold Kramer; treasurer, Edgar Hutchinson.

Plans are being made for several interesting meetings to be held during the year. Several prominent business men from the surrounding towns will be secured to deliver talks of interest to the members. Committees have been appointed to draw up a new constitution and to provide for the programs.

Crusaders Will Meet Swarthmore Oct. 29

Ullerymen Seek Fifth Consecutive Win; Quaker Team Booked to Fill Open Date

The Crusaders will be given a chance to show their stuff against the Swarthmore College "Quakers" next Saturday at Swarthmore. Negotiations were recently completed by Luther D. Grossman, director of athletics, with Dr. Samuel Palmer, graduate manager of athletics at the Quaker institution, which fills the open date on the Crusader schedule.

The Orange and Maroon gridsters began playing Swarthmore in 1923 but discontinued relationships in 1928. To date the two teams have met six times with Swarthmore winning on each occasion. However, three of these games were very close with the Crusaders losing by only a few points.

If comparative scores mean anything, Susquehanna should come through with its fifth victory of the season. Susquehanna defeated Moravian by a 12 to 7 count in the opening game of the season. Franklin and Marshall handed the Moravian gridsters a trouncing in an early season game by a 20 to 7 score. Last Saturday, Franklin and Marshall scored almost at will against Swarthmore to win 31-13, with both of the loser's touchdowns being made against a second-string eleven.

It is highly possible for the Crusaders to continue their march to victory but it will take every ounce of energy to turn aside their latest opponent.

DOROTHEA MEYER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club met and organized on Monday evening, October 17. The following officers were elected: President, Dorothea Meyer; vice-president, Harry Johnson; secretary, Mary Patterson; treasurer, Blanche Savidge; reporter, Aberdeen Phillips.

After the business meeting Miss Lucy Irving gave a most interesting talk about her summer's experiences, a part of which time she studied at the University of Madrid. She spent the remainder of the summer touring Europe.

Co-eds Witness Hockey Match in Philadelphia

On Saturday, October 21, the All-Philadelphia Team met the All-Boston Team in a Hockey match at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. The game resulted in a victory for the Philadelphia team by a score of 7-1. This was one of the best games of the season since the rivalry between Philadelphia and Boston has always been very keen. The Philadelphia team had seven players who were also selected for the All-American team.

The game was very interesting, especially to those girls who attended from Susquehanna. The team work was excellent, although they seemed to bunch more than they should have.

The following were the persons present from Susquehanna:

Miss Dorothy Reeder, Physical Education Director, Ruth Bergstresser, Ruth Plummer, Anna Benfer, Frances Marks, Edith Frankenhof, Daisy Reese, Bernice Brubaker, Mary Ann Cressman, Esther Geisel, Sarah Ulrich, Rose Runk, Mary Jane Kehler, and Pauline Crow. Transportation was furnished by Miss Reeder, Frances Marks, and Sarah Stahl.

FROSH UPSET SOCCER LEADERS

The Frosh contributed the greatest upset in the soccer league by overwhelming the Juniors, last week's leaders, by a score of 5 to 1. In a very loosely played game, the Frosh walloped the Juniors by a count of 8 to 1. The only other game played during the week was a tilt between the Sophs and Juniors which ended in a 3-3 tie.

Several games were cancelled due to the wet condition of the field and will be played on some future date.

Standing of the teams:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Frosh	2	1	.667
Sophs	1	1	.500
Juniors	1	1	.500
Seniors	1	2	.333

Locust Gap Defeats Jayvee Eleven, 20-0

Large Crowd Witnesses Initial Game in New Mt. Carmel "Silver Bowl" Stadium

Journeying to Mount Carmel on Saturday, the Jay Vee gridmen lost for the first time this season to a powerful Locust Gap eleven by a 20-0 score. The game was played in the new Mt. Carmel high school stadium and was witnessed by 1000 fans.

The Locust Gap team took the offensive early in the first quarter, scoring a touchdown within five minutes of play, making a continuous march down the field after the kick-off. In the second quarter, the Jay Vees had an opportunity to tally, when they blocked a punt, but were unable to penetrate the line of their opponents and a costly fumble gave the home team their second six pointer of the game. The third touchdown of the tilt came in the third quarter, when the home eleven made a 50 yard sustained drive down the field.

Franks, Bedridge, and S. Scicchitano played stellar roles on the offensive for Locust Gap, while the defensive work of Anderson and Devereaux, and the punting of Carl featured for the Junior Varsity. Line up:

AMUSEMENTS

The Selingsgrove Dauntless Hook and Ladder Company will stage benefit shows at The Stanley on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Evening privileges have been granted to the Seibert Hall girls, who wish to attend the movies those nights. Help the "smoke eaters" by purchasing tickets from one of the fire ladders.

"War Correspondent," with Jack Holt, is the attraction for Wednesday and the next evening "Skyscraper Souls" will be shown, featuring Warren William.

Friday night, Edward Robinson will give a memorable performance in "Two Seconds," which is based on a story of what passes through a man's mind in the last two seconds he is conscious before electrocution.

Another Western talkie is booked for Saturday, when Tim McCoy will star in "The Riding Tornado."

Next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Vicki Baum's famous play, "Grand Hotel," will be shown on the silver screen with Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Lionel and John Barrymore, in the leading roles.

Seibert Hall Echoes

SEIBERT HALL ECHOES . . . JBI—A beautiful half-moon, stars, the drone of a far away mail plane as it dies in the distance, a rustling of leaves, a tang of fall air as it blows through my window, but still there remains that wall between me and those wide-open spaces . . . mere co-eds . . . Why did everybody go somewhere this week-end? Freda Stephens is "the" authority on the venue haricot now taking Seibert by storm . . . Kappa Delta Phi held Bruce Worthington as captive at their Pirate Party on Friday . . . Clegg makes an excellent teachers' pet week-ends . . . Selingsgrove Hall became rejuvenated one night, and caused considerable disturbance (those things do happen you know) . . . Anthen who? A Carl???? Library romances are still going strong so they say . . . Why is Dot continually asked if he has really broken with Joe? Does that mean that they are preparing to take him by storm? Will someone please inform "our" Mr. Schiavo just what the expression "Take for a ride" means? . . . And so we end—just another week—"sans wine, sans song, sans singer, and sans end" . . .

An Old Hotel Custom

Guest: "A rope ladder in case of fire."
Hotel Keeper: "Very good—guests with fire escapes pay in advance."

Kappa Dels Entertain Frosh Girls Outdoors

With a brisk wind and spicy autumn weather providing a real environment, Kappa Delta Phi sorority held their annual out-door rush party by capturing the Freshmen maids on Friday afternoon and taking them to the Pirates Den located in an old canal along the river, where feasting, and merry-making took place. The Pirates were rough and bold, as Pirates should be, and skeletons, skulls, owls, and dice completed the arrangement. A treasure chest was dug up by Mary Jane Kahler containing letter openers in the form of daggers for each of the captives, and a bag of gold coins for the finder. The menu consisted of Chili Con Carne, rolls, potato chips, pickles, pie, and coffee. Nightfall necessitated the return of the captives. Miss Evelyn R. Allison, Kappa Delta Phi '18, acted as chaperon.

Bob McGeehan to Head the Mathematics Club

The Mathematics Club under the direction of Dr. Franklin G. Williams was organized Thursday noon, October 20. It was agreed that the club should meet the first Monday of every month and that this year it should be officially organized. Robert McGeehan was elected president and Sara Ulrich, secretary. It was decided that the programs of the club should be of a two fold nature. One part of the program will be concerned with biographies of interesting mathematicians, the other part will have to do with problems and things of interest to those who are taking the more advanced mathematics.

more effective work on the A.B. and B.S. degrees. Now by merging her theological department in line with her policy of concentration, she would still further center all her power and resources on the building of a better and finer college for men and women of the church and nation. This would enable her to strengthen her present work in the college and conservatory of music. She now offers the standard A.B. degree, the B.S. degree in Business Administration and Commercial Education, and the Mus.B. degree. These curricula in the college and Music Departments would offer to the church and nation a sufficiently restricted program of educational service as to draw to the institution at Selingsgrove students from many quarters who were interested in quality above quantity.

At the present time the matter of consummating the merger of the four seminaries into one Eastern Seminary of the United Lutheran Church of America is in the hands of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church of America.

ting out of the mode of separate synods, is the plan for solving these territorial difficulties.

The adoption of the merger after six or more years of study by the demands of the laymen as a financial necessity, the clergy surrendering to the inevitable, but not without much discussion, Rev. Dr. Henry H. Ruzger, president of the Pittsburgh Synod, the Rev. Dr. G. Morris Smith, president of Susquehanna, and the Rev. Dr. Charles J. Smith, president of Roanoke College, Salem, Virginia, were very favorable to the merger in all their discussions.

Before the merger becomes effective several years may pass, but the biggest and most important step has been taken, and when the readjustments have been made the merger will take place.

The eleven seminaries involved are Hartwick, Brooklyn, N. Y., Gettysburg; at Gettysburg; Hamma Divinity school, Springfield, Ohio; Susquehanna, Selingsgrove; Pittsburgh theological, Mt. Airy, Pa.; Chicago, Maywood, Ill.; Martin Luther, Lincoln, Nebraska; Western, Fremont, Neb.; and Pacific, Seattle, Washington; Southern, Columbia, S. C., and Northwest at Minneapolis, Minn.

Hoover Is Favorite In S. U. Straw Vote

Republican Candidate For President Carries All Classes and Faculty By Considerable Majority

President Herbert Clark Hoover was given an overwhelming majority for re-election in "The Susquehanna" straw poll, which was held at the chapel exercises, last Wednesday.

After a compilation of the ballots cast had been made, it was found that 185 students had recorded their preference, 25 members of the faculty had voted for their favorite presidential candidate, and four unclassified ballots had been received which were marked (for Roosevelt).

Hoover had secured 133 votes, followed by Roosevelt with 64, Thomas with 14, and Uphaw, the Prohibitionist, with three. The Communist candidate, Foster, did not receive a single vote.

The freshman class gave Hoover 37, Roosevelt 21, and Thomas four. The Sophomore class recorded 26 votes for Hoover, 11 for Roosevelt, two for Thomas. The juniors gave 34 to Hoover, 10 to Roosevelt, three to Thomas, and two to Uphaw. The senior class vote was 19 for Hoover, 12 for Roosevelt, and four for Thomas.

Of the faculty ballots, Hoover received 17, followed by Roosevelt with six, and single votes for Thomas and Uphaw.

Y. W. Meet Conducted by Ruth Bergstresser

Ruth Bergstresser was leader of the Y. W. meeting Thursday evening October 27 at 10 o'clock.

The question for discussion was "How does a co-ed reflect her personality?" She reflects her personality when, as she enters college, she adjusts herself to a room-mate, the classroom professor, the lessons to be prepared, the social life of college—not all play as is sometimes thought—the formation of her character, by her conduct, personal appearance, and attitude toward the problems and standards of the college. When a co-ed comes to college she must come with an open mind and a willingness to take advantage of all the opportunities the college offers her. The co-ed owes it to herself to preserve her intellectual independence and integrity. No one can think for her. Cheerfulness marks the personality of the co-ed almost more than anything else. The way a co-ed spends her money, time, and energy reflects fully her personality. Lastly the spiritual nature of a co-ed needs training and developing if she is to come into a realization of her better self.

BOND AND KEY CLUB LEADS IN FRATERNITY SCHOLASTIC RACE

Bond and Key Club stood first in the scholastic averages of the fraternities for the second semester of the 1931-32 term, according to unofficial report which was released, during the past week, by the registrar, Miss Emily Sweetman. The registrar states that the fraternity averages are unofficial, because the members of the various groups have until the end of this semester to complete unfinished work.

Andrew Kozak and Lewis Fox, both seniors, were tied for the highest mark, each having the perfect average of 3.00. Kozak is a member of Bond and Key and is now attending the University of West Virginia, where he has a fellowship in the mathematics department. Fox is affiliated with the Phi Mu Delta fraternity and is preparing for the ministry at the Mt. Airy Theological Seminary.

The average scholastic standing of each of the four fraternities was as follows: Bond and Key 1.91; Phi Mu Delta 1.72; Phi Lambda Theta 1.49; and Sigma Alpha 1.33. Thirty-nine men were included on the Bond and Key list, thirty on the Phi Mu Delta report, Phi Lambda Theta's calculation was based on nine men, while Epsilon

P. M. C. to be Severe Test for Ullerymen

Undefeated Crusader Eleven Must Show Full Strength to Overcome Powerful Cadet Aggregation

After the thrilling victory over Swarthmore on Saturday, the Ullerymen will again take on stiff competition when they meet the Cadet grid machine of the Pennsylvania Military College on University Field next Saturday in the annual Homecoming Day classic.

All indications point toward a hard battle, as the Chester Cadets have one of the heaviest lines in the east, averaging two hundred pounds to the man, with Cook at left end and Finch at left tackle, being fourth year men.

Their backfield is by no means light. It averages one hundred ninety pounds. In their backfield they have such stars as Big Red Pollocks, former Northeast High star, of Philadelphia; Melinsky, Bud Andrew and Britton, veteran of four seasons at quarterback, can run wild on Saturday to score a 25-0 victory over Dickinson.

In the ten times which the Crusaders have encountered the P. M. C. warriors since 1915, they have won three contests while the Cadets won the remaining seven. Although the Orange and Maroon outplayed their opponents according to statistics in 1930, they were defeated by a score of 24-13. Last year the Ullerymen were forced to bow to a 13-0 score in the game played at Chester.

Thus far this season, P. M. C. has lost to Rutgers and Lehigh, and won from St. Joseph and Dickinson.

This game will be the hardest test for the Ullerymen this season and they need your support. Do you belong to the whispering cheering section? Do you want the old grads who will be coming back, to think you are dead? Let us all come out to the game and cheer the Crusaders on to victory. Every one should be there, whether getting a kick out of discussing their bet to the players. Where is your school spirit? Be there and fight with the greatest team that your school has ever produced.

Homecoming Day for Alumni on Saturday

Full Program of Activity Scheduled For S. U. Grads; Fraternity Dances in Evening

Homecoming will be celebrated this Saturday by a full and varied program of activity on Susquehanna's campus. Anticipating a large number of alumni, the administration, students, and various organizations are preparing a warm welcome for the old "grads."

The feature event of the day will be a classic football struggle between the powerful eleven from Pennsylvania Military College and Susquehanna's undefeated Crusaders. Preceding these, however, will be a new attraction of considerable interest on the women's hockey field, where at 11:30 in the morning, a picked alumni team will battle an all star aggregation of Susquehanna co-eds.

At 12:30 the annual and titanic clash between the Freshman and Sophomore football teams will take place, in which a close score is predicted by the various grandstand coaches.

Following the Varsity game, the scene of activity will be shifted from the athletic field to the various fraternity houses. Orchestras scheduled for these Homecoming Dances are as follows: at the Bond and Key Club, Russ Fairchild's Rhythmic Kings; at Epsilon Sigma, Guy Osborne, of Bucknell University; at Phi Lambda Theta, Mira Mar, of Tampa, Florida; at Phi Mu Delta, Ray Calebrese, from New York.

Honor Science Club to Present Coal Expert

Dr. Homer G. Twiney, the country's best authority on anthracite coal, will speak to the Honor Science Club tonight at 6:30 in Steele Science Hall. This meeting will be the second monthly meeting of this group.

The lecture, entitled "What is Anthracite?" will be accompanied by lantern slides. Dr. Twiney is a geologist of repute and for several years was Professor of Geology at Lehigh University. After leaving his position at Lehigh he spent some time in anthracite research. At present he is in charge of the coal research laboratory at State College, presumably the best and largest laboratory of its kind in the world. Dr. Twiney has made many interesting discoveries concerning the importance and uses of "hard" coal and has written many bulletins and pamphlets concerning his work.

The Honor Science Club extends an invitation to all students, faculty members, and townpeople to attend this meeting tonight. There will be no admission charges.

New Girls Entertained By S. S. D. Sorority

A place in the country along the banks of a stream was the scene of a delightful Halloween party given for the new girls by the Sigma Sigma Delta Sorority.

Much hilarity was enjoyed on the ride while going to and from the scene of the rendezvous. The biting autumn air and the whistling wind created an ideal Halloween atmosphere.

The outstanding episode of the evening was the exploration of an abandoned old mill which provided the girls with eerie thrills.

We venture to say that no one came away hungry, and that the girls will remember the evening in many ways.

DR. GEORGE F. DUNKELBERGER TO ADDRESS PI GAMMA MU

On Monday evening, November 7, under the auspices of Pi Gamma Mu Fraternity, Dr. George F. Dunkelberger will deliver an address at 8:15 o'clock at Selbert Hall.

This interesting address will refer to his experiences and observations during his summer vacation in Europe and Asia. His subject is "Athens and Constantinople." The public is invited to hear this talented speaker.

FIFTH CONSECUTIVE WIN MARKS NEW RECORD FOR S. U. GRIDIRON TEAMS

Ullerymen Register Last Minute Victory as Fighting Line Forces Garnet Offense Back to Goal; Extrom Blocks Kick

Susquehanna's mighty Crusaders came from behind in the last three minutes of play in the final quarter to win their fifth consecutive victory of the season by a 13-10 count over Swarthmore College on Saturday, when Captain "Bull" Extrom broke through the "Quakers" line to block a punt on the one yard line which was turned into a touchdown as Carmichael downed the oval across the goal.

In one of the greatest exhibitions of football by an Orange and Maroon line, the Crusaders turned back several enemy attempts to score, and it was only through their passing attack that the Quakers were able to shove across their lone touchdown.

The first quarter was played on about even terms with neither team being able to score. Captain Schems kicked off to Meyers, who returned it twenty yards to his own twenty-five yard line. The Crusaders immediately began to hammer at the Garnet line, which netted them two first down in succession. After being held for three downs, Martinec punted and the Crusaders returned in possession of the ball when Extrom pounced on a fumble by Abrams, Swarthmore's safety man.

Once again Quarterback Meyers called for line smashing plays as another first down was registered. On the fourth down, Sassaman received the ball and faked back to throw a forward to Meyers which would have been a sure score, but Yarnall, the Quaker left halfback, knocked the pigskin from his waiting hands to prevent a tally.

Sipler pulled his teammates out of danger when he kicked from his own goal to the Susquehanna forty yard line. Martinec dropped back on a reverse to heave a forward, but it was intercepted by Sipler, the Quaker fullback, who immediately threw a long pass to Kelly, who raced to the Orange and Maroon six yard line before being downed. Displaying their strong forward wall for which they are noted, the Crusaders turned back four attempts to score as the ball rested on the two yard line.

The first score of the game came in the second period as Sipler heaved a long forward pass from Susquehanna's eighteen yard line into the open arms of Abrams, who eluded the Crusader tacklers and scored standing up. The extra point was added by a placement by Captain Schems.

Late in the second quarter, Sipler intercepted one of Sassaman's passes, but W. Wasilewski evaded the score as he pulled one of Sipler's passes out of the air and in a beautiful exhibition of broken field running, raced to the Swarthmore twenty yard line. Meyers gained eighteen yards on two plays through tackle and then Sassaman carried the oval across and deadlocked the score as he kicked back the extra point.

Swarthmore came back in the third quarter to forge ahead when Prest, the Garnet pivot man, recovered a Susquehanna fumble on the Orange and Maroon twelve yard line. The Crusader line held the Garnet ball carriers in check for three downs and then Captain Schems decided to try a field goal with himself doing the kicking. The ball sailed between the uprights and the Quakers again led by a three point margin in the great battle of the S's. (Concluded on Page 4)

OMEGA DELTA SIGMA PRESENTS "THE PERFECT ALIBI" ON NOVEMBER THIRD

Omega Delta Sigma sorority will delight its audience on Thursday evening at 8 p. m. in Selbert Hall Chapel with the presentation of that delightful detective story of A. A. Milne, "The Perfect Alibi."

The cast has been working for four weeks under the skillful direction of Miss Dorothy Reeder and the play promises to be a very good representation of the dramatic ability of all the actors and actresses.

There are two scenes in the first act which are so different in their presentation that they cause an almost startling effect. The first scene is light and free from all thought of a tragedy. The second scene has a heavy atmosphere. It is in this scene that the tragedy occurs. In this part Luke Rhoads will really show his dramatic ability in his portrayal of the villain. We can assure you that he is just as good and perhaps better in this role than in his usual role of the hero lover.

The second act is grim in its detail. John Ballentine, as the sergeant of Scotland Yard, and William Caruth, his father, conduct an investigation which bring out all the small details which the audience may have missed. "Bill" Caruth adds humor to this act by being the blundering inspector who mixes all the discoveries of his brilliant son.

The first scene of the last act is presented by Daisy Reese and Jack Petry. They, by simply going over all the facts in the case and by examining all the minute details of the room, discover the actual murderer.

The cast of characters are: Jimmy Ludgrove, Jack Petry, Susan Cunningham, Daisy Reese, Edward Laversick, William Morrow, Edward Carter, Luke Rhoads, Jane West, Virginia Anderson, Mrs. Fulverton-Pane, Louise Mehrens, Arthur Ludgrove, Robert Clarke, Adams, Aberdeen Phillips, P. C. Mallet, William Caruth, Sergeant Mallet, John Ballentine.

Tickets are now on sale for the nominal sum of forty cents and can be secured from any member of the sorority. Refreshments will be served after the play in the Social Room of Selbert Hall.

POLITICS CALLING THE STUDENT

Next Tuesday the nation's voter will go to the polls to exercise his right of suffrage as a citizen of a democracy, the United States. With the country in its present unsettled economic status, the public has been awakened to its responsibilities on election day. An unusually large vote is in order.

During the coming week, the political atmosphere will be thick with campaign speeches and the nation's press will devote thousands of columns to that ever absorbing topic—politics. It is hardly necessary to say that it is incumbent upon the college students of voting age to study the issues in the present campaign, and to investigate the platforms of the various parties. It is up to them to probe into the maze of ballyhoo and personally get a true delineation of the candidates. In short, the college group has the responsibility of voting, and voting intelligently.

In recent years, college students as a group, unfortunately, have held aloof from the field of politics. They have had little concern for matters that have been and are of vital importance to them. The stigma attached to "politics" has no doubt been influential in establishing the rather scornful attitude toward government on the part of college students. They have failed to contribute toward anything constructive in government and, in their stand-offish manner, have done nothing to repair the ill repute of politics.

However, "President Hoover looks to the college students of today to be the Messiahs of our political future" says Frances Lee in an exclusive interview with the President in Washington. He is quoted as saying "The iron-bound traditions of the old-time political philosophy are antiquated and old fogeyish for our present industrial generation, and college students are the logical ones to carry a new banner into national affairs. Science has become the motivating force in our present economic and social life. Great administrators, engineers, lawyers, moral leaders cannot be made by birth or money. They must be trained, and our colleges and universities train the student's mind to tackle those complex problems that are the result of the scientific brain-storm which has changed the complexion of our American life."

Susquehanna students must realize the importance of understanding the issues confronting the nation today, if one may judge by the amount of interest displayed in the recent presidential poll conducted by THE SUSQUEHANNA. Many of the members of the student body are not of voting age. Some might think it a waste of time and energy for a minor to engage in politics of any sort. But will he not be better prepared to act intelligently when he is given the franchise, if he has a definite knowledge of the problems and issues involved?

Cicero, the great Roman orator and statesman, once made a statement that has been repeated and handed down to thousands of college students. He maintained that the completion of all knowledge lay in its application to the affairs of state; therefore, the college student has a great field open to him in politics. Here is a challenge to robust American youth, an opportunity for initiative and leadership, and more than that—an opportunity for unlimited service.

ITS YOUR HOMECOMING, ALUMNI

Football heroes and fraternity presidents; honor academic students and editors; theologians and business men rank and file and celebrities. . . . the men who lifted Susquehanna to its present position of prominence, the workers of the past, who will in a large degree account for the University's future enrollment and prominence. . . . to all these Alumni we offer a cordial invitation to be present at Saturday's array of dances, its football game, and good fellowship.

Return again to the Alma Mater that has grown through your efforts and will continue to grow. Susquehanna wants, at this Homecoming, to express its appreciation of Alumni support.

Miss Thelma E. Armagost, instructor in the department of commercial education, has been unable to meet her classes for the past few days on account of illness.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Leese spent last week-end in Ithaca, New York, where they visited friends.

Dr. George F. Dunkelberger was the evening speaker at the second annual district Sunday School Association, of the Danville Conference, Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania. This convention was held October 26 in the First Lutheran Church. Dean Dunkelberger spoke on the important question, "Can the Sunday School Justify Itself?" He gave a many-sided viewpoint of this modern question.

Prof. Eldon K. Rumberger, instructor in education, spoke at the afternoon session of this question. The subject of his address was "The Psychology of Religion in Relation to the Child."

Annual Frosh-Soph Classic This Week

Both Teams Primed for Grid Battle on Homecoming Day; Close Score Is Predicted

The Freshmen and Sophomore football teams are rounding into shape in preparation for the annual Homecoming tilt next Saturday which is scheduled to start at 12:30.

The Freshmen are very fortunate in securing a coaching staff made up of Robert McGeehan, Nelson Gray, and Jack Petry. The Sophomore aggregation will be under the tutelage of William Swann. Due to the training of both coaching staffs, the game should be one of the hardest fought battles in years.

Pre-game dope seems to give the Sophs a slight advantage over the first year men, since many of the Frosh are novices at the game. However, the Frosh should wipe the dope with their powerful line.

Coach Swann has based most of his hopes on his fast stepping backfield which is made up of Caruth, Jones, Anderson, and Deveraux. On the line he will have another selected group of hard fighters including Schreiner, Boyer, Stirling, Abbott, Clark, Hartman and Shobert.

The Frosh will pin their hopes on their strong forward line which is composed of Nagely, Wineberger, Grossman, Von Konyd, Blair, Lipkei and Crankshaw. Coaches McGeehan, Gray and Petry have worked up a backfield combination that will be hard to stop. This group includes Hess, Wruble, Seavey, and Najaka.

Probable starting lineup:

Freshmen	Sophomore
Nagely	L. E. Schreiner
Wineberger	L. T. Boyer
Grossman	L. G. Stirling
Von Konyd	C. Abbott
M. Blair	R. G. Clark
Lipkei	R. T. Hartman
Crankshaw	R. E. Shobert
Najaka	Q. B. Caruth
Seavey	R. H. Jones
Wruble	L. H. Anderson
Hess	F. B. Deveraux

Nine Golfers Survive Official Elimination

Frosh Eleven Bows to Sunbury Orphanage

In their initial game of the season, Susquehanna's Frosh gridsters lost a 39-0 decision to a strong I. O. O. F. Orphanage eleven at Sunbury on Friday. Scoring the largest number of points that they have tallied in any single game this season, the Orphanage team presented a slashing attack that left the yearlings in a daze during a greater part of the game. The lack of experience on the part of the Frosh was perhaps the greatest cause of their downfall.

The Frosh, however, showed plenty of fight, but the greater experience and cooperation of the Orphanage lads enabled them to tally in every quarter. Tasker was high scorer for the opposing team, making five of the Orphanage's six touchdowns. Wineberger at tackle, Von Konyd at center, and Hess in the backfield, were the main factors of the Freshman defense, making most of the tackles.

Maurice Sheaffer, Susquehanna '32 is the coach of the Orphanage eleven.

FACULTY AT NORTH BRANCH SYNOD CONFERENCE

On October 25 and 26, the North Branch Conference of the Susquehanna Synod was held in Expy with the Rev. Dallas C. Baer, a graduate of Susquehanna University and Seminary presiding.

Dr. Thomas Houz, Dr. Theodore W. Kretschmann, Dr. Franklin P. Manhart, Dr. G. Morris Smith and Professor Edwin M. Brungart represented Susquehanna.

Dr. Franklin P. Manhart, Dean of the seminary, explained the three-synod plan. An outline of the four-synod plan was explained and approved by former State Senator Charles Steele, Mr. Reimensnyder, a Sunbury lawyer, and President G. Morris Smith. The plans were discussed in detail, but no note was taken.

In a grim determination to shove across the winning score in the final quarter, the Crusader ball toters hammered the Garnet line, and threw forward passes but to no avail. The Orange and Maroon line then came into control as they threw the Quaker backfield men for big losses and Sipler was forced to kick from his own one yard line.

foe, Captain Extrom broke through the Garnet line and blocked Sipler's punt. The ball glanced and rolled across the goal as Carmichael rushed through to down the pigskin and give Susquehanna a hard fought victory. Sassaman's kick for extra point was wide.

With only two minutes to play, Swarthmore fought valiantly to score and regain the victory, which had been snatched from them on one play, but their numerous forward passes fell to the ground.

This game shall go down in the history of Susquehanna as one of the greatest in years. It is the first time that a Susquehanna grid machine has been victorious over a Swarthmore College team. It is the first time that an Orange and Maroon football aggregation has won five consecutive victories in the history of the school. This year's team can be said to be one of the best ever to play under the Orange and Maroon colors.

PEP MEETING SHOWS NEW SPIRIT IN SUSQUEHANNA STUDENT BODY

Winning Football Team Succeeds in Arousing Enthusiasm Long Overdue; "Doc" Mowles and Former S. U. Heroes Speak

Inspired by an inspired football team, spirit and enthusiasm reached a new level on the campus over the past week-end, climaxing in the rousing support displayed by Susquehanna students at the epic gridiron struggle in which the Crusaders held the mighty P. M. C. aggregation to a stalemate.

Friday night the Men's Student Council staged a pep meeting which has seldom been equalled at Susquehanna and which will remain long in the memories of the students and alumni who attended. Several of the old grads willingly took part in the demonstration, and the names of such former athletes and popular figures as Johnny Wahl, Bob Hostetter, Al Barber, "Dinny" Wormley, Jack Auchmuty, and Jack DeLay were heard as they took the platform in turn.

"Doc" Mowles, former director of physical education at Susquehanna, delivered a stirring address in which he emphasized the importance of spirit and support in the success of a football team. He also commended Professor L. D. Grossman for his splendid work in the athletic development of S. U.

Members of the varsity squad who were able to be present were given a great ovation, and each was required to say a word or two in response. Similarly, Coach Ullery complied by stressing the effect of student backing, intimating that the result of Saturday's game would probably depend upon the spirit with which the students spurred on the players.

The band rose to the occasion, moving pictures of the Hartwick game were flashed on an improvised screen, and the cheering squad brought forth a response that was almost unheard of.

Homecoming Dances Climax the Week-End

With the hectic blare of ecstasie dance bands, the convergence of smooth-shaved males, but smoother females, and a general hilarious exaltation of the afternoon brawn and boot classic, Home-Coming dances at the fraternities made a strenuous climax to the week-end that even Wenchell could approve. ("Heh, heh!")

Phi Mu Delta super-structure, Ray Calabrese, from New York, gave his raucous interpretation of college music, rabs! Guy Osborne, of Bucknell University, whooped it up for Epsilon Sigma; Phi Lambda Theta's Mira Mara, of Tampa, Florida, wafted those sweet Florida melodies to the boys, while Bond and Key romped to the strains of Russ Fairchild's Rhythm Kings.

And so to bed, Watson!

Our Colleges Have Served 836 Years

Susquehanna University, together with its thirteen sister Lutheran colleges of the United Lutheran church, has a combined record of 836 years of service. The colleges of the U. L. C. A. include Gettysburg, Hartwick, Wittenberg, Carthage, Roanoke, Newberry, Susquehanna, Muhlenberg, Thiel, Marion Junior, Wagner, Midland, Lenox Rhine, and Waterloo.

Though there are fourteen of these Lutheran colleges, yet there are 26,000 Lutheran students attending non-Lutheran institutions in the United States. The total student enrollment for the institutions named is 10,209. Their alumni total 21,329. The total number of professors and instructors at these fourteen institutions is 462.

Most of these schools carry fair endowments and the total of the permanent endowments is $9,263, 196, while the value of all assets is $25,329, 372. Property value of all seminaries and colleges in the U. L. C. A. is given at $14,561,454.

Gala Homecoming Is Best In S. U. Annals

More Than 200 Grads Come from Far and Wide to See Undefeated Crusaders in Action

Probably the most enthusiastic and most successful Homecoming Day ever witnessed at Susquehanna University was celebrated on the campus last Saturday. Graduates and former students came from miles away to see Susquehanna's undefeated football team, and to renew old acquaintances and strengthen cherished memories.

Several alumni arrived on the campus as early as Thursday, and many more turned out for the pep meeting and bonfire on Friday night. The largest crowd to attend a Susquehanna football game in years filled the stands on Saturday afternoon and helped inspire the Crusaders to hold the powerful P. M. C. eleven to a scoreless tie.

In the fraternity houses on Saturday evening the number of alumni present was reported to have exceeded considerably that of previous Homecoming dances.

Foremost in the minds of all was the splendid showing of the Orange and Maroon football team. The old grads expressed their admiration at the spirit of the present student body, and related with pride how they had spread the news in their particular localities concerning the unprecedented gridiron record of their alma mater.

Sunday witnessed many regretful departures and also the unanimous opinion that each graduate had attended the best Homecoming Day in the history of the college.

Soph Stars Crush Frosh Grid Machine

Anderson and Devereaux Led Attack for Swarm's Proleges; Blocked Kick and Fumble Result in Scores

Scoring twice in the second quarter on a blocked kick and a fumble, the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen in the annual Homecoming Day tilt on University Field by a count of 13-0.

The Sophs, under the expert tutelage of William Swann, had a slight advantage over the seatlings on account of their experience, but they were forced to put forth every effort to win. Their main attack was centered around Anderson and Devereaux who carried the ball for lengthy gains with the latter carrying the pigskin across the goal on both occasions.

Coaches McCrehan, Gray, and Petry and Suter had a task on their hands in building up a team of practically all inexperienced men. Much credit is due these coaches for their being able to put a team on the field that fought every minute of the game and had it not been that a break was registered against them in the second quarter, the game would have ended in a closer score, or possibly a deadlock. Sheaffer, Benner, who was substituted in the second half, and Hess stood out in the Frosh backfield for each making several nice gains.

In the first quarter, Hess returned Caruth's kick-off to the forty-five yard line. After three attempts at the line, Hess dropped back to punt but the pass from center was low and his kick (Concluded on Page 4)

Red Cross Appeals to College Students

In opening the Red Cross annual Roll Call on Armistice Day, November 11, 1932, a special appeal is being made to college students.

A bulletin sent out by the organization reads: "To the colleges of the country the Red Cross looks for its trained leadership. The real importance of enrolling college students as members is not merely to obtain memberships from among a particular group but to spread a knowledge of the aims and objects of the Red Cross and to arouse the lasting interest of the young men and women who are soon to become actors in the public life of their communities."

HEAVY ATTACK OF INVADING CADETS REPULSED BY FIGHTING CRUSADERS

Ullerymen Still Undefeated in Six Starts Following Great Defensive Exhibition; Schlegel Out For Season

Before a Homecoming Day crowd of approximately 2,000 fans, the Crusaders rose to great heights to battle the Pennsylvania Military College gridsters to a scoreless tie on University Field on Saturday to retain their undefeated record in the 1932 season.

Although the Orange and Maroon linemen were outweighed by fifteen pounds to a man, they fought every minute of the game to hold the Cadet ball carriers to a stalemate. On the line, Captain "Bull" Exstrom, Rich Fisher, and Ken Alexander stood out as they broke up play after play for no gain. Jerry Schlegel was playing a great defensive game at an end position until he was forced to retire in the fourth quarter because of a knee injury, which will probably keep him out for the remainder of the season.

Students Appear In O. D. S. Mystery Play On Thursday Night

An Appreciative Audience Viewed Production of the Popular "Perfect Alibi" by A. A. Milne

An appreciative audience really saw a fine characterization of roles in the Omega Delta Sigma sorority play, last Thursday night. "The Perfect Alibi," a three act mystery by A. A. Milne, was the first campus production of the season.

Luke Rhoads, the hero lover and veteran dramatist, gave a fine portrayal of Edward Carter, the villain. Mr. Rhoads usually is a hero lover, but in this play gave way to the rendition of a villain with perfect alibi. Miss Daisy Reese had the leading female role and showed ability in the final scene in a review of facts. Daisy was capably assisted in this final scene by Jack Petry.

The crime was not committed until the second scene of the first act, but the second act was a heavy act, because of the grim detail of Scotland Yard investigation.

Bill Caruth and John Ballentine were representing the Scotland Yard investigators and their search revealed many of the real clues and reasons for the crime. Some relaxing humor was brought into an otherwise difficult second act by the blunders of the investigators.

Every member of the cast seemed to have an alibi to escape the extenuating circumstances of the murder, but relatives of the murdered man devised an intricate scheme to discover the real murderer.

The sorority takes this opportunity to thank every person who took part in the play for their cooperation in making it a success. Miss Dorothy Reeder, the popular director of girls' athletics, was the director of the play.

The cast of characters in order of appearance was: Jimmy Ludgrove Jack Petry Susan Cunningham Daisy Reese (Concluded on Page 4)

A CORRECTION

"The Susquehanna" takes this means of correcting a mistake made in the issue of November 1.

An article concerning the Honor Science Club meeting included the following statement: "Dr. Homer G. Twilney will speak to the Honor Science Club tonight at 6:30 in Steele Science Hall." The correction stands: Dr. Homer G. Turner, the country's best authority on anthracite coal, will speak to the Honor Science Club at 6:30, Tuesday, November 8, in Steele Science Hall. The staff regrets this misspelling and the incorection of time and places this notice to assure the students of the time.

The Crusader line was aided in holding the Soldiers scoreless when Steve Martinec punted the ball out of dangerous positions on several occasions. Although the Ullerymen were forced to play mostly a defensive game, the Orange and Maroon backfield was smashing the Cadet two hundred pound line for gains. Hanna, Martinec and Sassaman were the chief ground gainers with Rishel, who was substituted for Sassaman in the third quarter, making several lengthy runs to pave the way for three of Susquehanna's six first downs.

The Cadets were led by Big Reds Pollock, Bud Andrew and Mallinsky in the backfield while Finch and Kowal were the outstanding members of the Red and Yellow forward wall.

The first quarter started with Pollock kicking the pigskin over the goal line, and Susquehanna was given the ball on their own twenty yard stripe. After Hanna had hit the line for four yards, Martinec punted to the P. M. C. thirty-five, where it was returned to mid-field by Mallinsky. After Andrew had failed to gain at the line, Pollock tossed a pass to Russell for ten yards. Mallinsky then threw a short forward to Pollock but it was good for only five yards. Susquehanna gained possession of the ball when the line held for four downs on the Orange and Maroon twenty-eight yard stripe. Meyers piked up two yards around right end, Sassaman added two yards through tackle but Martinec was forced to punt from his own thirty-two and the ball sailed to the P. M. C. twenty-two, where Macky fumbled and Alexander recovered for Susquehanna. After two incomplete passes, the last one going over the goal to give P. M. C. possession of the ball on their own twenty.

Pollock punted to the Susquehanna forty-two and Martinec immediately punted over the goal. Russell, Pollock and Mallinsky tried to gain at the line but with no success and Pollock punted out of bounds on the fifty yard line. After an incomplete pass, Hanna and Martinec gained four yards through the line. Martinec then punted out of bounds on the P. M. C. thirty. After exchange of punts, the Ullerymen were in possession of the ball on their own seventeen. Martinec broke through tackle for eight yards. Sassaman made it a first down by a three yard plunge. Another exchange of punts gave Susquehanna the ball on their twenty-seven as the quarter ended.

Mallinsky returned Martinec's punt to his own forty-one. Pollock attempted to pass, but it was intercepted by Fisher on the fifty yard line. Sassaman and Meyers could get only three yards, but P. M. C. was penalized fifteen yards. A pass from Sassaman to Hanna netted five yards and then Sassaman and Hanna hit the line for seven. On the third down, Sassaman faked back and threw a long pass, but Mallinsky intercepted it and raced to his forty-two. Pollock and Mallinsky then carried the ball to Susquehanna's twenty, where Hanna intercepted Pollock's pass on the five yard line. Martinec punted (Concluded on Page 4)

SCHOOL SPIRIT REVIVED

For the first time in several years, a real school spirit has been manifested by Susquehanna students and was in evidence at the Cadet-Crusader fracas, last Saturday afternoon. The tremendous improvement in school spirit and especially in student cheering at the "pop" meeting and the P. M. C. clash is worthy of comment. The efforts of the cheer-leaders were rewarded by support of the team by practically the entire student body and the volume of cheers that echoed and reechoed across University Field was a credit to Susquehanna University.

The special cheering section for the students undoubtedly had a great deal to do with the excellent support the team received. It is a well-known fact that it is practically impossible to get any response from a widely-scattered group of supporters. It is hoped that the stands will be packed for the remaining home fray with Juniata College in order that the team may receive the support from the alumni and the students that it deserves.

The group of upperclassmen and faculty members who were responsible for the increase of school spirit during the past week, which ultimately resulted in the voluminous cheering, should be commended for their splendid work. What a whale of a difference between the spirit shown at the Hartwick conflict and the support given to the Crusaders in their struggle against the powerful P. M. C. outfit by the students. One week a body without any sign of life, and two weeks later a group overflowing with vim, vigor, and vitality. A stranger would hardly believe the support to have been given by the same student-body. It is truly remarkable that such a change took place within a fortnight.

We have shown that we can support the team 100 per cent, and let us do so again in the last home game of the season with the Indians from Juniata. It will go a long way towards helping our team to emerge victorious from the struggle. Therefore, let us make it our duty to be in the student cheering section on Founders Day, when we meet Juniata, and at least equal, if not improve upon the cheering of the P. M. C. battle.

THE PEARLY GATE TO COLLEGE

What the Pearly Gates are to heaven, the soda emporium is to college.

Here is the trysting place of lovers. . . . the back-room of political conferences. . . . a mart for scandal. . . . headquarters of the disconsolate, inquiring, and idle. . . . the place where campus celebrity rubs elbows with the humblest frosh, and bronzed football gladiators grow pensive over diminutive "cokes."

A dash of bitters and a heaven of love. . . . a pretzel and an item of scandal. . . . a sandwich munched between terse comments on next week's grid wrangle. . . . A potpourri of emotion, small talk, and marplots. . . .

Every emporium of carbonation has its soda gigolo. He's a combination of business man and philosopher, counselor and criterion, showman and sage. He may not know how to make a million dollars but he can tell you how. . . . His knowledge of math and languages may be nil, but he is steeped in campus traditions, encircled by a halo of romance, and hallowed by reason of permanence. If he grows old with the college, he will be gradually defiled into a local Jupiter known as "Pop."

What would college do without that peg upon which to hang its escutcheon—the university soda-bar?

PRE-THEOLOGS HELD MONTHLY MEETING LAST THURSDAY

The Pre-Theological Club held its regular monthly meeting last Thursday in Room 205 of G. A. Hall.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Edwin Clapper, who also presented the topic of discussion which was "Watchfulness." Short but interesting talks concerning the topic given by Henry Cassler, Robert Sassaman, Ralph Schockey, Robert Sala, Ernest Huston, and Dr. A. William Ahl. Almost every Pre-Theolog on the campus was present, and this seems to bear out the fact that the meetings are interesting as well as helpful to the future ministers.

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on the campus. But don't tell them I told you.

REASONS WHY HE'S ON THE SIX-WEEKS' LIST (As Stated)

1. The faculty wasn't fair.
2. The studies were impossible.
3. Didn't like the professor.
4. The meals were lousy.
5. Was homesick.
6. Was misunderstood by the faculty.
7. Examinations were impossible.
8. Professors were not bright enough.
9. Didn't get enough sleep.
10. Classes were too early in the morning.

The Real Reason

Frank monopolizes even the dancing of Eleanor. . . . We understand that Ed Rimer's latest diversion is cabin parties. Incidentally, why didn't he make it unanimous for the "Honor Roll" . . .

. . . . We notice co-eds out for track work. Are they training for dates? . . . Bill Caruth stole what little there was to steal of the "Perfect Alibi". . . . Someone should compliment our Seibert Dean on her keen scent! How soon will they give her the O. G. test? . . . Malmson is no longer Holger Hest at the Strand. . . . The elusive "Black Plague" eluded its pursuers one black and stormy evening. . . . Epsilon Sigma has formed a "Marriage Club". . . . McKelvey is "muscling in" on Nan's affections. . . . Jo Hoy may emigrate to Ireland. . . . Art Weber has a triangle composed of Bolig, Straub, and Bolig. To be on the square, we ought to include Naomi. . . . Fred sings nursery rhymes in the "Con". . . . The Hassinger Hall Frosh Kindergarten Class, headed by Conahan, Wruble, and Crankshaw, is entertaining itself by tearing up rooms. . . . To some people comprehension is Priceless. . . . S. U.'s football bus trip to the complaint by the Pennsylvania Greyhound Transit. . . . Ken left his pajamas in Philadelphia. Where? . . . Two tramps were routed from the boiler room by Sells Grove Police. . . . Many co-eds were interested in Helen Monahan's Penn State weekend. . . . At Leese(!) it seems that Miss Hade would object to Jo and Bee making all Seibert at four a. m. with their children. . . . Of course you know that Wenchell excludes more than he publishes. . . . Walter Metzger thinks of starting a Love Letter School. In the past he's been advisor to Bonsale and Naugle. . . . Mill workers are not always successful in lighting bon-fires. . . . We're not moaning, even though the balloons didn't go up over Saturday's game. They were orange and maroon and to be released when the Crusaders first scored. . . . Who is the popular Frosh femme passing up the sterling dials of Wesley? What a Jane! . . . Don and Francis are honeycombing it consistently. . . . "Campusmania" and "The Gridiron" recently crashed the Sunbury press. . . . We notice "Cherry" in general circulation. . . . And so we close, with Diana still Petry-red.

In accordance with our usual policy of general helpfulness and improvement, we suggest that the press box be a little better equipped. Not only must we think of Saturday sport writers—they're only there one day a week. Now what we suggest is the addition of a few seducing lounges, a scattering of pillows, and a softly tuned radio. Thus, we may have a perfect haven for Frosh and Campusmed co-eds. After all, what is love without comfort?
P. S. Sorry! The press box has just been padlocked.

Pen Portrait

Here's a poker-faced elf who conceals a love of life under her sphinx visage. Her eyes are blue, hair brown, figure diminutive, lithe, and thin. Her present lover is the same half-pint size and a perfect match for her quizzical attitude. Incidentally, he is not the first and will not be the last. She lives for men.

She is the sort of girl who does not make a confidant of the faculty to the dismay of her sister Seibertarians. Her gambles with chance seem to run in the family. We credit her with sincerity and the fact that she does even the mundane with zest.

We here apologize for the absence of Wenchell's picture. Really, this Zemsky is most annoying. Look for it next week! And that's no fool!

Quinto seems to be flitting from blonde to blonde. . . . Watch out girls, Frankenhall, Hall, Bergstesser, Nelson, Diehl, or Reese may be around! . . . What fret houses need is more shadowy nooks and corners. . . . Lena is eye-gazing, romantically. . . . Roland and her home in Lewistown. She will be able to take without trouble any Frosh femmes it wants.

Russ Columbo calls it "madness." (Herb calls it madness, too!)

Lord Thomas Dewar tells us, "Love is an ocean of emotion entirely surrounded by expenses."

Shue Leads Mates With Three Goals, Fray Closely Contested During First Half, But Turns Into a Rout

One of the features of the Homecoming Day was a hockey game between the alumni and the co-eds. Former hockey stars showed that they still retained their fighting spirit by defeating a team chosen from the present hockey squads, 6-0.

Both teams played a closely matched game during the first half which closed with a score of 1-0. The second half the alumnae found it easy to break through the undergraduate defense to score five more goals.

Shue was high scorer with three goals and Crebs followed closely with two. Bernadine Lehman, a former student of S. U. and a graduate of Battle Creek College, scored the other goal. The all-campus team threatened to score several times in fast offensive play.

The line up for the two teams follows:

Varsity Meets Wagner
In N. Y. Tilt This Week

The Ullerymen will journey to New York next Saturday in an effort to extend their list of victories when they meet Wagner College. After the showing of the Orange and Maroon on Saturday against Pennsylvania Military College, the Crusaders should have little trouble in winning their seventh game of the season.

This will be the second time that Susquehanna has played Wagner, the first being in 1930 on University Field, when the Crusaders emerged victorious by a count of 27-7. The losers' lone score came in the fourth period when their small quarterback took the kick-off and ran through the entire Susquehanna team.

Their record this year has been excellent, having won two games and tying two. Two weeks ago they tied St. Francis (Penn.) and last Saturday they tied Moravian. According to comparative scores, Susquehanna should be the victor. The Crusaders defeated Moravian in the opening game of the season, 12 to 7, while Moravian was minus most of their valuable players in last Saturday's tilt with Wagner because of injuries.

The loss of Jerry Schlegel at end will be felt on the team, but Roach or Badger will help to fill in the vacancy. This was the only serious injury in last week's fray and the Crusaders will be ready to display that old fight when they meet Wagner on Saturday.

was blocked on the thirty-five. Nice gains by Anderson and Deveraux carried the ball to the twenty, but Deveraux fumbled on the fifteen. Again Hess received a low pass as he attempted to punt and the ball rolled out of bounds on the seven yard stripe when the Soph line broke through to block the kick. On the first play of the second quarter, Deveraux scored from the two yard line and crashed the line for the extra point.

Their second touchdown came a few minutes later when the Frosh fumbled the kick-off on their own twenty-five. Lengthy gains by Jones and Anderson carried the oval to the one yard line, where Deveraux hit the line for the second tally. Caruth attempted to drop-kick the extra point but the ball from center sailed over his head.

In the third quarter, the Frosh carried the ball from their own thirty-five to the Sophomore thirty-two on a pass from Sheaffer to Hess for thirteen yards and several gains by Benner and Hess, but the Soph line held at that point and Caruth, the Soph quarter-back, punted to the Frosh forty-five where Sheaffer took the ball and returned it to the Sophomore twenty. Here the Frosh fumbled and the Sophs began a drive which carried them to the yearlings' twenty yard line as the game ended. Lineup:

from the goal to his own forty-five where Malinsky returned it for ten yards. Again the Crusaders held as the Cadets lost the ball on the fifteen yard stripe. Martinec punted to the forty and again the Soldiers were held as they lost the ball on the thirty-four, as their passes fell to the ground. Sassaman fumbled on a reverse on the thirty yard line. A pass from Pollock to Cook was completed and Meyers downed him on the one yard line, but the first half had been over before the play had started.

The third quarter opened with Pollock kicking over the goal. This quarter was mostly a punting duel with both teams throwing passes in an effort to gain an advantage. After several exchanges of punts, Andrew punted from his thirty to the Susquehanna twenty-eight. Martinec took through the line for five yards and Rishel followed by going through tackle for ten yards. Meyers broke loose for eight yards and Martinec advanced it to the forty-eight yard line as the quarter ended.

Martinec then punted from the forty to the P. M. C. five yard line, where it was caught by Malinsky and behind perfect interference by Young, carried it to the twenty-seven. Andrew then punted to the Susquehanna forty-three. Rishel then cut through tackle for eleven yards, but the Crusaders were stopped who Kawal, the Cadet pivot man intercepted Hanna's pass on the thirty-eight. On a series of line plunges Pollock, Young and Malinsky carried the ball to the Susquehanna twenty, where Pollock attempted to place kick a field, goal but it was short. With the Orange and Maroon in possession of the ball on their own twenty, Rishel hit the line for eight yards. Sassaman punted when Martinec was injured and his kick traveled to the P. M. C. thirty-five, where Malinsky took the ball and carried it to the fifty, where he tossed it to Pollock, but the pass was low and Sullivan recovered for Susquehanna as the game ended.

UNIVERSITY CELEBRATES SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF FOUNDING

Diamond Jubilee of Susquehanna Will be Observed on Saturday; Convocation and Football Feature This Fine Program

Susquehanna University will celebrate Founders Day on Saturday, November 19, in memory of the college's beginning as Missionary Institute in 1856. This marks the seventy-fifth year since the founding of the institution by the Reverend Dr. Benjamin Kurtz on that date, and the thirty-ninth year since the corporate name was changed to Susquehanna University in 1894.

Saturday's program will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning with the convocation exercises in Seibert Chapel Hall. Dr. John I. Woodruff, professor of philosophy and a graduate of Missionary Institute in 1888, will review the early history of the institution. Dr. Woodruff has served on the faculty since 1892, and also in the Pennsylvania State Legislature for several terms.

Dr. G. Morris Smith, President of the University, will then discuss the ideals, standards, and progress of the college during the past few years.

Following the noon lunch will be a visitation period, during which all visitors are invited to inspect the various buildings on the campus.

At two o'clock, a feature presentation will be offered in the form of a football classic between Susquehanna's unbeaten Crusaders and the powerful Juniata eleven, in the final game of the 1932 season.

Fall Convention of I.N.A. at Gettysburg

"The Susquehanna" to Send Gemberling, Dively and McKelvey as Delegates; Worthington to Edit Paper

The annual fall convention of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association of the Middle Atlantic States will be held at Gettysburg College, on Friday and Saturday, November 18 and 19.

Editor-in-chief Laoid Gemberling and Managing Editor Penn Dively of the Editorial Staff and Circulation Manager Daniel McKelvey of the Business Staff will leave for the convention on Friday morning.

"The Susquehanna" will be in competition with 26 college newspapers for prizes for editorial and news excellence. Newspapersmen from Pittsburgh will judge three consecutive issues of each school's paper and announce the winners at a banquet Saturday night.

The tentative schedule includes a joint meeting of the managerial and editorial representatives. There will be separate meetings of the different departments to discuss the various problems. Addresses will be given by prominent newspapermen.

The members attending the convention will make the Hotel Gettysburg their headquarters and will be the guests of the Gettysburg athletic association at the football game between the Jayvee teams of the University of Pennsylvania and Gettysburg College, on Saturday afternoon.

During the absence of the editor, Jay Worthington, Feature Editor, will have charge and will edit next week's issue.

Four Golfers Remain In Semi-Final Round

Only four golfers of the original thirty-eight now remain in the running for the golf championship. During the past week Gray eliminated Keller, only to be defeated by Sala who also won from Neely, who was golf champion during the Summer Session. Rimer eliminated Myers, Oberdorf defeated Grove, and Brininger won his match with Crankshaw.

The semi-finals between the four survivors will be held in the near future with Oberdorf and Brininger matching strokes, while the winner of their match will play Rimer. The fortunate one still remaining undefeated after this match will meet Sala in the final round of what has been a most interesting tournament.

Dr. Lothrop Stoddard Star Course Lecturer

Widely Known Political Analyst, Author, and Traveler Will Speak on "The Rising Tide of Color"

Tomorrow night, at 8:15 in Seibert Hall Chapel, Dr. Lothrop Stoddard will lecture on the subject of "The Rising Tide of Color." He is an internationally known political analyst and advisor, and the author of several books.

Of late years great importance has been editorially attached to his utterances on the relations between world politics and finance. Leading business and financial groups have been especially interested in his discussion of "Europe, America, and Our Money." Dr. Stoddard has traveled widely and is intimately acquainted with the majority of the world's great personalities who are influencing the affairs of the day.

Dr. Stoddard's international prominence was first established by his extraordinary book "The Rising Tide of Color." This book was followed by a series of other books of profound importance which established securely his position as one of the world's authorities on the great problems of politics, race, and immigration. Among his books are "The New World of Islam," "Reforming America," "Racial Realities in Europe," "Scientific Humanism," "Luck," and others.

He is intimately acquainted with such people as Mussolini, the genius of Fascism; Mustafa Kemal, the amazing creator of modern Turkey; Clemenceau, the Grand Old Man of France; Admiral Horthy, Hungary's savior from Bolshevism; H. G. Wells, Dean Inge, Philip Snowden, and other English political and literary lights; Lord Robert Cecil and Sir Eric Drummond, the Standard-bearers of the League of Nations; and a trio of picturesque Oriental potentates. His vivid and accurate accounts of the countries which he has visited indicates clearly that Dr. Stoddard has been received among the Orientals as few Westerners have been.

Seven Seniors Play Last Game Saturday

Captain Extrom Leads Veterans in Farewell Grid Appearance Under Orange and Maroon Colors

Seven grim figures will be in uniform on University Field this Saturday, awaiting the opening whistle of one of the greatest and most vital clashes ever to be staged between Susquehanna and her traditional rival Juniata. Seven faithful veterans will give their all in this epic battle to bring victory and the best football season ever recorded by the Crusaders.

And when the mighty struggle is ended and gathering shadows encompass the field, seven doughty warriors will leave the imprint of their cleated shoes on University Field for the last time.

For these seven men will be the Seniors who have worked for four long years, and some of them without songs of praise, to help build and perfect the mighty 1932 football machine. Saturday will be their last chance to show

ULLERYMEN BREAK LOOSE IN SECOND HALF TO OVERPOWER NEW YORK TEAM

Orange and Maroon Backs Are First to Score on Wagner This Season; Keep Slate Clean With Total of Six Wins, One Tie

Juniata Big Threat To Crusader Record

Indians May Prove To Be Toughest Obstacle on Ullery Men's Path To Undefeated Season

The Crusaders will close either the 1932 season when they meet Juniata College on University Field this Saturday in the annual Founders Day classic, which will decide whether the Ullerymen will record an undefeated slate for the first time in the history of football at Susquehanna.

So far this season Juniata has met some pretty stiff opposition and have won three games and lost three contests. They rely mostly on their passing attack which is used almost to perfection. Coach Curtis Swartz, who turned out winning teams at Dickinson, is ending his third year at the Huntingdon institution, and has placed a team on the field that fights every second of the game. In their opening battle of the season they defeated Gettysburg by a score of 3-2. They then lost the next contests to Drexel and Lebanon Valley by scores of 19-0 and 20-0 respectively. The next week they went on a warpath and ran up a 51 to 6 score against Moravian College. A week ago Saturday, they sprang a surprise by holding Waynesburg College, an undefeated team with victories over Penn State and Geneva, to a score of 13-12. On Saturday, they ran wild to scalp the boys of Gallaudet to the tune of 45-0.

The Indians' stellar backfield includes Petty who is one of the fastest men on the squad and can skirt an end with much ease. Petty is also an excellent defensive player and is considered a tower of strength in the Juniata backfield, this making his fourth year at a halfback position. Wenger and Witman are the two battering rams for the Indians, and when yardage is needed through the line these two backs can always be counted upon. The other member of their backfield is Given, who can throw a pass for fifty yards into the hands of the receiver. Light, who is playing an end position, has made many of the touchdowns this season on passes from Given.

The Indians have only won from the Crusaders in the last three years and there is no reason why they should continue. Susquehanna has a team this year that could be pitted against many of the larger teams and would come out victorious. If the Crusaders can hold their opponents on passes, they will surely hold them on their line plays. The Orange and Maroon clearly demonstrated that they had a line that was hard to penetrate when they held the heavy P. M. C. team. With victories over Moravian, Haverford, Hartwick, Swarthmore, Washington, Wagner, and a tie with P. M. C., the Crusaders are looking for your support in their final test which may mean an undefeated season.

Orange and Maroon Backs Coming back in the second half to score 26 points, the Crusaders continued their undefeated winning streak by walloping Wagner College, an unbeaten eleven whose goal line had not been crossed, until the Crusaders had mended their record, at Staten Island, N. Y. on Saturday by a count of 26-0.

Coach Ullery started his famous pony backfield and some second string linemen at the beginning of the game, and they tore up and down the field in an effort to score but were always stopped within the fifteen yard line. In the first quarter, the Orange and Maroon worked the piskin down to the nine yard line on a series of line bucks and end runs, but their attempt to tally was frustrated, a fifteen yard penalty was inflicted.

The superiority of the Crusaders is demonstrated by the number of first downs, Susquehanna having twenty-three to five for the New Yorkers. At no time in the entire game did the tilters come within Susquehanna's thirty yard line.

The Crusaders first score came in the third quarter when Meyers, Sassaman and Hanna carried the ball to Wagner's four yard line on end runs and reverses which completely bewildered the opponents during the forty yard drive. Hanna then crashed the Wagner forward wall for the first touchdown which has been recorded against them this season. Following the kick-off, Meyers, Sassaman and Martinne began another drive which carried the oval to the twenty yard line as the quarter ended.

Three attempts at the line yielded only five yards, which placed the ball on the ten yard line. Sassaman then broke through tackle for the second six-points and place kicked the extra (Concluded on Page 4)

Dean Dunkelberger Tells of His Tour

Pi Gamma Mu Presented Dr. George F. Dunkelberger on Athens and Constantinople Last Monday Evening

In the College chapel, on Monday evening, November 7, Dean George F. Dunkelberger, who spent the summer touring in Europe, lectured to an interested audience of faculty, students, and townspeople. The subject of his lecture was limited to a discussion of his visit to Athens and Constantinople. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Gamma chapter of Pi Gamma Mu National Social Science Honor Society.

At Athens, the main point of interest was the Acropolis, with the ruins of the Parthenon, the Temple of Winged Victory, the Erechtheum, and the Temple of Jupiter. He also visited Mars Hill, where Paul preached to the ancient Greeks, and the Prison of Socrates.

At Constantinople, he visited the Museum to see the Sarcophagus of Alexandria, the Temple Tablet, the Salome Inscription, and the Shepherd Boy; Robert College along the shores of the Bosphorus; several of the most famous of the many Mohammedan Mosques, the Mosque of Saini Sophia and the Blue Mosque; the Hippodrome; the Tower of Constantine; and the Sultan's Palace.

NOTICE

In a recent issue of "The Susquehanna" the date given for the next Star Course number was incorrect. The corrected date for Dr. Stoddard's lecture is Wednesday evening, November 16. Students, faculty members, and all those interested in the program will please keep this corrected date in mind.

Two Killed in Auto Crash at Langhorne

Mrs. Richard Crankshaw, Mother of Susquehanna Student, Killed on Saturday Afternoon Near Phil.

Mrs. Richard Crankshaw, mother of Richard Crankshaw of the Class of 1936, was killed in an automobile collision on Saturday afternoon, November 12, on the Lincoln Highway near South Langhorne.

Mrs. Lucie DeLigny, occupant of the other car was also killed in the crash, when flying glass from the windshield severed the jugular vein. The drivers of both machines were seriously injured. Miss Edna Crankshaw, driver of the Crankshaw machine received a broken collar bone and lacerations. She is the sister of Richard.

Mrs. Jane Romagna, the driver of the New York state machine, and Juliette Malito, a young girl, were both seriously injured.

All the injured and dead were quickly extracted from the wreckage by passengers on a New York-bound bus which was passing the spot. The police are endeavoring to find some cause for the collision. The bus driver was held for a short questioning, but was then allowed to take his passengers into New York.

Miss Margaret Sittig In Sunday Recital

Concert Violinist, Honorary of Local S. A. I., Returns to Renew Acquaintances in Conservatory

On Sunday afternoon, in Seibert Hall Chapel, Miss Margaret Sittig, internationally known concert violinist and member of the Sittig Trio, gave an informal recital for the purpose of renewing her acquaintance with her fraternity sisters in Sigma Alpha Iota, of which she is an honorary member of the Susquehanna chapter. Members of the faculty, students interested in music, and the honoraries of the chapter were in attendance.

Miss Sittig has been acclaimed a musician of extraordinary attainments, receiving international recognition as solo violinist, in the Sittig Trio. At the age of ten, this young American artist was invited to play before royalty in Germany, and was presented with a fine violin by the Princess Louise von Schoenburg-Waldenburg. Miss Sittig continued her studies with the eminent instructors, Theodore Spiering and Leopold Auer, and has gained recognition as a foremost violinist of the concert stage.

Miss Sittig has temperament and brilliancy and her playing reflects the richness and brilliancy of the consummate artist. American and European critics have given her the highest praise.

IN SYMPATHY

The staff of "The Susquehanna" and the entire student body join in expressing their sympathy for Richard Crankshaw in his bereavement. His mother's untimely death is quite a shock and we take this means of offering our deepest sympathy. Richard is a member of the Class of 1936.

THE HONOR ROLL

Elsewhere in this issue of The Susquehanna appears a list of the names of forty students whose outstanding scholastic work entitles them to a position on the Honor Roll of the University for the collegiate year of 1931-32. The records of these students are enviable. They are particularly so in view of the fact that the quality point average is used as the basis for the compilation.

Approximately 14 per cent of the student body seems to do work of the above-mentioned quality. Such a percentage just about conforms to the normal distribution curve and may be taken as an indication that Susquehanna students comprise an average group which is what we might expect. The interesting thing for us to observe is the shifting or lack of shifting, which takes place in the scramble for a position on the Honor Roll. In the long run, it seems that the same people tend to occupy the coveted places semester after semester. It is in this connection that we wish to attract the attention of the students. It is not too late to start your drive to displace last year's honor students from their coveted positions. Begin now, and keep plugging from day to day and you are sure to be rewarded for your worthy efforts.

SOUL-PEEPS

If you want to do more than simply learn the dates of an historical period, you must scrutinize its more mundane and human particulars. As Bishop Butler said in 1740, the true "history of all ages and all countries will show, what has really been going forward over the face of the earth, to be very different from what has always been pretended." In the economic facts. . . . in the scarlet renditions of hates and fears, passions and lusts of royalty's dressed-up puppets. . . . in the prosaic sketch of bourgeois and proletariat. . . . will be found the true picture of man's life.

History is not real when one sees only the glittering spectacle of a monarch's court, a thundering cavalry charge, or diplomatic intrigue of Machiavellian men.

Similarly if you want to know a man, look at him in his off-guard, unconventional moments.

It is at times when man suspects least that you can catch him in his true raiment. Denuded as a winter tree, his character stands forth over the dinner table. . . . when he stubs his toe just before going to bed. . . . at the end of a losing game on the athletic field. . . . Rob him of civilization's concealing veneer, then look at what is underneath.

You may be surprised! . . . you may be horrified! . . . Remember that soul-peeps are less flattering and more truthful.

AMUSEMENTS

"Blessed Event" a real picture, with Lee Tracy hilariously funny as the big-shot chatter columnist is the attraction for Wednesday evening.

On Thursday night, "Doctor X" will be shown which is a murder mystery in Technicolor with plenty of thrills with Lionel Atwill furnishing the hair-raises.

On Friday evening, Charles Laughton will give you a new thrill as you watch him in "Devil and the Deep" steal the picture from Tallulah Bankhead and Gary Cooper. The undersea shots are breathtaking.

"70,000 Witnesses" a football picture that ends in a murder mystery is the feature for Saturday. Suspense, action, and thrills are packed into the picture with Charlie Ruggles a riot as the woody reporter.

Next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Paramount's production "Madison Square Garden" will be flashed on the silver sheet with Jack Oakie and Marion Nixon in the supporting cast.

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you.

Are these bunnies obtuse?

Well, I should say not! They're Wenchell's correspondents—and just look at the elongated ears developed by centuries of listening. With his customary modesty, Wenchell said, "Put my correspondents in first." At present they're behind the Seibert bars holding a conference on the week's news. When told that the hunting season was on, their reply was "Aw, bunny nuts!"

Complete Questionnaire for Chaperones

1. Do you think that life is an expurgated novel or unexpurgated?
2. Is your eye-sight too good?
3. Do you go around bumping males on their right hip?
4. If your scent is good, please say so—and why?
5. Do you stay put?

Heheheh!

We're "spilling the beans" on Hines (not one of the fifty-seven) to the extent of asking when she'll turn in her summer key to the big front door at Seibert. . . . As Ed (U. of V.) Zilch says, "The course of true love never runs smooth." . . . Seibert Hall is our warmest building. Incidentally, why does Ed ("Marcelle") prefer his third floor? . . . We're telling you that next week the Pen Portrait will be that of a girl who's been dying for a long time to crash this column. . . . Though Ari is keeping the wires hot to 102, there's nothing more tasteless than telephone osculation. . . . And then we have the Prof, who bought rubbers and umbrella to class when it didn't rain all day. . . . Deizer chooses dark sortory rooms during dance intermissions. . . . King Solomon's first name is Al according to Prof. Rumberger. . . . Seavey was seen entering Hassinger with a shot-gun. Six men immediately swore off Seibert. . . . Vote's the difference now that Roosevelt is elected? . . . A certain Seibertarian finds B and K. An excellent rendez-vous. . . . The Buffalo importation, brought in a car-load of horses. . . . Harry Shumaker and Jennabelle are in a Minor Key. . . . Some one refused to tell the time to Gemberling for fear he was Wenchell. . . . Our Head Librarian will shortly publish her list of those who "date" and are barred. . . . Bergstresser allegedly visited her aunt in Cattawissa. Who was the uncle? . . . The "Bake" fact is that "Teddy" tends to "make" Bill Caruth. . . . Dick's invitation to Mary was accepted because of the B and K. house. . . . Wruble and Crankshaw sleep in Seibert beds. . . . Why does A. Carl stumble over apple-barrels? . . . "Have-a-Hart-man" Olshefsky is hon-eyeing it. . . . Wonder if Erle is straining his cello or (Mar)cello? . . . And so we close, with Winkie, Blinkie, and Noddie.

Idiosyncrasies plus: Marcello has a craving for that "push-pash" fruit-olives. . . . that undulating walk of Royer's. . . . Dave Kelly calls Ludlow "Pickles Nickels". . . . Harry Carl lives in a sixteen room house. . . . Isabella consumes her cabbage salad with chopsticks. . . . Quinto's temperament. . . . June likes too look young and sweet. . . .

Pen Portraits
 Here's a recent "transfer" who "prepped" at military school. Too polite to be human, aloof, and conceded, he is the play-boy collegian suffering from ennui because of a lack of private dining-rooms, apartments, and night-clubs. About six feet in height, with blue eyes and brown hair, he expends endless effort to make an impression. He is a gastronomic connoisseur who had more than one motive in voting for Roosevelt. A polymath in love, local limitations confine him to one femme. Why did he select her? Does she understand him so well that he already bores her?

ALUMNI NOTES

Advisor to All-American Yearbook

Frank E Ramsey '30, had an unusual honor accorded him last year. "The Chumrock", the year book of the Holidaysburg High School of which he was the advisor, was given the All-American rating by the National Scholastic Press Association. This rating is granted for superior workmanship, and is the highest which can be given to a year book; consequently very few high school books are awarded this honor. Mr. Ramsey also received the dedication of the book.

Received Advanced Degrees

Three Susquehanna Alumni received advanced degrees from Penn State College at the graduation exercises this summer. They are Margaret Buyers '28, Master of Arts; Ethel C. Young '24, Master of Arts; and Gregory H. Morning '28, Master of Education.

Elected to Fill Vacancy

Miss Lillian A. Layton '25 has been elected to fill a vacancy on the Northumberland High School faculty caused by the resignation of Miss Arlene Laudenslager '31 who accepted a similar position in Sunbury. Both of the young ladies are teaching in the Commercial Department.

Director of Commercial Education

Wellington Hartman '30 is at present the director of Commercial Education at the Catawaga High School. In addition to this he is also a representative for the Lutheran Brotherhood Insurance. Mr. Hartman has been taking graduate work in Education at Lehigh University during the past year.

Progress Noted at Hanover

Under the supervision of Professor Frank Hissler, superintendent of the schools in Hanover, much progress has been made in the field of education. The new Senior High School was recently completed and the old Senior High was enlarged and is now being used by the Junior High.

Elected to Secretaryship

Mr. Lewis Fox, salutatorian of the class of '32, was recently elected secretary of his class at the Mt. Airy Theological Seminary. Mr. Fox is a first year student at that place.

Attending Penn Medical School

At present several Susquehanna Alumni are students at Penn Medical School. Lawrence Fisher '31, Wilfred W. Pugh ex. '28, and William Bonney '27, are second year students, while Roscoe Fisher '32, is a first year student.

Studying for Advanced Degrees

G. Franklin Stover '27, and T. R. Kemmerer '28, the former a teacher of social studies and the latter teacher of commercial subjects at the State College High School, are both working for advanced degrees at Penn State College. Mr. Stover is working for his Doctorate in Education, and Mr. Kemmerer is working for his Master's degree.

Students at Theological Seminary

Raymond Rhine, '29, a graduate of Harvard Seminary, will continue his studies at the Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary where he will work for his Master's Degree. John Rhine '30, a brother, has completed two years of work at the same place. Walter Swank '29 is also a student at the same institution.

Sorority Dance to be Staged Saturday

"Doc" Getkins and Orchestra to Supply Rhythmical Accompaniment for Four Hearty Hours of Fast Footwork

"Doc" Getkins and his thirteen-piece orchestra will furnish the music for the inter-sorority dance held in the Alumni Gymnasium on Saturday evening. Dancing will begin at eight o'clock and will continue until twelve.

"Doc" will bring one of the best dance bands that has ever played on Susquehanna's campus. He has recently reorganized his band, and one of his musicians was formerly engaged by Rudy Valle. He and his rhythm-makers have successfully fulfilled engagements at many famous ball-rooms. For the past few months they have been playing at Island Park on Saturday nights.

The dance will be an informal affair, and a real night of dancing and entertainment is expected to climax Founder's Day.

Deciphering of Soccer Scramble Finds Second Half Ahead of First

The first half of the Soccer League will be concluded Monday when the Sophs play the Frosh in a game which had been cancelled on account of the lack of players. If the Sophs win this game they will be champions of the first half and participate in the play-off against the Juniors.

The Juniors won the second half with five victories and no defeats, the runner-up Sophs winning three and losing two. Arrangements have not been made for the play-off.

All games last week were forfeits; they were as follows—Juniors won from the Sophs; the Frosh won from the Seniors; and the Sophs won from the Seniors. Following is the standing for the second half—

Dr. H. G. Turner Gives Students Coal Talk

Dr. Homer G. Turner, the guest speaker at the Honor Science Club meeting last Tuesday evening, delivered an interesting talk on "What Is Anthracite?" Dr. Turner is the country's most authoritative expert on anthracite coal, and at the present time is connected with the coal laboratory at State College.

In part, the speaker said that it takes 3200 years to form ten feet of bituminous coal. He explained how the geologists discover the figures for these historical facts and used such a thorough procedure that his audience easily followed the technical part of his illustrations. Peat, which he explained, was the first stage of coal evolution, takes ten years for one foot of this lower form of coal to accumulate. During maturity this will shrink an inch and a half per foot. The difference between the shrinkage of peat and the formation of bituminous coal will give the exact age of the formation of coal.

WOMEN HOLD REGULAR Y.W.C.A. MEETING LAST THURSDAY

Amelia Krapf was leader of Y. W. meeting Thursday evening at 10 o'clock in the social room.

The subject was "Catch the Spirit." The scripture was taken from Ephesians 6:10-18. This scripture gives the equivalent of the defensive and offensive armor of the fully equipped soldier—crusader, students. The girdle of truth—to ourselves and others, including self-confidence. The breastplate of righteousness—of our daily life and actions. The sandals of peace—in our dealings with our fellowmen. The shield of faith—in the future. The helmet of salvation—the example of our moral and religious life. The sword

Tower of Strength in Crusader Backfield

HANNA

Much of the credit for Susquehanna's sixth victory goes to "Heine" Hanna, stalwart fullback in the Crusader backfield. They say "big bertha guns" originated in Germany. Well, here is a "big bertha" on Susquehanna's eleven as he ploughs his way through opponents' lines for consistent gains and reinforces the front line defense in great style. Coach Ullery is banking a lot on Hanna this coming Saturday when they meet the Johns Indians.

the results of these four years of unselfish service.

Towering over his teammates is Captain John "Bull" Extrom, who has smashed all enemy lines without discrimination this season and will probably be listed as the best defensive tackle who has ever played on a Susquehanna team. Time and again this massive lineman has checked an enemy advance by crashing through and smearing plays behind the line of scrimmage. As captain of this year's eleven, he has proven himself a real leader at all times.

Johnny Meyers, diminutive, blonde, and tireless, will call signals from the quarterback position for the last time. Coach Ullery will remember Meyers, not as one of the smallest and speediest backs on his team, but one of the most sincere and energetic players who ever joined an Orange and Maroon uniform.

Russell Carmichael will play his last game at the guard position. After an absence of two years, "Russ" literally "came back" this season to turn in the best performances of his gridiron career. His fellow players say that Carmichael gives everything in every game he plays.

At the other guard position, Harold Kramer will be fighting to bring football service to a glorious climax. Without any experience whatsoever, "Had" turned out for the eleven in his Sophomore year and soon fought his way to a Varsity berth. Improving with every game, Kramer rose to great heights against the ponderous P. M. C. aggregation two weeks ago.

Vaisco Fanti, reserve tackle, deserves much credit for coming in his Senior year to try for a position held by such men as Extrom, Tice and Eisenhower. Further handicapped by an early season injury, Fanti persevered and has performed well on those occasions when he has had a chance to show his worth, being rewarded by a position in the starting lineup in last Saturday's game.

One of the most deserving and gamest members of the squad who will anxiously await his chance to enter the fray is Freddy Carl. 125 pound back who has stood up against all kinds of punishment for four years. As captain and quarterback of the Jayvees, Fred has displayed his ability, shrewdness, and grit on several occasions, besides being an extraordinary punter for such a diminutive figure.

Another who has endured the grind for four years is John Schoffstall, reserve guard. As a Freshman aspirant, Johnny was only sixteen years old and without any previous experience in football. In these years of service, on the Jayvee squad for two years, and then with the Varsity, Schoffstall has faithfully performed his tasks in developing the men whose names adorn the headlines while his own is passed over.

Not content with two touchdowns, Walter Waslewski, who was substituted for Hanna, took the ball from Sassaman on a reverse after the pigskin had been paced within scoring distance on a fifty yard drive, and talled from the ten yard line. Sassaman converted the extra point. The fourth and last touchdown came shortly before the end of the game when Meyers scored on a reverse from the two yard line after the Susquehanna ball carriers had been hammering unmercifully at the Wagner line.

1932 CRUSADERS ONLY S. U. ELEVEN TO FINISH SEASON WITHOUT A LOSS

Exceptional Feat Leaves Susquehanna Single Undeclared Team Among Smaller Colleges of the East

Saturday's stirring gridiron battle brought to a dramatic close the first season from which a Susquehanna football team has ever emerged without a single defeat. Seven victories and a scoreless tie were registered by the mighty Crusader machine of 1932 under the tutelage of Coach Bill Ullery and his able assistant Herb Snell.

Without a doubt the most outstanding feature of this unparalleled season just finished is the spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm which has existed between the players themselves, and with their coaches, and with the student body. It is doubtful whether there has ever been a team at Susquehanna that has showed such a willingness to act as a unit; a team without cliques and with few flaws.

Coaches Ullery and Snell, and Captain Extrom proved themselves to be three great leaders at all times during the season, under whom the players responded unhesitatingly. The earnest efforts of these men are representative of the spirit which led the 1932 Crusaders to an undefeated season.

Outstanding among the games is the fierce Juniata tilt which took place last Saturday, when two great teams hurled themselves at one another savagely, in a supreme effort to prove their superiority. Battered, weary, but always fighting, they surged back and forth over the mired field, and when the final whistle blew, the mud-stained colors of the Orange and Maroon were raised in victory.

This game was typical of the 1932 Crusaders, never willing to admit defeat. In three games this year, the Ullerymen have come from behind to turn defeat into glorious victory in the last half of the game. On a fourth occasion, the scoreless tie with P. M. C., the Crusaders were outstruck, outpassed, and outwitted, but finding themselves unable to score on their ponderous opponents, they refused to allow their

Program in Chapel Features Founders' 75th Anniversary

Board of Trustees and Faculty Members Take Part in Historical Review of University Founders

On Saturday, November 19, Susquehanna University observed the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding. The program started at eleven o'clock with invocation exercises in Selbert Hall Chapel—Rev. W. R. Reardon, D.D., President of the Board of Trustees of the University, presided over the exercises. Dr. P. P. Manhart offered the invocation, after which the scripture lesson was read responsively. Two musical selections were rendered during the program by a men's chorus, organized by Professor E. Edwin Sheldon.

Dr. John I. Woodruff, Professor of Philosophy, and a graduate of Missionary Institute, was the first speaker of the morning. He has been identified with the love and work of Susquehanna through the developing periods of her history. His address on the "Historical Aspects of the University," referred to the four phases of the college: buildings, finance, education, and athletics.

The institution was founded by Dr. Benjamin Kurtz in 1858. Building development began with Selinsgrove Hall, after which were erected Gustavus Adolphus Hall, Selbert Hall, Alumni Gymnasium, Steele Science Hall, Conservatory of Music, Library, and the President's Residence.

His next thought was concerning the financial situation of the school. The institution was begun in the faith that man would come forth and help. For some time, the Classic Department was a self-liquidating agency. Today the University has an approximate endowment of $400,000, and is about as free from financial encumbrances as any other school.

Summer school sessions and extension classes helped to introduce education for teachers. Then came the time of evaluation and standards. The school has been accredited to the point at which its graduates may be admitted to professional schools.

Famous American Poet To Be Here Nov. 29

The students of this campus will have an unusual treat on Tuesday, November 29, when Edwin Markham, one of America's best known poets, will speak in Selbert Chapel Hall.

Mr. Markham has written two outstanding poems, which should be familiar to all of us; namely, "The Man With the Hoe," and "Lincoln, the Man of the People." He has recently published a new volume of poetry which he calls "Eighty Songs at Eighty."

Students of English and lovers of poetry should not fail to profit by this rare opportunity.

SUSQUEHANNA ENDS UNDEFEATED SEASON BY SMEARING OLD RIVALS

Ullerymen Come From Behind in Second Half as Meyers Runs Wild to Score Two Touchdowns In Sea of Mud

SWEENEY'S TEAM SCORES 137 POINTS, BREAKING RECORD

Coach Harry Sweeney, former Crusader star, and at present head coach at West Liberty State Teachers College of West Virginia, had additional glory bestowed upon him on Saturday when his team broke the high scoring record by defeating Cedarville College by a score of 137-0.

It will be remembered that Coach Sweeney gained national fame for himself in 1921 while playing with the Susquehanna eleven when he took the kick-off back of his own goal and raced 102 yards for a touchdown against Colgate. He was a very popular man on the Susquehanna campus and is rated as one of the best backs ever to don an Orange and Maroon uniform.

Since his graduation, Sweeney has been coach at West Liberty, and has built up quite a reputation for himself there as mentor of teams which have been consistently good every year. His team was undefeated for over two years.

Trailing by a score of 7-6 at half time, the mighty Crusaders came from behind in the third quarter to defeat their traditional rivals, the Juniata Indians, 12 to 7, in the final tilt of the year, and completing their first undefeated season in the forty-one years history of football at Susquehanna. The annual battle was staged in a sea of mud before the largest crowd ever to witness an Orange and Maroon game on University field.

The final whistle marked the ending of college grid careers for four of Susquehanna's football heroes. They were Captain John Extrom, who has held a tackle position for three years; Johnny Meyers, flashy signal barker for the past two seasons; Russell Carmichael, former Johnstown High star and captain, and Harold Kramer, both varsity guards for the past two seasons.

Johnny Meyers, the Crusaders' fleet-footed quarterback, turned in the longest runs of the game and registered both Orange and Maroon touchdowns, as he side-stepped and outran his opponents. Bob Sassaman, sturdy plunging halfback and former Williamsport High back, completely bewildered the Indians on his off-tackle smashes until he was removed from the struggle late in the third session. Lee Rishel, former member of Selinsgrove High's undefeated team of 1929, shared the ball carrying honors as he made many gains on off-tackle thrusts.

Captain Extrom, Tice, and Fisher were the outstanding pillars on the famous Orange and Maroon forward wall. Steve Martinac kept the pigskin out of Susquehanna territory on several occasions when he got off some beautiful spirals to average fifty-four yards on seven punts and place himself among the leading punters of the East.

In the Juniata backfield, Given and Wenger were easily the outstanding stars. Wenger brought the crowd to (Concluded on Page 4)

Varsity "S" Drive Goes Over the Top

More Than $500 Raised Within Two Days for Planting of Quadrangle; Dedication Postponed

The Varsity "S" Club announced a drive in chapel on Thursday morning to raise $500 by Friday night with which to finance an improvement and beautified spot on the Susquehanna campus to dedicate and memorialize the triumphs achieved by the most successful gridiron aggregation in forty-one years of football history. It was announced at the pep meeting on Friday night by William Swann, President of the Varsity "S" Club, that the goal had been exceeded by fifteen dollars.

"The Crusader quadrangle" is located south of Hassinger Hall and will include a rock garden, pool, and a border composed of numerous species of trees and shrubs. The project is being constructed by the Berryhill Nursery Company of Harrisburg. Plans were made for a dedication to take place before the football classic but were postponed on account of inclement weather.

Gettysburg Meeting Place of Journalists

"The Reporter" and "The Pioneer" Win Contest Cups; Battlefield Institution Entertains Royally

Gettysburg College and the staff of "The Gettysburgian" were hosts to the fall convention of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Convention on Friday and Saturday, November 18 and 19. Sixteen different college weeklies sent delegates to the convention. A total of 38 members were present in the business and editorial departments.

After a short business meeting the Friday afternoon session was turned over to Mr. Morton S. Rutsky, an advertising expert, who explained the new national-local plan of advertising. President DuRelle Gage, of the "Haverford News," Editor Gordon Whitcraft of "The Gettysburgian," and Dr. Thomas L. Cline, of the Gettysburg College faculty, gave short welcome speeches to the group.

The Friday evening session was composed of business and editorial discussion groups and an address by Dr. H. W. A. Hanson, President of Gettysburg College. He spoke brilliantly on the moral policy of the newspapers on the college town and especially on the college campus. His speech was devoted to emphasizing the value of a true perspective in planning and producing an editorial policy. Following the evening meeting the delegates were the guests (Concluded on Page 4)

This issue of THE SUSQUEHANNA edited by J. Worthington

DEDICATION

THE SUSQUEHANNA has little to offer—only four printed pages hastily thrown together. If we were able, we would offer you more, with our sincerest appreciation and heartiest congratulation, but—

Such being the case, we dedicate these four pages, this issue of THE SUSQUEHANNA to you—

THE 1932 CRUSADERS, THE FIRST UNDEFEATED TEAM IN THE FOOTBALL HISTORY OF SUSQUEHANNA UNIVERSITY.

UNDEFEATED

The task is done.

Susquehanna has completed a football season without suffering a defeat.

Just what does that mean? What is the real significance of this feat? How easily was it accomplished?

First, let us consider its local aspect. There have been football teams at Susquehanna for more than forty years. This year's team is the first to finish a season without a loss. One out of forty.

Next, there are more than six hundred colleges and universities in the United States, nearly all of which are supporting football teams. A majority of them are in the East. There remain only four undefeated teams in the East. Last week there were only two among the smaller colleges.

Only one of these two is still undefeated today.

It is Susquehanna.

"THE TEAM THAT WOULDN'T BE BEAT"

Every great team receives some title, nickname, or slogan of identification. Our suggestion, based on the performances of the 1932 Crusaders, is "The Team that wouldn't Be Beat." A simple and obvious phrase, perhaps, but whose strength lies in the grim significance of the Wouldn't.

Seldom has any team displayed the power of coming from behind on so many occasions as has this year's band of warriors. Three times the Orange and Maroon turned defeat into victory in the second half, and once hung on desperately to deadlock a powerful enemy eleven.

At Swarthmore, the Crusaders saw their opponents take possession of the ball on their own 30-yard line with only a few minutes to play. Undaunted by such a hopeless situation, they proceeded to literally force the other team back over the goal line and snatch a last minute victory.

P. M. C. smashed and pounded our defense for four quarters to no avail. Battered and weary from the terrific onslaught of the giants of flesh, the Orange and Maroon linemen would not admit defeat, halting every advance short of the goal line.

In the final game, against our most dangerous and spirited opponent, the Crusaders rose to their greatest heights, struggling through a quagmire arena with every ounce of energy to again emerge victorious in the latter part of the contest.

And so we have a team that came through undefeated because, regardless of the odds, it would never give up.

FORGOTTEN? NOT BY US

A line of silent, huddled figures watched Saturday's epic battle from the Susquehanna players' benches. Their uniforms were moistened; they knew that there was little chance of their being soiled when they put them on that afternoon. Many of them knew it even in the earliest days of the season.

But they were still there, tense, alert, faithful.

Without the substitute, the third and fourth stringer, there could be no winning team. The reserve man forces the Varsity man to do his best, to keep his position. The reserve man offers his body to develop and strengthen the first string man. He learns all formations and must be able to execute them to prepare the Varsity for each game. When the first string man falters or falls, the reserve man must take his place.

And the reserve man works without recompense; no glory is his. His team is his reward. He knows that he has been an important, if unnoticed, factor in the building of a successful team. He knows that without him there would be no team.

MORE HEROES UNSUNG

We cannot pass over the contributions of the Band and the Cheer-leaders in doing their part to bring a successful season to Susquehanna.

These loyal supporters have turned out at all times and in all kinds of weather to keep alive that spirit which was so important in the season just passed.

Their job was thankless, but they have done it well.

Give them a hand—they have earned it.

AND THE ADMINISTRATION

THE SUSQUEHANNA takes this opportunity to express the gratitude of the student body towards the members of the administration and faculty for their consideration, co-operation, and hearty support during the 1932 football season.

As you have recognized our desires on several occasions, so we have recognized your willingness to be sympathetic with them.

AND FINALLY OURSELVES

Yes, we—the student body—haven't done so badly ourselves. We have undoubtedly shown a great improvement over previous years, and contributed our part to its fullest extent.

So let's give ourselves a pat on the back and call it a day. And wotta day!

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you!

(Some good clean fun)

Columnists who live in glass-houses shouldn't take baths before going on "dates".

Heheheh!

How long before the campus will be further Petrified by Jack's second plum-colored suit? ... Spanish classes are drilling in bull-fighting. ... Johnny is calling signals on Sharpnack, the Peg-Ken necromancer being so dead she's returned his picture. Incidentally, Johnny once remarked that he disliked dancing with Frosh girls. Heh, heh! ... Was the white cat found in our Registrar's car only white-washed?

Note to Straub or Bolig: Art will be nite-den dawning it over Thanksgiving with Nurse Marjorie Hale. ... Midgets of the world are planning a republic of their own near Berlin. Germany. ... What Price Isabella? ... And then we hear that Ruth likes A. "Chief" Clark practice. ... Certain apostle-severed persons find church a great source of enjoyment. ... Ruth Plummer is the aviator's Arm-Ache. "Truck" will make a public exhibition (after much private practice) of his amorous technique on Dec. 14. ... A huzzah for the Prof. who knows what to do in classroom when shoes are uncomfortable. ... Many affairs have gone on the rocks but Virginia's is still Luke-warm.

Tomorrow's Tragedies

The girl who shares her dreams with no boy but one ... and wakes up to find that he's been sharing hers with somebody else.

The choice bit of femininity now just inclined toward heaviness ... but who in her late twenties will dismay her wedded spouse by becoming running mate for an elephant.

The only scion of the strait-laced family ... who thinks he's having his fling ... but will some morning wake up with a head-ache and a pink slip of dismissal.

The Prof. who thinks he's making an indelible impression on his students ... whereas they're really thinking about their next "date". ... why Eve liked apples anyway ... and why do Devotee Echoes steal their thunder from "Campusmania"?

The boy who is looking forward to Thanksgiving ... and will find that he may have meant everything to his woman this summer but he's just a "Forgotten Man" now.

(So you would talk eh?)

We suggest that Lena take heart from the fact that Pat's once purred honey-wooling is now effective enough for Dave's dance "dates". Wot say, Roland? ... Frances is still Do Do. ... What well-known Sunbury femme will shortly bust up one of our most promising romances? ... Ed has the habit of sleeping in Spanish. ... A radio craze is sweeping the dorms. ... Someone's slipping letters to Hanna behind Steele Science. Incidentally, Siberianers received in a day six letters that satisfied. S'A (Ua-h) be praised. ... Is Marge the Ep Sig sweet-heart? ... Why does Scholvo insist on "bumming" things from Frosh? ... In Meshed, Persia, the sidewalks are paved with tombstones. placed face upward. ... Another Institution has opened its doors at Lewisburg. Steele is now greeting people with "Cherry-lily". ... We are disappointed that Ed U. or V. Zilch failed to keep the Star Course "date" with Natalie that he requested a month ago. ... Why does Bruce use Ruth Nelson as a "blind" for calls to Marian? ... Timothy Erastus claims he's taking special gym because of a "weak organ". No lame brain there, we'd say! ... Hutter-Maimon are library-ink. ... Schlegel is indulging her grid complex via Hanna. ... Al's garage is not for his car. Ask Sally! ... The University of Missouri's annual Journalism school play last week concerned the life of Jimmie Walker—and aroused the censors. ... The Virginia Blonde is giving Bob Sussman his most painful Throat-Lumps. ... We wonder why Marge gets rosy cheeks after "parlour-dances". ... Walter Winchell claims that Shamokin has more pretty girls for its population than any other U. S. city. ... Who will tell us the origin of Virginia's nick-name? ... Reviving an old romance: Wonder what happened to Laura Boyer? ... I'd like to know why a certain Senior is allowed to motor to and from Seibert in her "date's" roadster. ... Jo Hoy has a certain cameo likeness. ... Signs as you enter the village: "Sells Grove 3 miles"; "You'll Like Sunbury". ... The Brown-Royer comb is still Hoyts-Totsy. ... A Ha-de-ho tabu was clamped down on "Star Course" "parlour-dates". ... Al is ragged having an enjoyable time "fathering" "The Patsy". ... Tex Guinan remarks that the story about marriage being a letter has almost ruined the lotery business. ... Extra-special idiosyncrasy plus: Youngerman actually walking. ... The "New Yorker" is advertising bars for rent for your party. ... Sabatella is seeking feminine company for Sunday dinners. ... Maguire and Williamson are Eye-Gazing. ... Well, we'll be seeing you!

Pen Portraits

If the man in the moon desired a wife, this feminine adolescent of the Frosh would like quite the part.

As a corn-fed Garbo she attempts to be "different" and succeeds in mediocre fashion. Low heeled shoes, psychology, and football players are her pet manias. Time may fulfill the promise of her lithesome form.

JUNIATA DOESN'T THINK JUNIATA IS SO HOT

After reading Juniata's opinions of the Susquehanna football team in the November 18 issue of "The Juniata", and witnessing the game on Saturday, it would seem that the Huntingdon boys cannot have a very high opinion of their own aggregation by now.

Commenting on the fact that P. M. C. was stranded on our one-yard line with the ball, "The Juniata" proclaimed "We'll take it over for you, P. M. C." We must admit that the prophecy was accurate, unfortunately, the writer forgot to forecast the number of times that the Crusaders would cross the Indian goal line.

"The Juniata" is also of the opinion that our opponents were inferior to theirs. The fact is open to dispute, but the figures show that Juniata lost four games while Susquehanna was undefeated. Nor did the Crusaders win any contests by one point. Furthermore, we admit that Susquehanna was a rather difficult team on Juniata's schedule, but we couldn't very well play ourselves.

Incidentally, we might mention that seven of our opponents played clean football and displayed good sportsmanship at all times.

"Baby" furnished us quite some amusement and her passion-victim quite some discomfort, the evening she tried to "make" Al while he was waiting for Sally. One can imagine her absorbing the eighteenth century idea of seduction from paper-backed novels. We suggest that if she must derive her erotic fashions from the literati, she modernize her reading. Even in a woman, we agree with Ben Hecht, "Simplicity is the soul of mystery."

This is the story of Minnie the Moocher ... but since these are only expurgated extracts from real life, let's begin on a new line ... "Dinny" had just been cheered-up: Jack had just promised her a new automobile. ... And the telephones were still reverberating to their mutual, sassy-whisper, soul-stirring "I love you!" ... Anyway, it must have been a swell date that eve!

Even your best friends will tell!

Dr. Paul Boeder Takes Over Math Classes

Dr. Paul Boeder arrived on the campus last week and is now teaching the classes in mathematics.

Dr. Boeder comes well prepared, having received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Göttingen in Germany, an institution noted for its excellence in mathematics and science. Previous to his study in Europe, the new instructor received the degree of Master of Arts from the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Boeder has also served as an instructor of mathematics at the University of Delaware.

JUNIORS ANNEX SOCCER CHAMPIONSHIP BY DEFEATING SOPHS

The Sophs who on Monday, Nov. 14, defeated the Frosh to win the first half championship, and vie for honors with the Juniors, who won the second half championship were defeated in an extra period on Friday by the Juniors by a 2 to 1 score, to decide the championship of the men's Soccer League.

The quality of the game can be adjudged from the score. Each team played a good defensive game, neither being in a position to score many times. The game was decided in the first minute of the extra period, when Meyers, for the Juniors, received the ball about thirty yards in front of the goal and booted it through for what proved to be the deciding point.

"Virgilians" Supply Rhythm for S. S. D.

The date and the site of a very enjoyable evening of dancing was the Epsilon Sigma House on Saturday, November 19, where the Sigma Sigma Delta Sorority held their first informal dance of the season.

The couples danced from 8 to 12 to the rhythm of Steve Fisher's Orchestra of Muhlenberg College. "The Virgilians" with their slow, rhythmic music added much to the evening's entertainment.

The chaperons were Miss Emily Sweetman, and Professor and Mrs. Russell Gilbert.

Spirited Pep Meeting Again Brings Results

Enthusiasm reached a new "high" in the pep meeting on Friday night, which filled Seiber Hall Chapel with students, faculty, alumni, and townspeople, when Rev. Ira S. Sassaman delivered a most spirited pep rally address as he spoke about "Cooperation and Teamwork." The Williamsport pastor played with the Orange and Maroon in 1904-05-06-07 and was captain of the Crusaders in his third year. Rev. Sassaman injected into the loyal supporters of the undefeated Crusaders a new spirit with his most effective pep talk. Never before have the Susquehanna students brought forth so many lusty cheers as was witnessed that evening before the great struggle.

Becoming a bit reminiscent, Rev. Sassaman gave some very interesting experiences that he had on the gridiron and the methods of play they used in by-gone days. He paid high tribute to the coaches who have tutored the Crusaders through their most successful season and made particular comment on the spirit and cooperation among the members of the team.

After several peppy selections by the University Band and hearty cheers led by Cheerleaders Petry, Huston, and Evans, Coach Bill Ullery opened the meeting by congratulating the students on their support at the P. M. C. game and asked for the same in the morrow's tilt. Assistant Coach Herb Snell spoke very optimistically when speaking of the prospects of the game and also pointed out the ability of the Junia team. The students broke forth with cheers and applause in showing their appreciation of the services rendered by the coaching staff.

The cheerleaders then called on each of the Seniors on the eleven, including Captain Ender, Johnny Meyers, Harold Kramer, Freddy Carl, John Schoffstahl and Student Manager Selon Dockey with each responding and promised to put forth every effort to win from the Indians.

Professor Luther D. Grossman then delighted the audience by showing moving pictures of the P. M. C. game and of the trip to Staten Island to play Wagner.

Golf Tournament Won By Hugh Brininger

Hugh Brininger, captain of the 1933 football team and Coach Ullery's hit no-run hurling ace, came out ahead in a field of thirty-seven competitors to win the annual fall golf tournament championship.

During the past week Gray eliminated Keller, only to be defeated by Sala who also won from Neely, golf champion during the summer season. Rimer eliminated Myers, Oberdorf defeated Grove and Brininger won his match with Crankshaw.

In the semi-finals, Brininger matched strokes with Oberdorf and won by a good margin. The victor then paired off with Rimer and eliminated another contestant for the championship. In the final match, he decisively won from Bob Sala, the only remaining competitor.

AMUSEMENTS

"Guilty As Hell," a mystery with a chuckle and a murder with a wisecrack, will be the feature for Wednesday evening. Edmund Lowe and Vic McLaughlin, the old friendly enemies, taking the leading roles. It's new, sparkling, and entertaining.

"The Phantom President," which introduces George M. Cohan to the talking screen, will be shown on Thursday and Friday nights. He will have Claudette Colbert, Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, Gene Raymond, and George Barbier in the supporting cast.

On Saturday, Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive," one of the most amazing animal pictures ever made, and absolutely authentic will be flashed on the silver screen.

Next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Paramount's production, "Horse Feathers," with the four mad, hysterical Marx Brothers, will furnish the horse laugh.

On November 30, "Kongo," with Walter Huston and Lupe Velez, which is a fast moving African jungle cinema.

Thursday, December 1, Fox's "Hat Check Girl," with Sally Eilers and Ben Lyon.

On Friday, December 2, "Strangers of the Evening," a lip-roaring comedy combined with lots of mystery and shudders.

STUDENT TRAVELS 1080 MILES TOSEE 5 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL

It appears that one of the most loyal, but also most unfortunate of Susquehanna's fans during the 1932 football season was John Ballentine, of the Class of '33, who traveled over one thousand and eighty miles in his aging "Chevy" to see approximately five minutes of playing. In three trips, twice to Philadelphia to see the Haverford and Swarthmore games, and once to New York to see the Wagner game, Ballentine and his traveling companions succeeded in reaching their destination on time only once, and that time in the last quarter.

He reached Haverford, on the first trip, in time to see Susquehanna's third string men going into the final minutes of the game.

Dr. Lothrop Stoddard Tells of Famous Folk

Sketches Lives of Mussolini, Kemal, and Admiral Horthy; Considers "Il Duce" Dynamic Character

Dr. Lothrop Stoddard, internationally known political analyst, advisor, and author delivered a most interesting and enlightening lecture on "World Personalities I Have Known," in Seibert Hall Chapel, last Wednesday evening.

"Most fascinating and elusive is the human personality," was the attention-getting keynote sounded by Dr. Stoddard. He discussed great men of international importance in such a way that his audience might become more intimately acquainted and thus personalize these world figures as one reads of them in our daily newspapers.

He reviewed the lives of Mussolini, the genius of Fascism; of Mustafa Kemal, the amazing creator of modern Turkey; of Admiral Horthy, Hungary's savior from Bolshevism, at great length. These three men listed as the key men of the Old World and rose from obscurity to power after the World War.

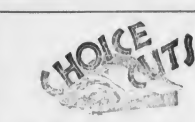

Dr. Stoddard described the Italian dictator as the most dynamic personality he has ever met, but expressed the thought that Kemal's influence upon his people was even greater than that of the "Il Duce," for he brought about a more marked change in his country.

The Retort Courteous
The superior young person had been shown to his room in the hotel.
"So this is for me!" he grumbled.
"Rather like a prison, don't you think?"
"Well, it's just a matter of what one is used to, sir," replied the manager.

S. U. GRAD SEES MORE GAMES IN 1932 THAN UNDERGRADS

John Kindsvatner, '32, at present a student at Mt. Airy Seminary, can boast of having attended more Susquehanna football games during the present season than most of the undergraduates, and probably more than he witnessed in a season while a student at Susquehanna.

Kindsvatner has travelled to see seven out of the eight football games on the Crusaders schedule this season, including the contests at Haverford, Swarthmore, and Wagner, N. Y. The only game which he did not get to see was at Washington College, in Maryland.

Jayvees Lose Return Game with Sunbury 6-0

Scoring a touchdown in the first quarter, the Sunbury Junior Varsity got their revenge when they tripped the Susquehanna Jay Vee eleven by a score of 6-0 at Sunbury last Monday. Jimmy Duff, stellar Sunbury backfield man, scored the only tally of the game when he got away on an off tackle play to score from the Susquehanna ten yard line.

Susquehanna was often in a scoring position, but erratic playing always stopped the drive. In the last quarter the local squad had the ball on Sunbury's one yard line, but a fumble gave Sunbury the ball and they quickly kicked out of danger.

PROGRAM IN CHAPEL

Forty years ago the first football team played on the field. We owe much to Dr. Woodruff for the organization and coaching of this first team. Susquehanna's athletics have grown in popular favor. Today every student is permitted to develop himself in some field of athletics.

Dr. G. Morris Smith followed Dr. Woodruff on the program, and reviewed the standards, ideals, and progress of the college during the past few years. He opened his address with the remark that the one enduring value in life is service. This is true of institutions and of men. Service has been the purpose in the minds of all those who have been concerned with the work of Susquehanna. The program of the day was to pay tribute to those who have made Susquehanna an institution of high study.

In 1930 a decided step forward was taken when Susquehanna was included in the approved list of colleges. This advancement has required time, and earnest and efficient leadership of those in authority.

Susquehanna has done a large service for the church, in developing pastors and laymen. The college has played a great part in the missionary history of the church, three of the younger generation being engaged in the mission field at present.

The school has also contributed greatly to the cause of education, having prepared hundreds of teachers for work in public schools and colleges. Every year many of our alumni attend summer school at some great university.

The test of a real institution of learning is whether or not it is able to implant in the hearts of its students the automatic desire for acquiring of knowledge. Learning never ceases, but it widens and becomes more effective as we learn to love it. The influence of school is not altogether determined by eminent people, but by the usefulness and enrichment given to those who have lived quiet lives of service. We are not only rolling out of the past, out of our historic origins, but we are rolling to great things in the future, perceiving greater destiny than we have ever seen before.

Th morning's program was concluded by the singing of a hymn, after which luncheon was served, and the opportunity was given the visitors to inspect the buildings of the campus.

own goal line to be crossed. Try as they might, the powerful Cadets could not crack the stubborn Orange and Maroon defense for a score.
Against weaker opponents during the season, Susquehanna presented a smooth-working and bewildering offense and a stone-wall line. In piling up thirty-seven points against Haverford, Susquehanna outscored any of that college's other opponents by several touchdowns.

Since Waynesburg College was defeated Saturday, Susquehanna remains the only undefeated team among the smaller colleges of the East.

of the Interfraternity Council at the Pan-Hellenic Dance in the College gymnasium. "Al Katz and His Kitten," and the Council entertained the boys in fine style regardless of the heavy rain.

Saturday morning brought another business meeting with committee reports and constitutional changes. The delegates made a tour of inspection of the printing plant of the Gettysburg Times, printers of "The Gettysburgian." Regardless of the rain, some of the delegates attended the football game between the Gettysburg Junior Varsity and the University of Pennsylvania Junior Varsity. The Gettysburg lads suffered a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the Quakers.

The formal evening banquet was held in the Blue Parrot Tea Room, where the whole convention group gathered together for the final meeting. The executive committee furnished speakers of value in the newspaper field and business field. At the banquet the contest awards were "The Reporter" of Polytechnic Institute won the New Cup and the Cooper Union "Pioneer" was rated first in the Editorial Contest. After the banquet the delegates were again the guests of the fraternities at their respective house dances. "The Gettysburgian" can indeed feel proud of the fine convention and entertainment.

their feet in the first quarter when he received the opening kick-off and dashed through the entire Susquehanna team with the exception of Sassaman who brought him down on the Crusaders' forty-five yard stripe. Given, a consistent ground gainer and playing at the quarterback post, was unable to demonstrate his ability in passing due to the muddy ball, but he displayed his capability of returning punts by averaging thirty-three yards on three occasions.

The Crusaders threatened to score early in the initial period on a thirty-eight yard drive which placed the ball on the Indians' twenty. Here the Crusaders' attempt was foiled by a fifteen yard penalty and Given intercepted a Sassaman pass.

Juniata's first threat came late in the first quarter when they carried the ball from their own thirty-five to the Susquehanna thirty. A pass from Given to Wenger placed the ball on the nine yard stripe. After gaining four yards on three plays, Given passed the oval over the up-stretched hands of Light and the ball fell in the end zone.

Both teams scored in the second quarter, with the Indians tallying first. Given returned Martinec's punt to the Susquehanna forty and Given and Cook carried the pigskin to the thirteen, where Wenger wound his way through tackle to score. After Martinec punted out of bounds on Juniata's ten, Given was forced to kick from his goal. Sassaman returned the punt to the twenty-five, where he handed the ball to Meyers on the Statue of Liberty play, who raced around right end to score.

The winning touchdown came after Sassaman had returned Given's punt to the Juniata thirty. Rishel, Meyers and Sassaman carried the ball to the four yard line, where Meyers, on a reverse, scored the deciding tally.

Meyers kicked-off to the Juniata fifteen, where the ball was received by Wenger and returned to the Susquehanna forty-five. Wenger lost two yards and Juniata was penalized fifteen yards. Given punted out of bounds on Susquehanna's forty-three. Sassaman and Hanna hit the line for five yards. Meyers, on a reverse, slipped through tackle for ten yards. Martinec, also on a reverse, plunged his way for nine yards. Hanna smashed the center of the line for three yards. Meyers broke loose for fifteen yards around right end placing the oval on the twenty. Sassaman went through tackle for seven yards but Susquehanna was penalized fifteen yards. Sassaman dropped back to pass, but Given intercepted on the twenty. Given and Nicholson made seven yards and received a first down when the Crusaders were penalized five yards. Wenger carried the ball six yards on two plays and after being penalized five yards. Given punted to the Susquehanna thirty, where Sassaman returned it for five yards. Sassaman and Meyers added six yards, but Martinec punted from his own fifteen to the Indian thirty. Wenger made nine yards on two plays and Daher skinned left end for fifteen yards and placed the ball on the Susquehanna forty. Given, Daher and Wenger smashed the line for a first down. Given then faded back and passed a long forward to Wenger who was downed on the nine. Daher hit the line for one yard and Wenger added three more yards on two attempts at the line, and Given passed into the end zone on an attempted forward to Light. Sassaman crashed tackle for five yards and Martinec ploughed his way through the Juniata line and broke into the open and dashed for twenty yards as the quarter ended. No score.

A fumble lost eight yards and Martinec punted to the Juniata twenty, when Given received the ball and raced to the Susquehanna forty. Daher gathered six yards and Wenger made it a first down. Cook hit tackle for seven yards and Wenger raced around right end to the Susquehanna fifteen, where Given plunged to the thirteen. Wenger then squirmed his way through the defense and scored the first tally of the game. Given added the extra point with a placement. Martinec returned Given's kick-off to the thirty-five and Rishel knifed his way through tackle for six yards. Martinec bucked ten yards before he was downed, but the Blue and White line held and Martinec was forced to punt, the ball rolling over the goal. Given punted to the Susquehanna thirty and on the first play Sassaman gained nine yards on an off-tackle play. Rishel made a first down near the side lines. Martinec plunged for two yards and then punted out of bounds on the Juniata ten. A penalty placed the pigskin one yard from Juniata's goal and Given was forced to stand beneath the uprights as he punted to the Susquehanna forty-five. Sassaman received the ball and side-stepped tacklers as he carried the ball to the Juniata twenty-five. Meyers took the ball from Sassaman on a fake pass and raced the remaining distance to score the first Crusader tally. Sassaman was stopped when he attempted to buck the line for the extra point. Extrim kicked-off and Cook returned the ball to his own forty. Renninger lost two yards and received a five yard penalty after which Given punted to the Susquehanna thirty. The Juniata line failed to give and Martinec punted to the Juniata ten yard stripe as the half ended. Score was 7-6 with Juniata in the lead.

Extrim kicked-off and Wenger returned the ball to his own thirty-five, where Juniata received a fifteen yard penalty. Given was forced to punt and Martinec fumbled on his own forty and Walley, the Juniata pivot man, recovered. After gaining three yards on three attempts, Given punted out of bounds on the Susquehanna twenty-five. Nicholson recovered Rishel's fumble, but with no avail as Nicholson dropped Given's pass on the five-yard line and Susquehanna was given possession of the ball on their own thirty after holding the Indians for downs. Meyers then broke into the open and in a beautiful exhibition of open-field running, carried the ball to the Juniata twenty on a fifty yard dash. Sassaman ploughed his way to the ten yard stripe, where the Indian forward wall stiffened and Sassaman's pass was incomplete on the fourth down. Given immediately punted to the fifty, where Sassaman snatched the ball from the air and raced to the Juniata thirty. After Sassaman had carried the ball for four yards, Rishel broke through the secondary defense but was downed on the fifteen. Again Rishel smashed the tackle and carried the oval to the four yard stripe on two plays. Meyers then took the ball through left tackle on a reverse to score the winning points. Sassaman's attempted placement was blocked. Cook received Extrim's kick-off and returned it to the thirty. Petty made six yards around right end but lost four yards around left end on the following play. Given then punted to the Susquehanna ten and Rishel returned for five yards. W. Wasilewski went through right tackle for five yards and Rishel made a first down on the thirty. Martinec plunged for one yard as the quarter ended.

In the final quarter the Crusaders continued their offensive drive as they kept the ball mostly in the Indian territory, with Wasilewski and Rishel carrying the ball on many gains. Late in the period, Juniata gained possession of the ball on their own twenty when they held the Crusaders for downs. Given threw a lateral pass to Wenger who ran around right end the forty. In a grim determination to score, Given again threw a lateral to Wenger but Daher, who was running wide took the ball on the bounce and carried it to the fifty. Twice more Given heaved laterals to Wenger and the game ended with the ball on the Susquehanna twenty.

Harrisburg Host to State 'Y' Delegates

Susquehanna Well Represented at Student-Faculty Conference:
Discussions Helpful

Ten persons from the Susquehanna University Y. M. C. A. attended the Fall Student-Faculty Conference of the State Y. M. C. A. which was held in Zion Lutheran Church, Harrisburg, Pa., on Dec. 2, 3, and 4.

The conference officially opened with the Banquet in the "Tavern" of the Hotel Governor, at six o'clock, although before the Banquet the usual registration proceedings were taken care of. At the Banquet the delegates were welcomed to the city and to the Zion Lutheran Church by Rev. S. W. Herman, pastor of Zion Church. After the Banquet the delegates again assembled in the auditorium of Zion Church, which is the oldest and perhaps the most beautiful church auditorium in the city. Mr. Chester Goodson and Mr. Leroy Brininger, brother of Hugh Brininger of Susquehanna, led the opening devotions.

Brilliant Array of Speakers
After the opening devotions, Rev. "Jack" Hart, one time four-letter man at the University of Pennsylvania, took charge of the devotions and gave a short talk on the subject of "Personal Relationships," stressing jealousy as one of the chief obstacles in the path of good personal relationships with our fellow students. Mrs. Kohl, wife of the State Student Secretary, sang a beautiful solo, entitled "My Task," after which the speaker of the Conference was introduced. Dr. Ralph Sockman of New York City, chose for the topic of his first address "The Highway of Human Fellowship," this topic fitting in well with the theme of the Conference which was "The Power of Fellowship." He divided the topic into six parts: (1) Good motives, (2) Self-control, (3) Respect for other men, (4) Christlike imagination, (5) Cooperation, and (6) Consecration. His address is almost impossible to describe the grip with which he held his listeners.

Saturday morning "Jack" Hart again opened the day with one of his inimitable devotional talks. This was a fitting preparation for the stirring address of Dr. Sockman which followed. Dr. Sockman had to return to his charge in New York soon after this address and the whole delegation viewed his departure with regret.

After the address the delegates were divided into four discussion groups. Fraternity Fellowship, Obstacles to Fellowship, The Team and Spiritual Values, and Spiritual Fellowship, were the topics for these groups.

All-Opponent Grid Combination Named

Ulery, Extrom, and Meyers Pick Three Players From P. M. C. and Swarthmore on Outstanding Eleven

Selecting an All-Opponent Team is difficult at any time, but the high calibre of certain of Susquehanna's opponents this year has provided considerable doubt in making accurate decisions.

However, Coach Bill Ulery, Captain "Bull" Extrom, and Johnny Meyers, quarterback, have drawn up their team as based on performances against the Crusaders during the past football season. Thus we have the opposition as seen through the eyes of a coach and spectator, a lineman, and a backfield man, a combination which is about as fair and accurate as it would be possible to find.

Pennsylvania Military College and Swarthmore took most of the honors on this team, each receiving three positions. Juniata and Moravian placed two men, with the remaining one going to Washington College. P. M. C. is outstanding, however, in that two additional men were considered as alternates or very close seconds, namely Kaval and Weaver, center and right end respectively for the Cadets.

Following are the selections:
Center—Yosko, Moravian.
Right guard—Dickerson, Washington.
Right tackle—Holsinger, Juniata.
Right end—McCormack, Swarthmore.
Quarterback—Given, Juniata.
Right halfback—Pollocks, P. M. C.
Fullback—Slipser, Swarthmore.

Strenuous Practice Started by Courtmen

Five Lettermen Serve as Nucleus on Basketball Combination; McGeehan
Leads Quintet From Guard Post

Varsity basketball candidates are working daily under the tutelage of Coach Bill Ulery in preparation for the Alumni game next Friday night. Coach Ulery is fortunate in having five letter men reporting for practice and a number of freshmen are making a good showing.

This year's team will be captained by Robert McGeehan, who has been a stellar guard on the varsity team for the past three years. Other letter men reporting are Kramer, Van Nuy, K. Waslewski, and Schlegel. This year's team will be well supplied with centers, as Kramer and Schlegel both received their letter at the center position. Van Nuy and K. Waslewski, last year's forwards, led their teammates in scoring honors and will be available to the Crusaders this year.

There are a number of promising men in the Freshman class who may win a berth on the Orange and Maroon team. Sassaman, captain of Williamsport High for two seasons, will be an aspirant for a guard position. Nageli, forward on Old Forge, last year's state champion, is showing up well in practice. Hess and Alexander will also try for a guard position, while Roach and Von Konyd at attempting to wrest the pivot position from the veteran centers.

With the material on hand, the Crusaders should turn out one of the most successful teams that has represented Susquehanna in many seasons.

Dr. Sadtler Writing For New Commentary

Dr. William A. Sadtler, of Susquehanna's faculty, is busily engaged in preparing his contribution to the New Testament Commentary, being compiled by twenty-eight prominent Lutheran clergymen throughout the country. Dr. Sadtler will discuss the first, second and third books of John and the book of Jude. He has been apportioned 9,000 words for the treatise. The commentary will be published early in the New Year and will be found of special reference value by Sunday school lay workers.

—Now if the basketball squad can inherit the spirit of the gridiron combination, we can look forward to a pleasant winter.

Faculty Delegates Attend Convention

Represent College at Forty-Sixth Conference of Middle States Colleges and Schools at Atlantic City

Dr. G. Morris Smith, Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, and Dr. Arthur H. Wilson attended the forty-sixth session of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools held at Haddon Hall in Atlantic City, the week-end of November 25 and 26.

Sessions were held on both Friday and Saturday. The afternoon session of Friday, November 25, was made notable by two speakers. Dr. Mary E. Wooley, president of Mount Holyoke College, addressed the group on "Moral Disarmament and Education." Miss Wooley was the delegate to the Disarmament Conference from the United States, and her experience in this capacity fitted her to speak on this topic. David Lawrence, editor of the "United States Daily," the second speaker of the afternoon, spoke on "The United States Society and Educational Preparation for Citizenship."

Hon. Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan, was the guest speaker at the Friday evening dinner.

On Saturday morning the delegates met with the conferences of their choice. The meeting of the Eastern Association of College Deans and Advisers of Men was of one interest. Addresses were given as follows: "College of the Second Choice," by Theodore A. Distler, of New York University; "Colleges and the Depression," by Dr. William M. Lewis, president of Lafayette College. The noon luncheon was held and Dr. Robert C. Clothier, president of Rutgers University, spoke on "Human Values in Education."

The conference on English, also a morning session, was based on three topics. The value of Comprehensive Examination for All English Majors, Ten Years of Outside Examiners, and The General Examinations, A Survey of Current Practices. Dr. Arthur Wilson, head of our English Department, was present at this meeting.

Diamonds to Feature At Christmas Dance

December 10 Selected as Date for Inter-Fraternity Christmas Dance
in Gym; Formal Dress Optional

Phil Emerton and His Diamonds have been selected to furnish the music for the inter-fraternity Christmas Dance on Saturday evening, December 10. Usually the Christmas "formals" are held at the fraternity house, but this year the conditions were such that a combined dance was preferable.

The Diamonds are well known in orchestra circles and have played many jobs in this territory. The Inter-Fraternity Council should be commended on their selection. The band is noted for its entertainment features and has done a great deal of stage work from in the band and some of the boys are past masters in the art of humor.

Most of the Christmas dances up to this time were formal, but this time the Council decided to make formal dress optional to each fraternity. As usual the time is from eight to twelve.

There has been much interest shown in debating this year and the following people have reported for the squad: Jerome Guss, Ralph Shockey, Kenneth Anderson, Paul Hartman, Reginald Seavey, Freda Stephens, Ruth Williams, Alida Smith, Ruth Cherrington.

The Debate promises to be of interest, and Professor Russell Gilbert has been working hard in order to make it a success.

Famous Poet Speaks to a Capacity Crowd

Edwin Markham, America's Renowned Poet, Pleads Students With His Humor, Fervor and Emotion

Tuesday evening, November 28, at eight o'clock, President G. Morris Smith introduced before a capacity audience, America's famous poet, Edwin Markham.

Starting out with "I'm glad to be here, because I'm glad to be anywhere," Markham gave a short lecture on poetry, giving interesting events of his own life as he went along, in a humorous way. He related that a true poet's function is to lift man out of the materiality of the world, and stated that poetry begins where science stops, and makes a thing immortal. When a poet says anything it is said forever.

The remainder of his program consisted of his reading many of his poems, giving the background of each. He told of his son Virgil, who as a small boy seemed to be omnipresent, and always engaged in some activity. It inspired him to write several poems about his son, and these were among the first poems he read, after which he gave the following: "A Prayer," "Joy of the Morning," "A Bird of the Hills," "A Judgment Hour," "How the Great Guest Came," "A Boat Song," "No Sanctuary," "Duty," "Prays of Poverty," "Preparedness," "Outwitted," as well as several other quatrains, and also a few from his recently published book, "Eighty Poems at Eighty." He concluded with "Lincoln, the Man of the People," reading the poem with fervor, dramatic gestures, and emotion that belittled eighty years, a rendition that his hearers will never forget.

Mr. Markham was highly complimentary of his audience at Seibert Hall, declaring that the basis of art is the transmission of the emotion from the creator to the other persons. He said that the success of a lecture such as his depended upon the listeners. Born in Oregon, Markham spent his earlier life in the Far West. There he built up a reputation as a writer and successful school principal and superintendent. In 1901, he gave up his work as an educator and came East to devote all his time to literature. Since then he has been engaged in editorial work in New York City.

He is known the world over for his works, "The Man With the Hoe," and his "Lincoln the Man of the People." In the process of publication in New York, there is a complete collection of his more than 700 poems.

He has lived a simple life. He eats simple food, dresses simply, wears a flowing tie with open shirt collar, and cares nothing for fame or money. Almost all the money he has earned in the past twenty-five years has gone to New York city charities. He has always been willing to go about in spite of his advanced age, because of his interest in humanity, and his desire to do something for his fellowmen.

Crusaders to Battle Alumni In Opener

Grads Will Attempt to Avenge Past
Defeats in the Initial Court
Tussle on December 9

The Crusaders 1932 basketball season will be opened next Friday night at 8 o'clock when they meet the Alumni team which is under the direction of Luke Rhoads of the Class of 1930.

Last year the Orange and Maroon defeated the Alumni by a score of 42 to 25, but this year the Alumni expect to place an aggregation on the floor that will extend the Varsity's players. They will have with them stars as "Skipper" Glenn, guard and captain of the team which won the basketball championship of the 1931 team, "Swede" Palmer, center and guard of last year's team, Luke Rhoads, forward of the 1929 team, Sherman Good, and Donald Wormley, varsity men on the 1929 team, Carlton Shaffer of the 1930 team, Herb Hehman, and George Moser.

Coach Ulery will probably start McGeehan at one of the guard positions with K. Waslewski and Van Nuy at forwards. The center position will be filled by either Kramer or Roach while Sassaman, Hess and Alexander will stage a battle for the other guard position.

Sigma Sigma Deltas to Present "The Patsy"

Two New Campus Actors Found in Cast of Barry Bonors' Play. Miss
Sweetman Directs Production

On Thursday evening, December 15, Sigma Sigma Delta sorority will present "The Patsy," by Barry Bonors. This is one of the most popular plays of the past few years, and will provide an evening of entertainment for all who attend.

The plays presented by this group in recent years were well received. They were "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire," by James Barrie, "Miss Lulu Bett," by Zona Gale, and "The Truth About Blayds," by A. A. Milne.

Freddie Stephens, who plays the part of the spoiled daughter, and George Truckenmiller, who is her fiance, have previously displayed their dramatic ability on this campus. Al. Meyer, who has been hiding his talents for the past three years, will send the audience into peals of laughter by his excellent portrayal of the father of the Patsy. It is worth the price of admission to see Estelle Pearl, a peevish, over-bearing mother, try to dominate the entire household.

David Evans, a new student, has had previous experience in dramatics. He plays opposite Amelia Krapf, who is the Patsy. This couple will provide many interesting scenes to delight the audience.

Leona Kaufman, as Sadie Buchanan, will present a typical "good sport." Bob McGeehan, as Mr. O'Flaherty, and Dan McKelvey, as Trip Busty, will offer many amusing sketches.

The story concerns Patricia Harrington, a girl who "runs second" to her older sister. She is the Patsy who is blamed whenever anything goes wrong, and is forced to remain in the background in order that her sister may be presented to advantage. Her father, a traveling man, is on her side, and finally declares his independence by putting Ma in her proper place.

The play is being directed by Miss Emily Sweetman. Pauline Crow and Wesley Sterling are acting as stage managers.

PAULINE CROW IN CHARGE OF WEEKLY Y. W. MEETING

Pauline Crow was leader of Y. W. meeting Thursday evening in the social room. The subject was "Come out of the Crowd." There are seven ways to be different as mentioned in the talk: (1) Be alive with the mind of Christ; (2) Hate wrong and blister it with its excuses and shams and answer freely, kindly, hopefully; (4) Meet success and failure with equal bearing; (5) Help instead of pitying; (6) Be true from within, others think without being self-willed; (7) Stick with and cling to the right when others are compromising it to get along. Religion gives man a real distinction which traditions; (3) Love right, speak it nothing else can. People are after recognition. They will do anything to get it. Emerson says "See how the mass of men verify themselves into nameless graves, while here and there a good unselfish soul forgets himself into immortality."

Notice, Pre-Meds!

Dean George F. Dunkelberger has announced that the Association of American Medical Colleges Aptitude Test will be held for the Pre-Medical students in the Senior Class of Susquehanna at three o'clock on December 9th, in Room 300, Gustavus Adolphus.

The purpose of this test, which is given annually is to determine the fitness of students who wish to study medicine. Dean Dunkelberger urges those men who expect to enter medical schools next fall to register for the test before December 8th. Upon entrance to the examination there will be a fee of one dollar, which is forwarded to the association.

In the past, the examination has been designed to determine the ability of students to assimilate and reconstruct the sort of knowledge they will meet in their medical work. The test is given but once a year and has been adopted by the association as one of the normal requirements for admission.

CO-OPERATION

The art of depression finds the word and practice of "co-operation" a vital element in the adjustment of its problems. Consequently, fraternal organizations at Susquehanna have found it necessary and desirable to adopt this means of overcoming their financial difficulties.

For the first time, the fraternities are attempting to establish a true feeling of organization, making concessions and otherwise endeavoring to help each other. Feelings of animosity and antagonism are being reduced to a minimum in this movement which will bring the various bodies together as a unit rather than as a succession of cliques and misunderstandings.

Saturday evening will witness one of the important steps in this direction, when the Christmas dances will be sponsored by Inter-Fraternity Council, and merge into one affair. This move will result in a higher form of entertainment for the participants, and at the same time represent a great saving for the individual fraternities.

The Council has functioned well in such attempts to meet existing circumstances, and its progress has not been interrupted by dissension and selfish moves. Such a degree of co-operation is commendable, and to the best interests of Susquehanna and its important components, the fraternities.

WATCH OUT, FROSH!

The open season for Freshmen is on. From now until the date of pledging the various fraternities are free to entertain, approach, and otherwise indulge in the campus recreation known as "mshing."

And while the different groups are "getting a line" on their prospective members, it might not be a bad idea for the Freshmen to be doing the same in respect to these bodies with whom they will be so closely connected during the whole of their college careers.

Now is the time to begin considering which way you will eventually turn, for much of your future happiness and success at Susquehanna will depend upon your ability to realize which group will be the most valuable to yourself.

Past, present, and future are significant in this consideration, but probably most important to yourself is the future. Perhaps some of your closest acquaintances will not be here next year, while you still have three years to go.

No one can make this decision for you. You know best to what your own tastes and characteristics are suited. So, while you are being entertained, don't overlook this duty to yourself. Keep your eyes and ears open, and don't give in to snap judgments.

AMUSEMENTS

Tonight is your last chance to see Harold Lloyd's first picture in two years "Movie Crazy" the story of a boy's search for Hollywood fame.

On Wednesday evening, Tiffany presents "Hotel Continental" a cinema filled with suspense, action, and lavish sets.

"What Price Hollywood" a fast and fascinating entertainment and all very true to Hollywood with Constance Bennett giving her finest performance on Thursday evening.

On Friday night "The All-American" with Richard Arlen and the 1931 college gridiron stars, who won All-American honors.

Saturday's attraction features Randolph Scott in "The Heritage of the Desert" which is taken from Zane Grey's novel of the same name.

Next Monday evening, Ruth Chatterton in "The Rich Are Always With Us" a gay story which is a relief after the recent heavy Chatterton dramas.

PRE-TECHS ENTERTAINED AT THE HOME OF SPONSOR

Dr. and Mrs. A. William Ahl, entertained the members of the Pre-Technical Club at their home on University Heights last Thursday night. About twenty were present and a delightful evening was enjoyed by each member. Edwin Clapper led the devotions after which the group discussed problems of interest to those preparing for the Christian ministry. Each person took a part in the discussion.

Mrs. Ahl then served her usual delicious refreshments and suggested some games which tested the ability of even the most intellectual. Much amusement was furnished by a boxing bout between Henry Cassler and Stanley Benner.

—Here's hoping the coming basketball season is as successful as the past football season.

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you!

Roses are red,
 Rammacher is blue,
 All Seibert Co-eds
 Want campuses, too.

(Here's your hot-cha at old S. U.)

And then we have the four Frosh co-eds who received no "campus" for dating! . . . Pete Ventura is enticing sweet young things to the darkness of the colony . . . Hunlock Creek and Salisbury merged over the holidays. Incidentally, Jack now stands on the grass below while Diana continues the conversation from the second-story . . . Ed and the blonde Pauline are Honeywooding . . . Overheard: A Carl desires sixteen sons . . . "Fish-Yo" may shortly be sued, but not by Sally, who he's Reno-vating . . . Fish Stocking Squad has switched from peanuts to pineapples . . . Inter-Frat Council is now holding its meetings at the basketball games. And, by the way, Phil Emerton will play for the Xmas dance . . . Madeline has deserted Art for a Plummer . . . Vernon's chairs are shocking . . . A man isn't safe in his own bed. Ask Ken . . . Alice Bickler-staff objects to the New Yorker rooms, as being too small . . . What would Millie's Haverford flame say if he knew she was dining with the waiters? . . . There is a species of monkey called Proboscis Monkey which adds length to its nose with age . . . Hassinger's social room may shortly be refurbished . . . Luke makes the nifty remark that "the Quadrangle looks like a fun of hair on an Indian's head" . . . Fun for the kiddies: A Carl touseling Pat's hair. (Does she love it!) . . . "Baby" Gwendolyn Christine and Hanna are in a Minor Key . . . If you want to know how one develops a pleasant telephone voice, just ask Bernardi . . . Really, Joe's too buxom to be Hoy . . . Notes have ceased between Besse and Herb: he now serenades her under her window . . . "Con Canary" Pritchard has brought back a portable organ . . . We're telling you that Bergstresser is saying nothing about her new Y signet-ring . . . Class habits can prove dangerous, especially when one decides to sleep at the wheel. Ask that battered Ep Sig gentleman . . . Just two Thanksgiving dawn-hunters: Lou and A. Carl Incidentally, the former has 54 shirts . . . Hassinger suite 24 and 25 has been wrecked six times . . . The two B's—Bosinski and Bernardi—are doubling for Romeo and Juliet . . . Well, if you can't be good, be careful!

Sotto Voce
 Speaking of geometry, "Grape-Nuts" is in the right angle on the "Susquehanna-Rose-McKelvey triangle. And this man Messinger got in a double triangle: firstmate the Williamson-Bergstresser-Mar-Maguire-Ahl (with the latter asking Jack to close to describe the goddess of love).

Campus Clippings from Other Colleges
 Students at Drexel Institute find it "grossly unfair and unjust" that women students are not permitted to smoke in the lounge.

Freshmen please note! At Haverford, Frosh are penalized by being forced to carry a pair of dumb-bells around the neck, eat meals standing, and walk with a tin-can tied to the foot.

Curiously enough, Temple University has never been defeated in a night football game. Rather, knock their opponents in the dark, we'd call it.

Just listen to this! Co-eds at the University of California are allowed liberty until two-fifteen every morning, except the "Big Game" night, when there are no rules.

Shoot at this mark, you athletes! Jay Hedupp of Columbia, a varsity basketball star, managed to get an "A" in every one of his five courses.

Thoughts of a Young Worker in a Co-ed Dorm

Where the duce is that wrench? . . . Why do these sockets have to be repaired in the daytime? . . . Anyway, it's not a bad job. A lot of other fellows would like to have it . . . Who's that wearing pajamas? . . . Wish the blonde would come over—I'd like to "make" that gal! . . . Great idea of mine to go sleep-walking . . . Well, I guess I can't spend much more time on this . . . Might repair some furniture. Who was that girl with a broken bed-spring? . . . Let's see . . . They ought to build beds more solidly . . . That one Frosh makes me nervous; wish she'd go away. No, I don't either. Wet weather certainly is hard on permanents . . . Wonder if I can report anyone? I guess no one will come down to breakfast again without stockings . . . Ho, hum!

"Over My Shoulder"
 (If you don't remember, just keep in mind that there's no "knews like good knews.")

We'll never forget the dawning a certain co-ed had a sleep-walker wander into her room (Well, that's her story, anyway!)

We don't recollect the exact number, but a certain wise-one of last year had over seventy legally excused "cuts".

Then, of course, there was the evening "Black Plague" went to Harrisburg in the "Black Plague" to see "Grand Hotel" and they found it wasn't playing there until the next week. (No, you're right, it didn't really matter.)

The Quadrangle reminds us that when S. U.'s tree-lined campus was inhabited by squirrels, the janitor refused to let Registrar and Women's Dean sit under an apple-tree for fear they'd disturb the squirrels.

Little Rambles With Great Minds

"I object to good mixers."

Naomi Kathryn Hade
 "If I say anything, I won't know what I'm talking about."

Emily E. Swettman
 "Usually when going to the opera, you have to shut your eyes."

Arthur Herman Wilson
 "As soon as you know how little you know, we're ready to graduate you."

George Franklin Dunkelberger
 "Not always the birth of a child causes a revolution."

Herbert Allen Allison

Punch and Judy Pantomime

"Embryo Parsons" may be playing basketball, but how can their attractions compete when the Ahl-Eltringham ex-combine puts on its act. Here's what the "Sunbury Item" has to say about it:

"And, now in regards to the 'love tangle,' ha! that was a good one, but Theologians, true love is one essential of life. We did not exactly know whether it was true love or not, but anyway there was plenty of arguing and some harsh words. In fact it looked like a physical combat at times. Yes, and it was remarked during the game that Wennell, the writer of the popular 'Campusmania' column in 'The Susquehanna' was an interested spectator. That interesting pantomime saged on the balcony should be for thought. Overturning these great odds, the Thraagids put up a great game and capped their first tilt of the season."

Eh, bien c'est l'amour!

A Monroe Aurand, Jr., a former student at Susquehanna, was recently praised in the Harrisburg Telegraph for his writings which delve into literature of bygone days. Writing on sociology, history and bibliography Mr. Aurand has succeeded in publishing his books privately and has had the happy fortune of receiving orders from and placing his books in the most prominent public and private libraries of collectors throughout the United States and foreign countries.

French Tea Features Campus Club Meeting

Miss Evelyn Allison entertained the Campus Club on Wednesday afternoon, November 16, in the Social room of Seibert Hall with a French tea. Miss Allison gave a very interesting talk on her trip to France. She spent the past year studying in that country and thus had an excellent opportunity of visiting the little French towns and villages which are so vastly interesting to foreigners. Anna Gage Mady, Diane Lizdas, Ruth Plummer, and Anna Benner sang a few pretty French songs. They were accompanied on the piano by Margaret Ide.

The Social room was decorated very charmingly with scenes of France. They were picturesque and gave a delightful French atmosphere to the affair.

Mrs. Herbert Allison "poured" for the tea which was served in quaint dishes of which Miss Allison brought with her from Brittany. Mrs. Allison was assisted by Mrs. L. D. Grossman, Mrs. A. William Ahl, Mrs. Martha Dodson, and Mrs. John I. Woodruff.

gates were divided into two groups. One group composed of those delegates attending Liberal Arts Colleges, the other group composed of those attending Teachers' Colleges. Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, of our own Faculty, led the former group, and brought to the minds of the delegates many questions of interest to students of Liberal Arts Colleges. Long after this discussion group had officially adjourned, delegates could be seen gathered around Dr. Dunkelberger discussing the questions he had set forth.

A period of freedom was followed by supper at the Tavern and Dr. Clyde A. Lynch, president of Lebanon Valley College, addressed the group. A degree of sadness entered the Conference at this time, for about a half hour before Dr. Lynch was to speak he received word that his father had succumbed to a heart attack.

Sunday morning the closing session of the Conference was held in the Zion Church. Dr. S. W. Herman again addressed the group and in words filled with challenge bid adieu to the delegates. Each delegate returned to his own campus with a feeling that he would do big things for the propagation of the Christian Life on his campus.

The delegates from Susquehanna were Dr. G. Morris Smith, Dr. G. F. Dunkelberger, Harold Rowe, William Morrow, Elmer Drumm, John Stouffer, Robert Clark, Stanley Benner, George Shaeffer, and Ralph Shockey.

Seeing through steel

(right) Apparatus in position to x-ray through four inches of steel in a forging

WHEN Prof. Röntgen announced his discovery of the x-ray, in 1895, he estimated that medical science would not be the only beneficiary. Since then, General Electric has been a pioneer in the development of the x-ray for industrial as well as medical use. As a result, a new science—industrial radiography—enables us to peer at the internal structure of almost any material. Radiography reveals most microscopic defects in metals—blow holes, shrink, pinhole porosity, cracks, gross inclusions, etc.—without destruction of the specimen. Even four inches of steel is no obstacle to the modern radiographer. "Seeing through steel" has become a reality with the new and more powerful x-ray tubes developed by General Electric. These tubes, using as much as 400,000 volts, make possible the most powerful x-rays available to industry. Such developments are largely the accomplishments of college-trained engineers. They are leading the way to even greater progress in the electrical industry and are helping to maintain General Electric's leadership in this field.

Winners Encounter Little Difficulty in Finishing With a Clean Slate; Phi Mu Delta Is Second

The Non-Fraternity basketball team captured the Inter-Fraternity championship this week when they turned in a perfect record by winning every game. Phi Mu Delta was second with two wins and one loss. The Non-Fraternity team displayed an excellent passing attack with B. Worthington, Naegli, Hess, and Alexander making most of the points. Yon Kandy played an excellent defensive game at center and Sassaman proved to be a stellar guard with much ability.

On Tuesday night in the first game, Phi Mu Delta defeated Epsilon Sigma by a score of 15 to 8. Carolan was high scorer for the winners with seven points, while Anderson led for Epsilon Sigma with four points.

QUADRANGLE PROGRESSING THROUGH EFFORTS OF THE VARSITY "S" CLUB

Over 90 Per Cent of Student Body Subscribe to Total of $531. Freshment Lead With 96 Per Cent of Their Group Contributing $267

Susquehanna's Crusader Quadrangle has been progressing successfully through the willing cooperation of the Varsity S Club. The barren bit of campus back of Hassinger Hall is being transformed into a spot of beauty; made possible through the gifts of students, faculty and friends. In memory of Susquehanna's 1932 undefeated football team this quadrangle was formulated.

In 1924 the students of the University contributed $1300 to erect an entrance to the athletic field. Since that time there has never been such an outburst of enthusiasm and cooperation in a common cause until this recent project in which over 90 per cent of the student body contributed. The Entrance Project in 1924 was sponsored by the Varsity S Club; likewise, the Quadrangle was also a Club idea.

A goal of $1000 was set in 1924 and $1900 raised. The quadrangle goal was $500 and at the end of the one day intensive drive the goal had been more than reached.

Since the fifteenth of November men have been working on the construction of the rock garden and a small pool which form the center of the Quadrangle. Now the Crusader Quadrangle is a reality. The real charm of the work will not be appreciated until spring when the foliage again comes to life and walks, bordered of flowers, are added.

Five hundred and sixty different evergreens, flowering trees, shrubs and perennials of one hundred and eight different varieties have been placed in the Quadrangle. The rock garden alone contains two hundred plants of fifty-two varieties.

The rocks and materials for the rock garden were transported from Shade Mountain. In order to get the proper quality. Every stone and every boulder was hand-picked, carefully selected and then placed in the garden.

The following statistics were taken from the Treasurer's report:

The percentage of student pledging by classes:

Seniors	87.3%
Juniors	95.1%
Freshmen	96.3%

The amount pledged:

Seniors	$60.00
Juniors	$64.00
Sophomores	$58.00
Freshmen	$91.75
Friends and Alumni	$55.00
Faculty	$73.25
Seminary	$4.00
Campus Organizations	$115.00
Grand Total Pledged	$531.00
Amount collected to date	$267.00

The Varsity S Club, under the leadership of William Swann, president, and Jack Pettry, Quadrangle chairman, made an intensive drive and succeeded in placing a memorial to the 1932 football team that will later become part of campus tradition. Professor Luther D. Grossman rendered valuable advice to the Varsity S Club in this project by acting as advisor to the plan.

Members of the 1932 football team will complete their college careers and with their classmates depart from the campus. There will remain, however, INTERCOLLEGIATE BALL TO BE HELD AT HARRISBURG

For the second successive year an Inter-Collegiate Ball during the holidays will be held in Harrisburg under the supervision of Raymond E. Best and Sidney S. Steele, former Penn State students.

The College Rovers Orchestra, a twelve-piece novelty band that specializes in college dances and house parties, will furnish the music at the Penn Harris Hotel Ballroom on Monday, December 26th. The dance will be a semi-formal affair in order to please the tastes of everyone and will last from 8:00 to 11:00.

A committee of girls has been selected from each leading college and university in Pennsylvania to represent their respective institution on the honorary assisting committee.

"The Crusader Quadrangle," a beauty spot on the campus, as a memorial from the students and friends who knew the Crusaders of 1932.

Crusaders to Meet Osteopathy Friday

Basketball Team Travels to Penn State on January 4; Lebanon Valley Here on January 7

After displaying their ability last Friday night by overwhelming the Alumni, the Crusaders will again do battle on the wooden way on Friday night in the Alumni Gymnasium when they meet the Osteopathy team in the second game of the 1932-33 season.

On January 4, the Crusaders will journey to Penn State to meet the Nittany Lions in the first contest after the Christmas holiday. This game will renew basketball relations, which were severed ten years ago, between the two schools. Penn State has the reputation of having excellent basketball teams and the Crusaders will be forced to play heads-up ball in order to win.

The Orange and Maroon will seek revenge on Friday night, January 7 when they meet Lebanon Valley in the Alumni Gymnasium. Last year the Crusaders lost both games by several points and the Lebanon Valley boys will aim to repeat their victory with their fast offensive outfit. However, the Orange and Maroon squad is preparing to conquer the Lebanon Valley quintet which will be minus Heller, their pivot man and leading scorer for the past four seasons.

Students Attend Week-End Relations Meet

William Royer and Donald Steele represented Susquehanna University at the regional conference of International Relations Clubs which was held at Bucknell University on Friday and Saturday. Professor D. Irwin Reitz also attended the conference.

Some of the outstanding speakers were Dr. Ernest M. Patterson of the University of Pennsylvania, speaking on the tariff question, and Dr. George H. Blakelee of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., talking on the Manchurian situation. Dr. Blakelee has just returned from Manchuria, where he was serving on the Lytton Commission appointed by the League of Nations.

Dr. Ahl Will Speak to Philological Group

The American Philological Association in conjunction with the Archaeological Institute of America will hold their sixty-fourth Annual Meeting at Syracuse University on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, December 28 to 30. The name of Dr. A. William Ahl appears on the program for a paper entitled "Cyrus, in the Light of Recent Research," to be given at the Thursday morning session. Dr. Ahl has made extensive research in this field and his knowledge of ancient languages and history of civilization allow him to speak capably and with authority on this subject. The American Philological Association is one of the learned societies of America, and has as president Dr. Mortimer Lintforth of the University of California.

CAMPUS CLUB TO HOLD DINNER IN HORTON DINING HALL

The Campus Club composed of women faculty members and professor's wives have decided to enjoy their Christmas dinner with the students at Seibert Hall Dining Room on the evening of December 15, 1932. At this time the men will also be present as invited guests of the women. The proceeds from this dinner will be donated for charitable purposes.

Diamonds Fulfilled All Expectations at Christmas Dance

Large Crowd Attended Inter-Fraternity Dance Given in Inclement Weather. Edgar Hutchison is Chairman

Phil Emerson's Diamonds fulfilled all expectations at the Inter-Fraternity Christmas Dance held in the Alumni Gymnasium, Saturday, December 10. From eight o'clock until midnight many couples were entertained by the rhythm and the novelties of the Diamonds.

The snow did not hinder a large crowd from attending nor did it dampen the spirit of the dancers. Everyone was truly pleased with the function.

Edgar Hutchison acted as chairman of the dance committee; the other members were John Oberdorf, Daniel McKelvey, and Calvin Naugle. The Inter-Fraternity Council had control of the dance and did well, in view of the fact that the Christmas dances up to this time were strictly "house" dances.

The guests from the faculty were Dr. and Mrs. G. Morris Smith, Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lee, Dr. and Mrs. A. William Ahl, Professor and Mrs. George N. Wood, Dr. and Mrs. Seidel, Professor and Mrs. Russell W. Gilbert, Professor Elrose Allison, Miss Naomi K. Hade, and Dr. Arthur H. Wilson.

"The Patsy," S. S. D. Play, on Thursday

Three Act Comedy, Under the Direction of Miss Emily Sweetman, Follows Christmas Dinner

As a fitting climax to the Christmas dinner on Thursday evening, December 15, Sigma Sigma Delta sorority will present "The Patsy" in Seibert Chapel Hall at 8:15 p. m. Although this is not a Christmas play, it is very well adapted to the spirit of the holiday season. The play has been rehearsed for the past few weeks under the capable direction of Miss Emily E. Sweetman. The cast has been working very hard in order to give you an evening of great enjoyment.

The first act presents to us a typical upper middle class family against their social background. The mother and older daughter are trying to make a name for themselves in the society of their town, by contrasting on dancing, bridge, and the country club. Mr. Harrington, a grocery salesman, finds it difficult to keep up with them. He and his younger daughter, the Patsy, seem to be the targets for the bad temper of Mrs. Harrington and the sharp tongue of Grace. However, Grace has succeeded in getting herself engaged to Billy Caldwell, a wealthy young chap. This leaves Patricia a chance to catch Tony, Grace's former boy friend on the rebound. To see how effectively she does this is only one of the many reasons why you should come to see "The Patsy."

In the second act Mr. O'Flaherty, an Irishman, helps in unraveling the country club scandal. In this act we also see how a fellow unconsciously teaches a girl how to win him. Here is an unusual opportunity to get some love lessons.

Danny McKelvey's experience as a campus chauffeur helps him make an excellent performance as a taxi driver. How Pa puts Ma in her place and how Patricia wins the man she loves and her rightful position in the Harrington family, makes a fitting climax to this delightful comedy.

The cast is as follows:

Bill Harrington		Al Meyer
Mr. Wm. Harrington		Estelle Pearl
Grace Harrington		Freda Stephens
Patricia Harrington		Amelia Krapf
Billy Caldwell		George Truckenmiller
Tony Anderson		David Evans
Sadie Buchanan		Leona Kaufman
Frances Patrick O'Flaherty		Robert McCaskey

Combined "Y" Groups Present Vesper Play

Sunday evening during the regular Vesper program, the combined Y. W. and Y. M. presented the play "Why the Chimes Rang," by Elizabeth Athorp McPadden.

The characters were Holger, a peasant boy; William Morrow; Steen, his younger sister; Bessie Bock; Bertel, their uncle; Harold Rowe; An Old Woman; Isabella Horn.

The scene was laid in the interior of a wood-chopper's hut on the edge of a forest, near a cathedral town.

The story of the play is based around the fact that every Christmas the gifts of kings, young men and women, courtiers, scholars, and many others are offered on the altar and the chimes don't ring, but this year seems to be different. The two small children want to go to the cathedral, for they want to see the king and the others who come with their gifts. The only gift they have to offer is two pennies Holger has received from a gentleman who asked the way from him. The uncle tells the children the story of the chimes. They are said to ring on Christmas Eve when the gifts are laid on the altar for the Christ-child—but not every offering will ring them, it must be a perfect gift. While they talk an old woman comes in and the children give her food and warmth. Everyone else leaves and Holger stays with her. The stage next shows the cathedral, and the Priest and the people who bring their gifts. The old woman tells Holger to place his penny on the altar. As the Priest offers them at the altar, the organ music breaks off for from above there comes the triumphant ringing of the chimes, mingled with ethereal voices singing "Gloria." Everyone kneels. The Angel enters and smiles at Holger and chants in a lovely voice: "Verily, verily, (Concluded on Page 3)

to 20. The Alumni were led on the court by "Skipper" Glenn, who captained the Orange and Maroon for two seasons and was one of the best guards ever to play with the Crusaders. Herb Rummel, last year's captain, also worked with the Alumni.

Coch Ullery placed a fast Freshmen quintet on the floor at the beginning of the game, which made good headway against the fast opposition of the grads. The Alumni were first to start the scoring festivities when Shaffer sunk a one hand shot from the side of the floor. However, Susquehanna broke into the lead when Alexander registered a field goal and two foul shots followed by a field goal by Naegli. With the score standing 8-2 in the middle of the half, Coach Ullery sent in his veteran forwards and guards and the Alumni tallied twice before the Crusaders got under way, but they went to work in earnest and led the grads with a six point margin at half time.

Although Coach Ullery again started his Freshmen outfit in the second half, the Alumni were no match against the Orange and Maroon. Again the Freshmen were sent into the game with the score standing 34-17, and it was only through a few spurts in the closing minutes of play that the Alumni were able to boost their score.

Roach, Freshman pivot man for the Crusaders, captured high scoring honors with nine markers while Naegli and W. Wasilewski, two fast stepping Freshmen forwards, were close behind with six and seven points respectively. Rhoads led his teammates in high scoring with seven counters while Wormley and Shaffer were tied for second honors with four points apiece.

Dr. Allison Institutes Novel Teaching Plan

A new method of teaching was introduced by Dr. Herbert A. Allison, when his class in American Government was given an opportunity to "listen in" via the radio, especially installed for the occasion, on a proposed congressional debate over the proposed repeal of the 18th amendment.

During the debate, Dr. Allison explained the various proceedings which a resolution undergoes while being discussed from the congressional floor. The class heard, perhaps, some of the best thoughts for and against the repeal of the 18th amendment. The bill was defeated by eight votes.

Language Clubs In Christmas Meeting

Last evening the modern language clubs held a combined meeting in the Social room of Seibert Hall. Each club presented its own program. They all sang songs pertaining to Christmas in their own language after which individual numbers were rendered. Miss Anna Gage Moody and Jay Worthington gave a little skit in French and Irene Mengel sang a French song. For the Spanish club, there was a piano solo by Letha Parry, a vocal solo by Mary Eltringham and Mary Patterson spoke in Spanish concerning Spanish customs. For the German club program, John Schoff and Margaret Hausman delivered talks. After the programs were presented some light refreshments were served.

INFORMAL PARTY ENJOYED BY MEMBERS OF PI GAMMA MU

On Monday evening, December 5, Pi Gamma Mu, National Social Science Honor Society, held an informal party in the Social Room of Seibert Hall. The entertainment was in charge of the social committee consisting of Professor George Wood, Chairman, William Ahl, Estelle Pearl, Freda Stephens and William Swann. The first event of the evening was an identification contest of which Dr. Charles Leese won first prize, and "Dot" Meyers second prize. Estelle Pearl and Freda Stephens performed several tricks which mystified the entire group.

After several other games, refreshments were served. The affair proved to be one of unusual interest and entertainment.

POET'S CORNER

NO ROOM FOR THE CHRIST

"No room for you, my house is full to-day."
The man thus coldly turned the two away.
"Tis busy times; you should have come before."
And with this final word he closed the door.
"Tis but two other travelers coming late.
Perhaps they'll find some other place outside the gate."
But something told him in his heart, 'twas wrong
To turn these two away among the throng
And when the day had passed and darkness came,
He had a sense of guilt he could not name.
He knew too well when troubled was his mind,

That peace and rest he could not hope to find.
For something weighed him down and made him long
For morning and the early drummer's song.
He sought his bed as he snuffed the light,
He heard strange music break the dead of night
Its message, "Peace, Goodwill to men below."
But he had not the wisdom thus to know
That in a manger in a stable lay
The Christ, whom he had turned away that day.
"What meaneth this?" his heart was troubled sore,
Such music he had never heard before.
And then it came to him that prophets old,
Had in a sense this very Christ foretold.
He journeyed to the stable rough and bare,
And worshipped Christ the Savior resting there.

Joseph Dixon.

You're through with love?
Why you're not dry behind the ears.
You're through with love?
At your age, what do you know of
The tender passion? Save your sneers
And see if after twenty years
You're through with love!

SONNET

Day after day, and still no word from her;
Week after week; and still I long to see
Her, hear from her; my heart beats yearningly
A tender song, a fleet-winged harbinger
Of love that flies forth as my messenger
To her. But she was ever cruel to me
Disdain and smiles co-mingled cruelly
Have seemed the lot of her idolater.
But when I ponder on the silvery moon,
Capricious like my loved one, then the pain
Departs. The moon who wanly smiles above me
I know will turn her face away. But soon
She'll look again. And so though on the wane,
Her waning makes her waxing the more lovely.

Aeronautical scholarships totalling $7,500.00 in tuition value are being offered for the fourth consecutive year to aviation-inclined students of universities and colleges by W. E. Boeing, leader in the aircraft industry. It has been announced by the Boeing School of Aeronautics, located at Oakland, Cal. The Boeing scholarships, coveted by every college man interested in aviation, annually attract many entrants from leading educational institutions.

First prize is the W. E. Boeing Master Pilot Ground and Flying Course, covering 250 hours of flying and 924 hours of ground school, and exceeding qualifications necessary for a transport pilot license. Second, third and fourth place winners may select thorough ground school courses, with the second award candidate also receiving flight instruction.

The scholarship competition will close on April 15, 1933, and essay subjects selected by candidates must be approved prior to March 15, 1933. The candidate who is selected for the first award must be able to pass the Department of Commerce transport pilot license examination within ten days after awards are announced. Three alternate candidates will be selected for possible awards in the event winners are unable to qualify physically.

In previous years, students of the following universities and colleges have been awarded scholarships: Stanford University, University of Washington, University of Nebraska, University of Maine, University of California, University of Minnesota, Mt. Union College, California Institute of Technology, Clarkson Memorial College and Santa Barbara Teachers College.

The Boeing School of Aeronautics, a unit of the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, was founded in 1929 at the Oakland municipal airport. It holds an approved school certificate and an approved repair station certificate from the Department of Commerce, and ranks as one of the world's leading aviation schools. Many Boeing graduates now occupy responsible positions on leading air lines and in aviation manufacturing companies.

Twenty Football Men Win Varsity Awards

President G. Morris Smith Presents
Insignia; Crusade Quadrangle
Dedicated in Exercises

Varsity awards to Susquehanna's gridiron heroes and dedication of the Crusader Quadrangle were observed during the regular Chapel period on Wednesday morning, December 14, at Seibert Hall.

Twenty members of the first undefeated Orange and Maroon squad were presented with the varsity insignia by President G. Morris Smith, to the accompaniment of cheers, short talks, and the playing of the University Band.

The Quadrangle was also dedicated at this time, weather conditions having made necessary the postponement of outdoor exercises on the site of the new beauty spot. William Swann, president of the Varsity "S" Club, sponsors of the idea, made the presentation to President G. Morris Smith, who accepted on behalf of the University.

The significance of the Quadrangle and of the letter awards was of special importance because of the unparalleled record of this year's gridiron aggregation under the tutelage of Head Coach Bill Ullery and his able assistant, Herb Snell.

Letters were awarded to the following Varsity men: Captain John Exstrom, Kenneth Alexander, Fred Carl, Russell Carmichael, Russell Eisenhower, Richard Fisher, John Hanna, Harold Kramer, John Meyers, Steve Martinec, Le Rishel, John Roach, Robert Sassaman, John Schoffstall, Gerald Schlegel, William Sullivan, Richard Tice, Valcent Walsh, Walter Waslewski, and Manager Selon Dock-ey.

Numerals were awarded to Kenneth Badger, Vasco Panti, William Reger, Gerald Sabatella, and Peter Ventura.

John Fisher Recently Announced Marriage

John William Fisher, a member of the senior class of the university, has recently announced his marriage to Miss Vesta Zerbe, of Sunbury. According to the announcement John joined the Benedictines several months ago, but has kept it secret until this time.

John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Fisher, of Selinsgrove, and graduated from Selinsgrove High School in 1927. He is now employed at the State Colony for Epileptics and is also attending classes at the college. He is also a popular member of the Phi Lambda Theta fraternity. We wish the couple a happy married life, and we are waiting for the belated wedding cigars.

S. A. I. Pirates Kidnap Frosh Girls at Party

The Good Ship S. A. I. was docked at the Conservatory of Music on Friday evening, January 6, 1933. The passengers went aboard at 7:15 p. m. and after a half hour of going through long lines of red tape and last minute details, the anchors were lifted and the pirate ship sailed. Among those new passengers who sailed were Marcella Chusa, Ruth Rammacher, Dorothy Turner, Mary Jane Kehler, Pearl Mette, Betty Haidacher, Miss Mary Petteiger and Mrs. P. M. Linebaugh.

The crew of S. A. I. manned the ship. Pirates Stambaugh and Williams played a large part in arranging the entertainment during the voyage. Dancing and stunts played a large part in the merrymaking. A sea voyage always gives one a good appetite, and this was certainly no exception as justice was done to the refreshments served by Pirates Gentzler and Ide. At 10 p. m. the ship returned and the passengers were all given a pack of Life Savers to help them ashore from the S. S. S. A. I.

Pledges Due—Again!

Just to remind you students who have pledged to the Crusader Quadrangle. January 15 is the date for final payment of pledges. Please remember the date and let us have your check or your cash. Nobody can wait for their money in these days of depression!

Official Dates Set For Registration

This Week, January 10-13, Inclusive, Set by Administration for Class
Enrollment

Official copies of the schedule for the second semester have been posted in Gustavus Adolphus Hall and Seibert Hall. A copy has also been sent to each of the fraternity houses. Registration for the second semester will be held during the week of January 10-13 inclusive.

Registration cards may be secured at any time at the registrar's office, but they must be returned on the dates indicated above. Since these dates have been designated as official registration days, the customary fine of $5.00 will be charged for failure to register.

The Registrar's Office and the Bureau's Office will be open on Monday, January 29 from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. in order that students may secure enrollment cards and complete registration by the payment of fees. Students who wish to pay their bills before going home between semesters may do so, and will not have to return until their first class on Tuesday, January 30.

Professor Attends Classic Conclave

Dr. A. William Ahl spent Vacation at Syracuse at American Philological Convention

Dr. A. William Ahl, professor of Greek and Ancient History in the University, attended the 64th Annual Convention of the American Philological Association in Syracuse, New York, from December 28 to 30.

The speakers of the convention were notable faculty members from many schools of the nation. Among this select group Dean Gordon J. Laing of the University of Chicago, was outstanding with his defense of classical research. At the convention banquet Dr. Laing not only defended the classical philologists, but he also attacked the modern view which shoves aside the study of classical lore in the American universities and colleges. His suggestion that all congressmen should be given an intelligence test before being seated met with general approval. His lecture closed with a great defense of history. "No—history is not the bunk; and what seems impractical does not always prove impractical."

Dr. Evan M. Linforth, president of the Association, also presented a very technical and scholarly address on the subject of Orphism. Orphism was the religious movement that swept Greece during the sixth century before Christ; it is often comparable with the modern Salvation Army. "Dr. Linforth's paper was both inspirational and pedagogical," says the Syracuse Herald.

Dr. Ahl was pleased with the progress that this Association is making and is firm in his belief of its technical value. The American Philological Association is one of the learned societies of America and has a great historical and philological background.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES GIVEN IN THE PHIHELLENIC SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Philhellenic Society was held in room 205 of G. A. Hall on last Friday night at seven o'clock. After a short business meeting Dr. A. William Ahl, Elmer Drumm, Ernest Huston, Robert Clark and Martin Botteiger gave short "word pictures" of such famous Greeks as Socrates, Endymion, Pindar, Myron and Achilles. The sketches were most important, because they dealt with men whose lives had a direct bearing on the civilization of ancient Greece.

HANDBALL TOURNAMENT

The Annual Inter-Mural Handball Tournament will begin this week. A list of all of the contestants has been posted and the elimination process will begin immediately. Because of the short time allotted for this sport it is necessary that all matches be played as soon as possible.

Faculty Members at Education Meetings

Many Professors Attend Conventions
Over Christmas Holidays. Few Take Active Parts in the Programs

During the past month quite a few of Susquehanna's professors attended important educational meetings and conferences, several taking an active part in their programs.

President G. Morris Smith, Dean George F. Dunkelberger, Dr. George E. Fisher, Dr. Paul J. Orebro, Professors D. I. Reitz, and Edwin M. Brungart, attended meetings of the Pennsylvania State Education Association at Harrisburg, Dr. Smith spoke on "Paring the budget with the least possible loss of efficiency."

Susquehanna was represented at several important athletic meetings in New York City by Luther D. Grossman, director of athletics, and Coach William W. Ullery. Professor Grossman as a representative at the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Society of Directors of Physical Education in Colleges also attended meetings of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Prior to the New York meetings Prof. Grossman received the distinctive appointment as a member of the executive committee of the Middle Atlantic States' Collegiate Athletic conference. Other members of this committee are Edwin S. Elliot, Columbia University; E. E. Mylin, Lebanon Valley; Roy Van Ormer, Johns Hopkins, and C. E. Billheimer, of Gettysburg. Coach Ullery was present at the annual meeting of Football Coaches in New York City.

Professor and Mrs. E. Edwin Sheldon, of the Conservatory of Music faculty, attended the fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Music Teachers' National Association in conjunction with the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music at Washington, D. C.

Dr. Robert W. Tucker attended the annual meeting of the Linguistic Society of America held at New Haven, Conn. during the holiday season.

Varsity Quintet to Meet Strong Foes

Ullerymen Will Attempt to Break Into the Victory Column in Tills With Western Maryland and Bucknell

After losing their first three contests, the Crusaders will be out to win when they meet Western Maryland in the Alumni Gymnasium on Thursday night. This is the first time the two teams have met since 1929 when the Orange and Maroon won by a slight margin.

Coach Bill Ullery is sending his team through a hard practice in order to break into the winning column. Unlike previous years, the Crusaders are weak in foul shooting and are called upon to make more goals from the field. Little is known concerning the cagers from Western Maryland, but it is certain that they will have a team on the floor that will push the Crusaders hard to win.

On Tuesday night, January 17, Bucknell will again resume basketball relations with the Crusaders when the two teams meet in the Alumni Gymnasium. The Bisons will have a strong quintet on the floor as they have always had in previous years. The season of 1928 marked the last time that the two teams met and the Bisons were victorious by about a ten point margin. However, the Susquehanna five has grown stronger since that time and the Crusaders should come through with a victory.

The Susquehanna J. V.'s will also be fighting for a victory when they meet the Hudson Five in the Alumni Gymnasium in a preliminary game to the Western Maryland tilt.

DEBATING SOCIETY MEETS

The weekly meeting of the Debating Society was held Thursday afternoon January 5 in G. A. 205. Since the vacation season the teams have been working hard preparing issues and arguments on the question. Several practice debates have been held, but as yet no permanent teams have been selected. The first debate of the season is scheduled for the latter part of February, and Russell Gilbert predicts a favorable season for Susquehanna.

LACK OF TEAMWORK BRINGS DEFEAT TO CRUSADERS ON BASKETBALL COURT

Ullerymen Drop Three Contests in Row to Osteopathy, Penn State, and Lebanon Valley; Missed Fouls Prove Costly

Audience Delighted With S. S. D. Comedy

Excellent Leads and Capable Supporting Cast Present Novel Attraction
Appreciative Audience

On Thursday evening, December 15, Sigma Sigma Delta Sorority presented "The Patsy," by Barry Connors. The audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance which exceeded all expectations. It has been said that this was one of the best plays staged on this campus in recent years.

At the end of the play, the audience was surprised the audience in their excellent portrayals as the father and mother of "The Patsy." Both of these students have been on the campus for several years, but this has been their first opportunity to expose their ability in public.

Freda Stephens and George Truckemiller have both had previous experience in dramatics on this campus. They lived up to their well established reputations and capably enacted the roles of sophisticated young lovers.

Amelia Krapf and Dave Evans, who are also new Thespians on Susquehanna's stage, pleased the audience with their naive attempts at love making.

Supporting the cast as Sadie Buchanan, Leona Kaufman almost shattered the romance between the sophisticated couple. Danny McKelvey, as a taxi driver, provided a comical scene, as did the portrayal by Bob McGeehan of Francis Patrick O'Flaherty. This part was spoken in dialect, which added much to the effect.

"The Patsy" was presented under the capable direction of Miss Emily Sweetman, Registrar of Susquehanna. Miss Pauline Crow and Wesley Sterling showed the efficiency by the excellent appearance of the stage. The center stairway was something new and different on this campus.

The cast included:
Bill Harrington Albert Meyer
Mrs. Wm. Harrington Estelle Pearl
Grace Harrington Freda Stephens
Paige Harrington Amelia Krapf
Billy Caldwell George Truckemiller
Tony Anderson David Evans
Sadie Buchanan Leona Kaufman
Francis Patrick O'Flaherty, Robert McGeehan,

Vesper Program In Honor of Coolidge

On Sunday evening at vespers a memorial service was given in honor of the late ex-President Calvin Coolidge. The combined efforts of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. made this program possible.

President G. Morris Smith gave an address on the virtue of simplicity and showed the relation of this virtue to the deceased Mr. Coolidge. Another feature of the program was a violin solo by William Caruth, Mrs. Bertha Rodgers accompanied him at the piano.

LADIES AUXILIARY HELD ITS REGULAR SESSION

The Ladies Auxiliary held its January meeting in Seibert Hall at 2:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, January 7, with fifty women in attendance, following an executive meeting at 2:00. Mrs. E. Edwin Sheldon had arranged a pleasing program. There were piano numbers by Betty Bogar, Jean Dilzler, Josephine Dodson, and Jean Brumder. Eleanor Benfer danced, and Mary Graham, of Northumberland, sang. The University string quartet, composed of Professor Donald Hemphill, William Caruth, Eric Shober, and Robert Clark, played several selections. The members decided to have the furniture in the living rooms of Seibert Hall reupholstered. Mrs. Margaret Wingard and Mrs. Sheldon were designated to have charge of the work.

—Subscribe To The Susquehanna,

Susquehanna University's knights of the wooden way sustained three successive defeats during the past month at the hands of Osteopathy, Penn State, and Lebanon Valley.

Lack of experience and teamwork has brought on the downfall of the Ullerymen when pitted against veteran foes. Poor foul shooting was responsible for the Crusader loss last Saturday night when the Orange and Maroon warriors converted only seven fouls out of twenty-two attempts.

Osteopathy 36—Susquehanna 28
The Crusaders opened their 1932-33 intercollegiate basketball schedule on December 16 by losing to a strong Osteopathy team by a score of 36 to 28. The visitors managed to keep a slight lead over the Orange and Maroon in the first half and then broke away in the final minutes to win.

Coach Bill Ullery had three Freshmen in the starting Susquehanna line-up. Walter Waslewski, at a forward position, Roach at the pivot post and Sassaman teamed up with Captain McGeehan at a guard berth.

Sassaman led his teammates in scoring with nine points while Van Nuys, last year's scoring ace, was second with seven points.

Christensen, playing at a forward position for the victors, captured high scoring honors of the game with thirteen markers to his credit. At the other forward post, Browne took second place with eleven counters.

Penn State 43—Susquehanna 24

Before a large crowd of approximately 3000 basketball fans, Susquehanna dropped its second game of basketball to a strong Penn State team at State College last Wednesday night. State built up a comfortable lead in the first half when they led by a score of 27 to 14 and this lead was never threatened as the score stood 43 to 24 when the final whistle blew.

The Crusaders line-up was shifted somewhat and Schlegel and K. Waslewski saw service at the pivot post, while Roach was at a guard position. McFarlane led the game for high scoring with twelve points and Wittum, State center, was second with nine counters.

For the Orange and Maroon, K. Waslewski and W. Waslewski were tied for scoring honors with six markers each. McGeehan and Noegli were also tied with two field goals apiece.

Lineup:

A NEW DEAL

We need a new deal for forgotten football players.

We need a little more regard and a little less flagrant disregard for their wishes. These men, our heroes, who sweated and strained and suffered in mud and rain . . . these men who felt an indomitable spirit within them that said: "Susquehanna cannot lose" . . . these men who bruised and scarred, battered and weary at the end of a racking season . . . clamor for an enduring and adult symbol of their successful season should have their wishes respected. Every student can understand and sympathize and acknowledge their wishes.

This is not a time to renege—it is a time to exalt. Now that the blare of the band and the roar of the crowds have gone, we shall discover how true is the appreciation a gridiron warrior is accorded.

COLLEGE TO SING SING?

"All the best known colleges are represented in Sing Sing Prison," declares Chaplain Petersen of Sing Sing, in an article in a recent issue of Redbook Magazine.

This rather startling statement concerning the conduct of our college-educated population is supplemented by a long list of colleges and universities whose graduates have come into contact with the prison chaplain.

Chaplain Petersen adds, however, that "I cannot recall that I ever talked with a prisoner here who had worked his way through college," and further modifies the apparent harshness of the fact by remarking that the scope of the crimes of college men is limited and much different from that of non-college men, and that discipline is almost unnecessary with the educated criminals.

Also, "to the best of my knowledge, we have not had any school-teachers or college professors among our prisoners. Whether this is because such men do acquire a real education at college, or because of something connected with the essential altruism of their profession, the truth remains that those who make teaching their life-work do not come to Sing Sing."

The chaplain mentions experts in science, philosophy, and religion, and lawyers and doctors among the educated inmates. Their crimes are nearly always larceny or forgery, with few concerned in any way with force or violence.

As reasons for their turning to crime, Chaplain Petersen hints that alcoholic and sexual excesses may often lead to further misconducts, and also that the college man may be unwilling to lower his standard of living following a misfortune or period of depression such as the present.

As a remedy to this situation, Petersen suggests that the home life and training are most important, with enough freedom to avoid undesirable reactions, and an appreciation of the relation between money and work.

I first met her in the club-car of a train bound for Toronto.

She had hair the color of spun bronze . . . and I, who had never liked that hue, was fascinated by it . . . There was a chiseled fineness about her features that with the ivory pallor of her skin gave her a look of decision and serenity . . . Her walk was undulating beauty in motion, and you were aware of the poise, the vitality, the breeding of this fine young animal . . . She might have been a Byzantine princess instead of an American helress bound for New Year's celebration across the border.

She was the sort of woman whose physical nearness would make the blood surge in your veins like wine . . . She was the sort that every head-water—no matter if it were her first visit to the establishment—would immediately place in a prominent position. Her poise . . . her clothes . . . her hair . . . all her very self would glitter with éclat wherever you put her . . . And her enchantment would be glamorous, lighting up her surroundings like a patch of sun-light on black velvet portieres.

Yes, she was bound for Toronto—and I was getting off at the train's next stop.

"It's like falling in love-off with the old-glove, on with the new."—Herbert Allen Allison.

He was a young student very much in love. She was his everything. He had sacrificed so much to win her, but now as he approached her, she rebuked him and was cold. Why did she act this way? He shook her, but she made no response. She seemed so lifeless. He shifted positions, turned her around, and in his overflowing wrath kicked and stepped on her. Oh, what was wrong? He became desperate and clutched her madly and then, in his frenzy, choked her . . . An empty dismayed feeling crept over him . . . What had he done? She was so still, so inanimate. No, no, she must not die—and then as if in answer to his prayers, he saw her turn over and moan in low throbbing gasps. He sighed, relieved as he drove away, resolving never to buy another used Ford.

Just a vivacious Irish bundle of femininity is this buxom temptress of Seibert. Colorful, voluble, and amusing, she swaggers her way through life with a laugh in her heart and a zest for life that gives one more of a tingle than an Old Fashioned. With her chestnut brown hair, she's an Aphrodite slightly gone to seed but still with great potentialities.

The Pre-Theological Club held its regular monthly meeting in room 205 of G. A. Hall last Thursday evening at six-thirty. Opening devotions were in charge of the President, Edwin Clapper, and Ernest Huston, after which an open discussion was led by the president on such interesting and important topics as, "Is there Heaven and a Hell?" Rishel Will Captain 1933 Football Team

Veteran Halfback Receives Honor of Piloting Undeclared Eleven Into New Season

Lee "Skipper" Rishel, '34, was recently chosen as the captain who will lead Susquehanna's football team on the gridiron next fall and attempt to continue the winning streak established by this year's eleven.

RISHEL

Rishel has played halfback on the Orange and Maroon, earning his letter for three years, and proving himself one of the most valuable men in the backfield by his ability both as a blocking back and a skillful ball carrier.

Gaining his experience at Selinsgrove High School, where he played several years on an undefeated team, Rishel has earned the distinction of being the first Selinsgrove man to pilot a Susquehanna eleven. He is also the first backfield man to capture that honor in four years.

In addition to his knowledge and ability of the game, Rishel should prove a capable leader by virtue of the field personality and excellent sportsmanship which he has always displayed in competition during his three years at Susquehanna.

The new captain resides on West Pine street, and is a member of the Bond and Key Club. Besides being an outstanding athlete, he has also maintained a high scholastic standing since his arrival on the campus.

Y. W. Holds Thursday Evening Discussion

Erdene Ellmore had charge of the Y. W. meeting on Thursday evening at ten o'clock in the social rooms.

The meeting opened with the playing of "Sweet Hour of Prayer" by Pearl Mette. The scripture lesson was taken from Matthew 10:5-14, followed by meditation and prayer. The topic for discussion was "How can we witness for Christ?" We can witness for Christ by doing things in the right manner. Even though we are only one, the good will triumph slowly, but surely. God has given us personality. Why not use it for Christ? When one is really sincere, the goodness will be seen by others and when in their presence, one cannot help feeling as though he too should and could follow the example of Christ. We can also witness for Christ by praying as He asked us to pray. Friendship: What does it mean? Can we witness for Christ through it and be His friend? No friendship is worth the name which does not help to strengthen character. Fellowship with Christ, thinking of Him, seeking to please Him will make us more like Him.

A friendship circle and the song "Follow the Glean" closed the meeting.

PROFESSOR SCUDDER TO DISCUSS BIOLOGICAL PROBLEMS
A meeting of the Honor Science Club will be held tonight at 6:30 in the lecture room of Steele Science Hall. All members and students are urged to be present at this meeting. Professor F. W. Scudder will lecture on "The Biological Problem." The subject and discussion will be of vital importance to all science students.

Dr. Houtz Honored in Issue of "Alumnus"

Oldest Member of Faculty Recalls Good Old Days in Feature Article of Graduate Publication

Dr. Thomas C. Houtz, president Emeritus of Mathematics and Astronomy at Susquehanna, was paid tribute by an article "In Retrospect," in the recent Christmas issue of "The Susquehanna Alumnus." Dr. Houtz is the oldest member of the faculty.

"How many of you 'old grads' can remember a college where classrooms were individually heated by coal stoves where a wooden, outdoor pump furnished water . . . where the really smart co-eds galloped up in horse and buggy . . . where the president cultivated his own garden and the president's wife supervised the cooking?"

"Such is the picture that Dr. Thomas Calvin Houtz draws of Susquehanna University in 1885—far different from the university that is celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary this year. Today's original building (Selinsgrove Hall) was formerly housed the president and his wife, all resident students, class rooms, administration offices, and chapel is only one unit of a campus that includes nine major buildings; faculty and fraternity houses, central heating plant and laundry. Even in expansion, however, Susquehanna has not lost its group life, its personal contact between faculty and student body, nor those interests which tend towards a happy family life rather than an attitude of indifference toward one another.

"Dr. Houtz, the grand old man of the faculty, first came here when two other matured members of the faculty were only students. One of the recollections he is most likely to chuckle over is that of students being ducked in a large wooden trough. Sometimes food was added to the bath. In either case, the victim was always given a complete submersion. Another incident always enjoyed was when a chicken was purloined from some neighboring farm and roasted over the coal fire in a student's room. Individual coal bins were placed where the gymnasium now stands. In the autumn, the president's grave arbor always proved a tempting sort.

"Dr. Houtz is now in his eightieth year. He is still keenly interested in his college, watching its progress and expansion. More and more, however, he lingers in the time when Susquehanna University had less than a hundred students (including those enrolled in the 'prep' school), when the football coach played in some of the games, when the president received his salary on a contract basis and paid all expenses of the college out of it, when Cuban and Mexican students were in vogue . . . when the 'Temperance Association' was a leading activity and the girls' dorm was referred to as a 'Young Ladies' Home'."

Chapel Services Held In Honor of Penn

Dr. Herbert Allison Paid Fitting Tribute to "Founder of Pennsylvania" in Scholarly Address

Fitting tribute to William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of his landing on the shores of the Delaware River was given in a scholarly address by Dr. Herbert A. Allison, at chapel services Tuesday, December 13. He first briefly outlined Penn's early life. Born in London, 1644, in a period of great political unrest, he was five years old when Charles I. was beheaded as a result of Puritan fanaticism. At 16 he saw the triumphal entry of Charles II into London. In that same year 14 regicides were hanged, drawn, beheaded and quartered.

In that same year he entered Oxford. Two years later he was expelled for insubordination, taking part in a ritual rebellion. He and his friends tore supplies from other students and threw them into a cesspool. At 22 he had his portrait painted in armor.

"It is a strange freak of fate," the speaker said, "that probably the only portrait of the great Quaker pacifist painted from life that has come down to us is that of this handsome youth in armor."

A few months later he was converted to Quaker ideas, and soon became a minister, with an influence that won for him the title of the second founder of the Society of Friends.

He had three motives in founding Pennsylvania: first to provide a refuge for persecuted Quakers; second, a "holy experiment" to prove the utility of Quaker ideas of government, and lastly, "a not unworthy but wholly secondary one of financial profit."

His father, Admiral Penn, had bequeathed to him a claim against the English Crown of 10,000 pounds, loaned King Charles to uphold the navy. With interest this amounted in 1680 to 15,000 pounds. Penn asked Charles II to give him land in America to pay off the debt, and Charles gave him 40,000 square miles March 4, 1681, the largest ever given to an individual in America.

There were others here before him. Penn sailed August 31, 1682 in the ship Welcome with 100 passengers. Smallpox broke out and 30 died. Penn himself was immune. They anchored off New Castle, Del., Oct. 24, 1682 amid welcoming shouts of settlers who had preceded them.

Penn's purpose in coming was to organize a government, visit with friends in this section, conciliate the Indians, see the governor of New York, who had jurisdiction over the province, fix a site for a capital city, and settle a boundary line with Lord Baltimore.

"He laid out his capital city, his child named before it was born, as he said Philadelphia, City of Brotherly Love. He established friendly relations with the Indians whom he treated not as troublesome heathen to be exterminated, but as men and brothers amenable to good faith and fair dealing. Under the sun at Shackamaxon was made the treaty declared by Voltaire to be 'the only one between natives and Christians which was never sworn to and never broken.'"

In three years Philadelphia grew to 2,500, and the colony to 6,000, a growth equal to that of other colonies in a half century.

Penn returned to England in 1684, and the next fifteen years produced most of his writings.

In his "Essay Toward the Present and Future Peace of Europe," he advocated a court of arbitration for the promotion of world peace.

In 1697 he wrote out a "Plan for Union," for the American colonies, the earliest suggestion for cooperation that later was realized in the Republic.

He returned to America in 1699, with his wife and family. For two busy years he divided his time between his elaborate country mansion, Pennsbury, in Bucks county, and Philadelphia.

He wrote a "Charter of Privilege" in 1701, the constitution under which Pennsylvania flourished until the Revolution. It was the basis of the state constitution of 1776 and all subsequent constitutions. He chartered the city, and founded the William Penn charter school in 1701 which still exists in Philadelphia. He returned to England after two years in America, and spent the rest of his life there. He died in 1718, and was buried in a Quaker cemetery, near the village of Chalfont, St. Giles, the same village where Milton finished his "Paradise Lost." A simple stone marks his resting place.

As time goes on Penn's fame has increased and he holds a higher place than ever in the regard of mankind. He was the greatest among the founders of American commonwealths.

"I pay him tribute for his pletistic spirit, his attitude of religious toleration, his sense of human brotherhood, his zeal for universal peace of nations. He wrought beneficently in the establishment of a mighty commonwealth, but above all, he was a great idealist, and after all, the world's great idealists are its true immortals."

POET'S CORNER

Sonnet I

Oh, can it be I really thought I lived,
Before last night had come and gone its way?

Can I have just existed and believed
I lived,

Because I slept and woke from day to day,

And breathed in air, and sensed the sun on high,

Because I felt the heat its rays had lain,

And ate, and drank, although I knew not why?

I only moved to sleep and wake again,
But now I LIVE! for life came to reveal

Itself to me in form of love. My senses reel

Beneath the beauty found in nature's cult.

I see! I hear! I feel! I sense the call
Of life in all about men, and exult

That I am part and parcel of it all.
—DoDo.

Triolet

Ah, what a startling thing it is
How many come to church to sleep.

They gap and nod in slumbrous bliss;
Ah, what a startling thing it is.

I'm sure it pleases God that His Word lulls them to these dreams so deep

Ah, what a startling thing it is
How many come to church to sleep.

—William Evans.

Rondelet

Her eyes are—well—
It's true to call them pools of blue.

Her eyes are—well—
Quite innocent. Yet who can tell
They may be wise. I've failed it's true

To picture them; I'll try anew.
Here eyes are—well—

Lebanon Valley 34—Susquehanna 29

The Crusaders lost a hard fought game to the Lebanon Valley cagers in the Alumni Gymnasium on Saturday night by a score of 34 to 29, thus giving way to the jinx that has existed between the two teams for the past seven years.

The visitors were first to score, but the Orange and Maroon immediately evened the count early in the game. Susquehanna then took the lead and held a slight margin until two field goals put Lebanon Valley in the lead as the half ended with the score 15 to 14.

Although the Crusaders outplayed their opponents, they fell below par in their foul shooting and made only seven points out of twenty-two chances while Lebanon Valley registered ten points out of fourteen by the foul route. K. Wasilewski was shifted to a guard position in the Susquehanna lineup, where he played a stellar game besides registering nine tallies.

Captain Morrison, of Lebanon Valley, captured scoring honors with twelve points and Barthold, at the other forward position, was a close second with eleven counters. For Susquehanna, the Wasilewski brothers were high point getters with nine, while Roach swished the net three times from the field.

Sororities Honor Frosh at Parties

K. D. P. Presents Novel "Owl Party"
S. S. D. Actives Entertain With Delightful "Prosperity Party"

Kappa Delta Phi and Sigma Sigma Delta staged clever "rush parties" during the past week. On Wednesday night the S. S. D. actives entertained the Freshmen at a "Prosperity Party" and on Friday night K. D. P. revived their sorority tradition with an "Owl Party" in honor of the new girls.

Kappa Delta Phi sorority again scored, when with originality and cleverness, the girls entertained eighteen Freshman girls at their annual indoor rush party.

The entertainment was in the form of an "Owl" party—a corner of the Social room was partitioned off and decorated to resemble an Owl's den, with a thick wood of pine trees in which sat numbers of Owls, and behind whose branches there shown a huge yellow moon. Upon their arrival, the girls were conducted to this den, where the President and Vice President, disguised as Owls, greeted them. After they were all seated on cushions and Indian blankets, the entertainment began. Owls, Hines, Stetler, and Nichols portrayed very beautifully the age-old "The Owl and the Pussy-cat," which was received with much enthusiasm and applause. Owls Hutter, Nelson, Linds, Gisel and Moody put on another "Wise" act, followed by Mrs. Moody and Gisel, who gave an original tap dance, featuring Mr. and Mrs. Owl, after which the favors in the form of Owl incense burners, were distributed. Various games were played, and prizes received by Natalie Pritchard and Rose Runk.

Dancing to the strains of night-club music from the radio in the sorority room followed, after which a bounteous repast was served in the social room by candle light. This presented a very pretty scene, and when the inevitable ten-thirty rolled around, every one was reluctant to go.

Mrs. Frederic Stevens, an alumna, was the guest of honor.

A very "prosperous" evening was enjoyed by eighteen new girls, who were guests of Sigma Sigma Delta Sorority Wednesday evening, January 11. A very original "Prosperity Party" was arranged in an every possible way from the invitations, which were in the form of checks, to the place cards, which were imitation dollar bills.

The room was effectively decorated by means of streamers in the colors of the rainbow. A large prosperity banner hung on the wall. Misses Lena Losasso and Eleanor Olshefsky were awarded prizes for having the lowest score in a very novel and interesting miniature golf game. The "palm reading" was the main attraction of the entertainment. Misses Bernice Harding and Eleanor Olshefsky were awarded prizes for this event. A feat of Black Magic, which puzzled everyone, was performed by Freda Stephens and Etelle Pearl.

The "Pot of Gold" at the foot of the rainbow proved to be a delicious repast, which was enjoyed by all the girls. Dancing completed a very prosperous evening.

Junior Varsity Five Drops Two Games

Two-Day Trip Results in a Crushing
Defeat at the Hands of Freeland
Quintet and Loss to McCann

The Susquehanna J. V.'s had an unsuccessful basketball trip during the week-end, sustaining defeats on Friday night at the hands of the Freeland Mining and Mechanical Institute by a score of 53 to 20 and on Saturday night they lost a heart-breaker to McCann's Business College of Haddon by a count of 35 to 31.

On Friday night the Junior Varsity's opposition proved to be too much for them as the Freeland boys scored at will. Walsh, playing at a forward position for the J. V.'s, led his mates in scoring with seven points while Hess, stationed at a guard post, was second with four markers.

Bonner, a hard playing forward for the victors, captured high scoring honors of the game with sixteen points besides being the outstanding floor man.

However, on Saturday night, a rejuvenated Junior Varsity forced the Business College cagers to go to the limit in order to win. J. Worthington, flashy forward for the Orange and Maroon, captured team honors in scoring with seven points, while Hess was again second this time with six tallies.

High scoring laurels for the game went to Pellin, who displayed clever cage form registering fourteen points. The starting line-up for the winners remained on the floor throughout the whole game and showed that they had a smooth working aggregation.

Professor Scudder in Biological Lecture

Members of the Honor Science Club met in the lecture room of Steele Science Hall on Tuesday night to enjoy a lecture on "The Biological Problem," presented by Professor Fiske W. Scudder. This was the regular monthly meeting of the group and was well attended.

The discussion of the problem was of vital importance because it dealt with the posterity of the human race. The lecture was decidedly scholarly but the technical side of the question was avoided so that any interested listener could grasp the meaning.

Harry Carl, a member of the Junior class, is president of the organization and has made the meetings throughout the year especially interesting with his fine selection of outside speakers.

Campus Sororities Hold Rush Dances

Inter-Sorority Council Combines Four Sororities for Annual Rush Dance
In Gym on January 21

Four campus sororities will combine their Rush Dances on Saturday night, January 21, under the auspices of the Inter-Sorority Council. The "rush dance" is an annual affair held in the Alumni Gymnasium in honor of the Freshman women.

Karl Selzer's orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion. Selzer's band is a Sunbury organization and is popular with the college groups of this district.

According to the decision of the Inter-Sorority Council the dance will be formal for both men and women. For several years the Rush Dance has been in the control of the Council, but before that time the sororities held their private "Rush Dances" at the different fraternity houses.

Philadelphia Trip For Varsity Five

La Salle and Haverford on Week-end
Schedule. Junior Varsity Holds
Five Game Program

The Crusaders will again invade foreign territory next week-end when they journey to Philadelphia to meet La Salle College on Friday night and then visit Haverford College on Saturday. All indications point toward at least one victory, if not two on this trip.

Coach Ullery has now arranged a combination tilt should come through with several wins in the remainder of the season.

Last season the Crusaders were defeated by the La Salle cagers in a close game at Philadelphia by a score of 17 to 11. Neither team could gain advantage over the other until the final minutes of play, when the Orange and Maroon finally lost out. However, two seasons ago the Crusaders won by an overwhelming score of 30-14.

Haverford College continued basketball relations with Susquehanna last year after a lapse of two years. Last year the Orange and Maroon was victorious by a score of 30-14. Whatever the outcome of the two games away will be, the Crusaders will be sure to put up a scrappy game.

The Junior Varsity will meet the Embassy Theatre Club in the Alumni Gymnasium on Thursday night and then journey to Williamsport to meet a local club there on Friday night. They will also meet the Buffalo Valley Quintet in a preliminary game to the Susquehanna-Bucknell game tonight.

Pi Gamma Book Review Conducted by Dr. Ahl

On Monday evening, January 9, Dr. A. William Ahl, professor of religion and Greek at Susquehanna University, delivered an interesting book review to the members of the Susquehanna Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, National Social Science Honor Society, at their regular monthly meeting.

The book which he discussed was "The Believing World," written by Lewis Brown and published by the McMillan Company. It is one of the more recent outstanding religious works which has had an influence upon its reading clientele.

The present development of the various religious systems from the naturalistic point of view were discussed and it was brought out that Christianity is the final and the highest type of religion which alone is able to bring true happiness to man on this earth and in the world to come. The discussion of the book proved highly profitable to the members who were in attendance.

DEBATING CLUB MEETS

Last Thursday, the Debating Club held its regular weekly meeting, under the direction of Professor Russell Gilbert. The main questions for debate were chosen, and a trial debate was scheduled for next Thursday evening.

President Attends Shore Conventions

Meetings of Lutheran Colleges and American Association of Colleges
Held at Atlantic City

President G. Morris Smith attended the National convention of Lutheran Colleges and Seminaries at Atlantic City, New Jersey, during the past week. He was accompanied by his wife.

Beginning with a banquet at the convention hotel on Tuesday evening the conference continued until Wednesday evening, January 11. The general theme of the convention was "Cooperation in the meeting constructive plans were presented for the various Lutheran groups, in an effort to raise the educational standards.

Lectures by the congregation's outstanding educators and round table discussions on Post Graduate Studies for Ministers made the conference of notable interest. The Wednesday sessions were of special value when they were combined with the Council of Church Boards of Education. The discussion of "personality" and "men of worth" developed into a serious discussion of the present status of the college man and woman.

The value of this convention is undoubtedly high, for educators, standing highest in their field, presented timely topics on the development of secondary education.

On Thursday and Friday of last week Dr. Smith attended another convention in the same city. The meeting of the Association of American Colleges and Universities took place immediately following the other conference. Dr. Smith was deeply impressed with the wealth of material that the speakers offered.

Of the four hundred member colleges and universities in the United States, Susquehanna was admitted in 1931. This year the University of Toronto was accepted as a member. This is the first Canadian institution to become a member of the conference. "Training of College Teachers," "Effects of the Depression Upon the Colleges, in Relation to Enrollment and Finance" and "Whether the College Has Failed," by Professor Paul Douglas of the University of Chicago, were the educational features of the convention. The round table discussion was very broad, but the final judgment of the group was that the college needs is a more liberal education.

SENIORS AND JUNIORS LEAD IN GIRLS CAGE LEAGUE

The girls' basketball games are being played off according to the schedule. The first game was played Tuesday evening when the Sophomores won from the Freshmen by the score of 28-8. Biringham was high scorer for the winners with five goals to her credit. Smith made three of the baskets for the Frosh.

Friday evening the closest game was played when the Juniors won from the Sophomores, 12-9.

The Seniors overwhelmed the Freshmen on Saturday by the score of 32-10. Jones was high scorer for the Seniors, while Sharpnack made most of the baskets for the Freshmen.

The standing of the teams is as follows:

Osteopaths Again Outscore Varsity

Return Game at Philadelphia Resulted In Win for Doctors; Varsity
Shows Improvement

The Crusaders staged a flashy comeback to outscore their opponents in the second half but fell short by several points to meet defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy by a score of 39 to 32 on the Philadelphia court, last Wednesday night. This marks the second time the Orange and Maroon has met the Philadelphia aggregation on the wooden way this season and a remarkable improvement was noticeable in the Crusaders' ranks as Coach McWilliams' crack outfit was pushed to the limit to win.

As the score indicates it was a close game throughout. The Crusaders registered one less field goal than the Osteopaths, but again failed to convert single counters in their foul shooting. Naegeli, a fast stepping forward, played a great game at that position and led his teammates in the scoring column with a total of nine tallies, while W. Waslewski, his running mate, zipped the net for three field goals. The defensive work of Sassaman and Captain McGeehan at guards was also outstanding, while the offensive work of K. Waslewski in the second half boosted the Crusader score, as he switched the basket for seven points. Roach played a smart floor game as he interrupted pass after pass and registered two goals from the floor.

The high scoring honors for the game went to Christianson, shark shooting forward of the Osteopaths, as he gathered a total of thirteen points. Furey, the victor's pivot man, took second honors with eleven markers.

GET TO WORK

Once again the end of the semester looms ahead, bringing into your minds the much-feared examinations, but it is all over except the cranning.

For you will cram, advice to the contrary notwithstanding. And if you think, as undoubtedly three per cent will, it will be the fault of the professor or the author of the textbook—but it won't be YOUR fault, for YOU spent the whole night before "brushing up" on the subject.

As usual, the midnight oil will not only be burned but cremated; fraternity house "bull sessions" and dorm "pow-wows" will extend far into the night, and many of our industrious fellow-students will find a lot of uncut pages in certain books. Their attitude is "just to get by."

We take this opportunity to remind the students that it is high time to begin reviewing. While we do not attempt to argue the merit or the undesirability of exams (having done so last year) the fact remains that they will be given within the next ten days at Susquehanna. And since they are an important factor in determining grades there is but one thing to be done—GET TO WORK!

CULTURE AND NAKPINS

We have come to Susquehanna to develop character,, culture, and knowledge. As we cite them, so they rank in importance to us.

Curiously enough, culture is not something we wake up with some fine morning, but it is a quality developed by slow degrees. Habit inculcates it in the individual as thoroughly as hunger and danger train animals to wolf their food. The dining hall is one of life's mirrors where the human reveals his culture as a veneer or ingrained thing. One can very easily distinguish the latter by the way a person breaks his bread or uses his napkin.

But what is one to do if there are no napkins?

The proposal that we bring napkins with us is about as absurd as to bring silverware and platters with us. It's not done . . . that—and nothing more—is a final and fitting objection to the practice.

Napkins and good dinner manners are forever associated. If we are to become neither pedants or wolves but true representatives of college culture . . . if we are to form new habits that will forever distinguish us from jackals and aborigines . . . then we have the right to expect some slight cooperation from the Horton Dining Hall administration.

NOTICE!

On account of the semester examinations from January 24 to January 27 there will be no issue of "THE SUSQUEHANNA" on January 24. The next edition will be published on February 7.

CAMPUS MANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you!

(A columnist's see'y jots down a few notes.)

Dear Wenchell,
 Someone dropped in to say that "Little Caesar" of the Hazleton Frosh has quite suddenly found Bucknell interesting . . . Daisee remarked that she's in the market for a new frai pin . . . The shoe manufacturers say that women's feet are growing larger . . . Don't forget to send a scallion to Bernice Brubaker for "listening in" on telephone conversations . . . Ann Appleth says she's amazed at the knowledge "Campusmania" has on everything and everybody. I told her not to think too much . . . There's a report on Schmidt that he's only a fugitive from a Sunbury Jane gang . . . Discovered that Liberian wives are often used as legal security . . . They do say that Prof. Bender learned to speak English while working for the NY Telephone Company . . . Which reminds me, your author of the letter excerpts in this issue is particularly gripped that his second was covered . . . What is the attraction in Sunbury that makes Pearl wish to commute? . . . Believe it or not, Art Weber brought a pair of Bill Swann's trousers to Gilbert for Dot

A. Gerl . . . ("Burp") Edwards is still Honeymooning . . . The newbies published not so long ago an interview with Garbe in which she claimed solitude was her one craving. Now they say she'll marry a man with five children . . . Y(H)ess, we hear that Hanna and Schlegel have Come to a Parting . . . "Poker-Faced" Clegg is note-carrier for June ("Mrs. Wenchell") Weaver to "Ex-Black Plagues" Youngerman . . . It was quite ghastly—I mean the red light in one window and green in the other (right here on Walnut Street). Sort of a pleasure to the grave complex! . . . A. Carl and Lou walked to Freeburg and return. Farmerette! . . . We've something good from this month's "Vanity Fair": one-eyed men in Oklahoma are only charged half-price at motion-pictures . . . "Frankenstein" Eyer had his greatest triumph in Selinsgrove Hall, room of Gene Jerome . . . Eleanor likes a lovers' quarrel because it's so nice to make up . . . Bill Moore's Arm-Ache is the best looking blonde on the campus . . . Our prize of the week goes to Bill ("Bussling") Swann, who sends his ice-cream over to June . . . What with the warm winter we're having, State Police are inaugurating a drive to the finish against "necking" parties. Tak, tak! . . . Luke's "cat-calls" to Virginia are being very successfully imitated these days. I wonder if her leaving this semester can be really a gesture to him? . . . You know, Jay made quite a hit with Hazleton waitresses; but Marthee and Hanna were the boys to "date" them. (No wonder we lost!) . . . Though he prefers "V" words in his list of the most beautiful English words, Governor Morris has included Susquehanna among them . . . Incidentally, we now have six black or blood-shot eyes among us, including Stauffer (who got to him from standing on his head) . . . That's all I have just now . . . And so to bed!

Faithfully,

Your Co-respondent.

P. S. Pending fire, famine, earthquake, or terrific mid-years, Frosh girls have pretty well decided where they're going. I'm listing below a few that we all know. You'll notice that S. A. I. isn't included, because aside students are practically compelled to join that sorority. You won't find that statement in the Hand Book or Catalogue. But the poor things aren't given a chance otherwise!

Here they are:

K. D. P. Williamson, Stetzer, Weaver, and Sharpneck.
S. S. D. Appleth, Parry, Olshesky.
O. D. S. Smith, Bock, Kilgore, Long, Pritchard.

Don't be discouraged, Selbertarians! In some parts of France, the mothers escort their daughters to the dance, wait for them there, and then chaperone them home when it is over . . . But who said anything about Paris?

"What have you done," St. Peter asked, "That I should admit you here?"
 "I ran the paper," the editor said,
 "Of my college for one year."

St. Peter piously shook his head
 And gravely touched a bell;
 "Come in, poor thing, and select your harp."
 "You've had your share of hell,"
 Brooklyn Polytech "Reporter"

The First Paragraph from Four Letters

Sweetest Ann,
 The radio is humming its tunes and I'm sitting here in solitude wishing that paper could contain my thoughts of the hours we spent together . . . Do you remember the night we went on a "Cruise to Nowhere" with the Junior League? The orchestra now reminds me of the Harlem band we had that night . . . and before the dance we had a buffet supper, which the river air made us wolf, so that the fish got very few morsels . . . And after that—on deck—it was very cool; I borrowed an overcoat and wrapped you in it, and we huddled very close together . . . There was no moon and just a few stars, but we didn't mind . . . We forgot that somewhere the crowd was dancing and remembered that our hearts were pounding out a melody of their own . . . But now I'm all alone, just thinking of you!

Jane darling,
 I'm sitting by the radio thinking of you while the rain beats an endless, chaotic tattoo on my windows . . . The place is all dark, except for the soft glow of the radio dial . . . And I'm thinking of the nights we spent together when that was our only light, with a pony of Napoleon beside us and the low lounge beneath us . . . And I felt your warmth . . . It's all so vivid that once more I'm near paradise—but then, my dear, you're a hundred miles away and I'm a million miles from paradise.

Dear Marthe,
 I'm here without anybody, since my pals just left. Can't help thinking of you, because this radio singer is wailing all about love and such things . . . I'm thinking about that last night we spent in Pop's barn, when the air was all filled with the sweet-smelling hay and down below a hen was clucking . . . But I didn't really hear those things then, because you were so close that I could get into my ears was your heart beating and your breath and the coming light of show. We could see the moon through a crack in the roof; then suddenly a horse whinnied. But gosh darn there's nothing more I can say in a letter, except that there was never nothing like it before. And I'll remember you . . . and the barn . . . and the hay that stuck in my ear but smelled good . . . and the faint smell of manure and the moon peeping through the roof.

Dearest "Bunny,"
 A blues singer is moaning over my side and so I cannot help remembering that night in the Club Michael, when the other couple had gone and I first kissed you. The orchestra played on, the dancers danced on, and I was thankful for soft lights and sweet music . . . Then we rode home in the rumble seat; it was a little rough when we hit a bounce but we laughed about it. I can always remember the wind-tousled hair, the white teeth, shining eyes, and alluring lips of your self beside me . . . There wasn't much more we could ask, but we didn't know it. Why do people bother about conventions anyway? They've killed more romances than dogging grandmothers. Aw, nuts! There's Amos 'n' Andy on just when I was thinking most vividly about you.

Campus Clippings from Other Colleges
 Since Cooper Union lost every football game and did not score a single point on their opponents, students are demanding that the sport be dropped.

A freshman at Asbury College mistook the president of the institution for a classmate the night of the frosh party and, slapping him on the back so that his teeth rattled, cried: "I'll be seeing you."

From Stevens Tech comes this splendid definition of basketball: "It combines the finer points of wrestling, polo, soccer, football, hurdling, and a touch of hari-kari."

Pity this poor freshman at Delaware University! He took a military exam on the subject of the telephone the other day and ended with: "I do not know very much about telephones. For I expected an exam on the life." As a matter of fact, he mistook the room number and thus took the wrong exam.

Picture of any S. U. student these days and nights.

Discussion of Higher Education

In time of depression, said former Secretary Newton Baker, the question whether any substantial part of the money spent in higher education is "socially wasted" is likely to get frank consideration. The values have to be weighed against an increased and increasing economic sacrifice. There has been generally a decrease in numbers ranging from less than 1 per cent to 10 per cent or more, but this is not commensurate with the decline in other fields of interest and activity.

While some students in upper college classes, or ending their undergraduate courses, have continued their studies because of lack of opportunities in business or the professions, there are clear indications that the numbers have been kept at a high level rather by the persistence of those who are craving an education than by the difficulty of finding employment in gainful occupations. The "heroic expedients" to which many have resorted in order to begin or continue their studies revive the spirit of the early American college or recall the university life in Middle Ages when the students "joyfully braved privation, poverty and the irksomeness of mental service in order that they might penetrate at last into the sanctuary of knowledge."

What was said of students in the University of Paris might almost be said now of those in all our universities and colleges: "There were nobles there and there were plebeians, there were no rich men." In this state of things there is great promise. Higher education is not a "luxury expenditure" in a democracy. That young men and young women are willing and eager to undergo its severe disciplines and endure privation in order to make the most of their personal endowments and fit themselves to "make their weight felt in the determination of public problems" is the healthiest of signs in this time of adversity.

POET'S CORNER

Thoughts Without Price
The poet sat, gazing in silence
With eyes filled with hopeless despair;
His mouth was held twisted with violence
And blood laid in drops clinging there.

His hand clenched holding some pages;
He scarce seems to know what they are;
Now they are gone, lost to the ages
As smoke forms in clouds near the chair.

Those pages had held a creation,
His first with a char mover gold,
A tale of love, sweet in narration,
But meaning too much to be sold.

Writing In Ink
Why must I write a poem in ink?
It seems such an odd, little whim,
But yet when I take a pencil, I think
Of gardens with hedges to trim.

Or maybe I see a spot on my sleeve,
The last of our neatly-spread lunch,
But not when I look again, I believe
I've kept just a bit of the punch.

And now do you wonder pens are my Joy,
And pencils the object of hate;
The one I'll defend as Hektor did Troy,
The other abandon to fate.

Not Up To Date

The commercial traveler had been obliged to remain in a small town for the night on account of the effects of a heavy rainstorm on the railway.

At breakfast the next morning the storm still raged. As the waitress came from the kitchen bearing his order the traveler turned on her and remarked:

"What a terrible storm! It certainly looks like the flood."

"The what?"

"The flood. You've read of the flood and the ark landing on Mount Ararat, surely."

"No, mister," returned the waitress.

"I haven't seen a paper for three days."

Antonyms

The class in English was reciting. "What is the opposite of sorrow?" asked the teacher.

"Joy," answered the lad.

"And the opposite of misery?" pursued the teacher.

"Happiness," said the pupil.

"And what is the opposite of woe?" was the next question.

"Giddap!" was the quick response.

The new maid, fresh from the country, was receiving her first assignment. "Among other purchases you will need to get a griller for the kitchen," said the butler. "Oh, no!" exclaimed the girl. "Not one of those things." "Do you happen to know what a griller is?" the butler asked, politely. "I certainly do," retorted the maid. "It's one of those big monkeys they have at the zoo. And if you're going to have one of them in the kitchen, I'm leaving—now."

An English party holidaying in Switzerland decided to crown their vacation by the ascent of a very mild peak in the vicinity of their hotel. The climb was no more than a strenuous walk, a guide was engaged, and when the party assembled it was observed that one of them carried a totally unnecessary rope.

The Swiss, nodding gravely toward the rope, inquired politely: "M'sieu practices skeeping—yes?"

"So It Seems"

Dudley: "So your wife goes South every winter?"

Swank: "Yes, she loves to spend the winter in the rotogravure sections."

Noted Lutherans Will Address Fourteenth Annual Convention of Seventy-Five Colleges on Our Campus Next Week

The Fourteenth Annual Conference in the North Atlantic Region of the Lutheran Student Association of America will be held on the campus of Susquehanna University on February 17, 18, and 19.

Over seventy-five colleges and universities are planning on having representatives at the conference. Conference officials predict an attendance of over one hundred delegates.

The conference provides an opportunity for association and friendship between Lutheran students representing many types of campuses in the New England and Middle Atlantic States and will also bring the representatives in close contact with some of the leading Lutheran educators.

A few of the speakers included in the program are Dr. G. Morris Smith, president of Susquehanna University; Miss Naomi K. Hade, Dean of Women, Susquehanna University; Dr. W. C. Schaefer, Jr., pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Allentown; Dr. Mary E. Markey and Miss Mildred E. Winston, both of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church, and Mr. Charles Cooper, Student, Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia.

Nine Frosh Rushed At New Night Club

Omega Delta Sigma Activities Held Novel Party at Griffin Night Club. Treated to Floor Show

Omega Delta Sigma sorority held its Annual Rush party on Friday evening, January 20, at eight o'clock in the Social Room and Sorority Room in Seibert Hall. The sorority treated nine freshmen when they entertained nine new girls at their "Griffin Night Club."

Each new girl had an escort who first took her to the sorority room for a general "get-together" and some preliminary dancing. They were later conducted to the Social room, where a light was presented to their eyes. The room was decorated in the sorority colors, orange and grey; balloons and various ornaments hung from the ceiling. Each girl was given a Griffin program on which was printed a number of selected dances.

Miss Virginia Andrews was the beautiful and clever hostess of the night. Miss Mary Eltringham was the cigarette girl, and was very alluring in her black velvet pajamas.

Entertainment was provided first by the O. D. S. quartette composed of President Aberdeen Phillips, Ruth Resse, Frances Marks and Daisy Reese. The girls were then delightfully entertained by a tap dance done in costume by Ruth Plummer and Daisy Reese. Mary Patterson and Frances Marks were quite amusing in their interpretation of an Apache dance.

Miss Marjorie Phillips and Miss Lucille Smith, both Alumnae of the sorority attended the party. Miss Phillips played a number of piano selections and sang a few numbers which were received very enthusiastically by the girls.

During the entire evening champagne(?) was served and the girls chose anything they wished on the menu and it was immediately brought to them. At ten thirty the Club was closed, and the new girls were escorted to their rooms, reluctantly leaving the club and sorority room.

Seven New Students in Semester Enrollment

Seven new students are on Susquehanna's campus, having enrolled for the second semester during registration week. The three newcomers who will pursue the regular college course are Miss Grace Kropf, of West Hazleton; Miss Katherine Weber, of Camden, N. J., and Frank Shaulinski, of Piquette.

Miss Grace Drew, of Jenkintown, and Victor Marietta, of Shamokin, entered the Conservatory of Music department. Mrs. Daisy Banks, of Shamokin, and Frank Ake, of Sunbury, are taking special courses at the university.

Dr. Smith Named on State Relief Board

Recent Propagandistic Measures Cause Appointment of Thirteen Directors For State Wide Welfare Work

Dr. G. Morris Smith was recently named on the Emergency Relief Board of this state. At the same time twelve other men and women also received commissions in this state-wide welfare work. Of this number five are salaried officials and the other nine are non-salaried directors.

These appointments followed a desperate effort on the part of propagandistic groups to halt the establishment of commissaries for the distribution of relief. The State Emergency Board condemned this effort as "manufactured propaganda." These opposing parties went as far as to publish circulars that were grossly untrue in every major issue. The groups were sufficiently coercive and they left these libelous pamphlets unsigned.

The appointments are as follows: The paid directors and their salaries:—Edward Byers, Scranton, $3,300; Janet C. Moore, Haverford, $2,500; Mrs. Frances M. Patterson, Millers-ton, $1,500; J. M. Halderman, Thompson-ton, $1,200; and Alfred Goodfellow, Coatesville, $1,200. The non-salaried directors are: Dorothy Kahn, Philadelphia; Dr. G. Morris Smith, Selingsgrove; Samuel P. Clancy, Pitts-burgh; H. A. Leitziell, State College; Mrs. Elizabeth Chayne, Media; Adrian Collins, Erie; Paul M. Keane, Greens-boro; Roy C. Chase, Allentown, and Harold Wright, Wilkes-Barre.

The wide effect of this campaign is shown by the appointments which are made in every portion of the state. Governor Pinchot was authorized to from and appoint a board of directors for the building of thrift gardens for unemployed persons. Every effort is being put forth by the state to ease the crisis which is upon us.

S'squehanna Sportsmen Speak at Montgomery

On January 19, Coach William Ul-tery and Prof. Luther D. Grossman, director of athletic activities at Susquehanna University, together with some of the members of the undefeated football team, were guests at a banquet in honor of the Montgomery football team at Montgomery. Duplicating the feat of the Susquehanna gridmen, they also came through the 1932 football season without a defeat.

Short talks were given by Coach Ul-tery and Prof. Grossman. Ted Hutch-ison's Crusaders furnished music for the occasion.

The members of the football squad who attended the banquet were John Extrom, captain of the 1932 Crusader team; Lee Rihel, captain-elect; Johnny Meyers and Bob Sassaman.

Fraternity Smokers Feature Rush Week

Secret Organizations Sponsor Period of Entertainment for Frosh Prior to Silent Period and Pledging

Active rush week began among the fraternities on the campus yesterday, with the Bond and Key Club holding the first smoker at the fraternity home last evening.

The smokers will continue throughout this week, which is designated as rush week for the non-fraternity men, followed by the silent period next week. Phi Mu Delta will entertain the new students at their home tonight, while tomorrow night the scene of activity will shift to the Epilepsy Sigma House, and on Thursday evening the finale of the smokers will be celebrated at the home of Phi Lambda Theta.

The silent period, during which—according to the by-laws of the Inter-Fraternity Council—"no fraternity matters shall be discussed between a fraternity and a non-fraternity man," will begin on Sunday at midnight and continue until Wednesday at noon.

Three S. U. Students Survive Auto Crash

Members of "Crusaders" Orchestra Escape Injury in Accident Near Mount Carmel

Three Susquehanna students, members of the "Crusaders" orchestra, escaped injury recently when the car in which they were riding was forced off the road against a culvert near Mount Carmel.

Ted Hutchison was driving back to Selingsgrove with Richard Shade and Fred Billman when the accident occurred. Shade was hurled from the car following the impact, but alighted without injury.

A parked car was the indirect cause of the accident, Hutchison swinging hard to avoid impact with an oncoming third machine, but too late to avoid being struck towards the rear end of his car. The running board, rear wheel, and fenders on one side, and also the windshield were smashed on Hutchison's car, a Plymouth.

The student's car was towed to a Mount Carmel garage for repairs. It was revealed that Hutchison carried public liability, but no insurance to cover damages to his own car, while the owner of the other car carried insurance for his own vehicle, but none to cover damages suffered by Hutchison's car.

Previous to the accident, the students had completed an orchestra engagement in Mount Carmel, and were on their way back to Susquehanna.

Reverend Crusaders Register First Win

Initial Court Victory Over Haverford Follows Close Losses to Bucknell and Lebanon Valley

The Crusaders won one out of their last three games by defeating Haverford College 37 to 35 and losing hard fought contests to Bucknell by 31 to 30 count and to La Salle with a score of 36 to 29.

Bucknell 31, Susquehanna 30
The Orange and Maroon met the Bucknell Bisons in the Alumni Gymnasium and the game was a thriller from start to finish and the first visiting five won the decision only in the last minutes of play with a desperate rally. The Crusaders were forced to take defeat after they had played the most brilliant basketball this season.

Bucknell opened fast with a quick breaking offensive and was leading in the early stage of the struggle by a sizable score. The Orange and Maroon steadied down to stiff defense work during the remainder of the period to check the Blue and Gold attack. With Walter Waslewski leading the scoring, the Crusaders came back strong but were unable to cut off the lead. With the score standing 16-11 at half time, the Crusaders resumed their attack where they left off to tie up the battle mid-way in the second half.

Both teams played fast basketball in the waning minutes of play in the nip and tuck fray with each team leading for a short time. Susquehanna held a point lead with seconds to go, but James caged a successful goal from the field which gave the Bisons the winning margin.

William, flashy Bucknell forward, led the scoring for the game with ten points while James was close behind his teammate with nine counters. Walter Waslewski led the Crusaders with three goals from the field and one charity throw.

On the trip to Philadelphia they met La Salle College the first night and the Orange and Maroon were forced to take the short end of a 36 to 29 score. The La Salle outfit was working a little too swiftly for the Crusaders who were minus three varsity men.

The Conley coached-five had annexed five consecutive victories prior to the Crusader contest, but the Orange and Maroon pressed them hard to win.

Bruce Worthington, who was promoted from the ranks of the J. V.'s, captured high scoring honors for the tiff with three field goals and three free throws.

FROSH AND ACTIVITIES

With the end of active rushing taking place within the next week, you freshmen will have your first real opportunity to select the extra-curricular activities in which you will want to participate during the remainder of your college days.

At the present time, you freshmen are filled with activity complexes, because each fraternity has told you of its activity men; each sorority has landed its activity women.

Everyone is agreed that certain extra-curricular activities are necessary in a well-balanced college program, but there is such a thing as over-emphasizing the out-of-classroom projects. If a freshman has the talent and the extra time and is interested in a special outside activity, it is his duty to his college and fraternity to enter this particular phase of the collegiate world. On the other hand, if a freshman is having a tough time with his classroom assignments, it is absolute folly for him to engage in the outside affairs.

Extra-curricular activities aid in the development of a freshman's personality, also his initiative and his originality, besides giving him a wonderful training and background. But they prove harmful to the freshman who attempts to carry them when he really does not have the time and the ability.

A recent editorial in the Lehigh "Brown and White" brings out this stand clearly:

"More and more the fraternities are realizing that they are only hurting themselves by pushing doubtful men into activities. More and more they are realizing that an activity man who flunks out at the end of his freshman or sophomore year is of little benefit to the house; a four-year student a vastly better asset."

"It is only a second-rate fraternity which now tells its freshmen team; that they must go out for some team; that they must take in some activity."

"Fortunately, there are few freshmen who cannot spare the time for some worthwhile, outside interest. And any student who can spare the time and still does not take advantage of his opportunity, is missing a valuable part of his college life."

"For extra-curricular activities—putting aside the argumentative value of training in leadership and congeniality which they are supposed to afford—provide an added incentive and interest toward remaining in college. And an interested student is usually a happy one who enjoys as well as benefits from his college life."

"If for no other reason than the mere enjoyment derived, go out for some activity if you can possibly afford the time. Start to live as well as learn at college."

EDUCATION DEFIES DEPRESSION

Old Man Depression does not seem to be making much headway against higher institutions of learning, as far as the colleges and universities of Pennsylvania are concerned.

According to enrollment figures compiled by the State Department of Public Instruction for the semester just passed, thirty institutions have dropped in enrollment of full time students, but twenty-one have shown gains while three report no change.

Last year there were 50,960 students attending accredited colleges in the state, and this year the figures show 50,103 students, a number which is certainly a negligible decrease in comparison with other depression statistics.

Susquehanna is listed as one of the institutions to suffer a slight loss in enrollment of full time students.

It seems that a certain Phi Mu misplaced his car one evening while the double . . . Dorsett's delight is Marks (Heh, heh, Frances) . . . Eric Madriguer, a cousin of the exiled king of Spain, is now an orchestra leader in N.Y. . . . The Benardi-Bosinski couplepoint has again become close harmony . . . Those diners a deus for A. Room numbers in Hassinger were quite generally changed one night. Tsk, tsk, Art! . . .

Susquehanna . . . where the corn-fields are bleak, fraternity coffers are bare and the chaperones are always informal!

Wonder if it's true? . . . That Millie has Grace Allen's brother locked up in the Bursar's safe! . . . What amuses us is how her . . . Fisk Stocking Scudder and wife are jig-saw puzzle fans. They sometimes spend five hours on a single puzzle! . . . Our athlete-minded "Baby" was somewhat at loss before the dance when two of her basketball "dates" suddenly had to depart on the Phila. week-end trip. Her final "date" was blind . . . Dr. William M. Reearick, Millburg clergyman and president of the University board of directors, has SU on his automobile license tag this year . . . Martin and "Varsity Jack" are triangle-free for Mary Renner's sake, but the former is also Heart-Throbbing with Alma, so it isn't a fair race.

Madame Tallien, a famous French beauty of Napoleon's era, always bathed her skin in a mixture of crushed strawberries and asplashed . . . The Y. W. bell rang at Club Seibertarians to meeting (it seems they had to do something about attendance) Clad in bathrobe and with a towel over one shoulder, Frodo Ruth rushed down the hall . . . She was disappointed to learn that it wasn't a fire-drill . . . Don't forget the Phi Mu Delta Night Club this evening . . . We notice a distinct change of atmosphere since "Fuzzy-Wuzzy" was reduced to the ranks . . . "Canary" Sterling, in new-girl Grace's opinion, looks, talks, walks, and feels like a boy at home (Jenkintown) . . . Bill ("Son-Daughter") Royer is springing-low in the Seibert parlours . . . Congrats to our two mid-year graduates: Bert Green for his A. B. and Joe Schmidt for his B. S. . . . Hutter will learn with interest that Reuter is sending "shoulder pads" to Phila. . . . Question: What is the sentimental message that Stan tattooed on Freda's arm? . . . Dick Crankshaw now wires to Kingston for his "dates".

The most diverting story we've heard this year concerns a frolesome Frosh who said he was in Miss Hade's eight o'clock class. He called this esteemed prof one evening and asked for the next day's assignment. Miss Hade very obligingly went to make sure what it was, looked high and low but couldn't find it. Finally, she came back and confessed as much. "Well," said the voice over the phone, "that's all right. I wasn't going to do it, anyway."

Bible Value Discussed At Weekly Y. W. Meet

Alfarata Stamets was in charge of the Y. W. meeting on February 2 which was held in the social room. Her topic was "What Can The Bible Do For Me?" Herbert Hoover once said, "The study of the Bible is a post-graduate course in the richest library of human experience." There are many things that make the Bible so very valuable to mankind. From it we receive the Ten Commandments, the laws whereby we are able to guide our civil, religious and personal lives. We have been given a living example in Christ for the everyday conduct of our lives. Within the pages of the Bible are found words to cheer those who grieve. It gives us a promise of a life hereafter if we live as Christ would have us live. We learn from it that unselfishness is the Key to Happiness. The lessons of Humility and Patience are ones we all need to profit by. "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." This four-fold verse is the key to a well-rounded life. To be truly successful we must not neglect anyone of these lines of development. The songs "Sing Them Over Again To Me" and "O Word of God Incarnate" were sung. Josephine Pifer sang a solo. The meeting closed with "I Love To Tell The Story" and the Mizpah Benediction.

Crusaders Will Resume Court Schedule Friday, Meeting Elizabethtown

The Orange and Maroon basketball team will resume activities this Friday night when they meet the Elizabethtown College five in the Alumni Gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

Coch Ullery has been sending his men through stiff practices this past week and the Crusaders hope to register their second victory on Friday night. The Elizabethtown team has been defeated at the hands of Susquehanna four times in the past two years. Two years ago the Crusaders were victorious by a 31 to 21 count in the opening game of the season and again by a score of 40 to 38 at the end of the season. Last year they met in mid-season and the Orange and Maroon won by a score of 40 to 22 on the first occasion and won by a 39 to 25 count the following week.

POET'S CORNER

IN BYE-GONE DAYS

In bye-gone days, when rotaries
In loving pairs strolled o'er the leas,
And worshipping the moon, beguiled
The evening hours, I smiled and smiled
At all their foolish ecstasies
I knew the moon was but a cheese,

A large green cheese hung up to tease
My hunger. Ah! I was a child
In bye-gone days.
But I grew older—that disease,
Which takes mankind, came by degrees
Upon me. Lo, I'm reconciled,
And stroll like those I once reviled.
Ah yes! I knew all mysteries
In bye-gone days.
—William Evans.

Susquehanna 37, Haverford 35

The Crusaders came back the following night to finally end their losing streak, which had reached six straight, when a rejuvenated Orange and Maroon quintet took a 37 to 35 decision from Haverford College.

Good floor work on the part of the Ullerymen featured in the game while they held a comfortable lead throughout the fray. John Naegell, flashy forward for the Crusaders, had an on-night and led the attack with ten pointers.

Susquehanna held a twelve point margin until the last few minutes of play when the star guard from Haverford, Captain Scarborough, broke loose and dropped four perfect shots from mid-floor. The Crusaders made their foul shots count, sinking nine out of a possible eleven free throws.

FRESHMEN FALL PREY TO RUSH WEEK AS FRATERNITIES CONDUCT SMOKERS

Greek Letter Organizations Keep Yearlings Busy During Rotation of Entertainment Preceding Silent Week

Lady Nicotine's Carnival began on Monday and ended late Thursday evening of last week as the four fraternities on the campus held their annual smokers with freshmen and other new students as guests. Numerous cuts and weak recitations may well be attributed to the spell of fumes of tobacco cast over Susquehanna's yearlings.

On Monday evening, the Bond and Key Club opened the festivities, where a number of alumni and guests invited in addition to the new students were present. In the Sassaman, '31, assumed the role of toastmaster, alternating addresses and impromptu speeches with entertainment provided by the Key-Stone Quartet from Williamsport. J. Donald Steele, president of the fraternity, made a short address of welcome, following which various faculty members and alumni spoke. Among those present were Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, Reverend Sassaman, Dr. Augustus William Ahl, Professor E. Edwin Sheldon, Dr. Charles Leese, Dr. Paul J. Orrebo, Professor Frank W. Souder, Dr. Paul Boeder, Professor Donald W. Hemphill; alumni included Mr. Sassaman, Robert Harman, Jim Maneval, Clyde Mahaffey and James Brubaker.

Phi Mu Delta entertained in "Night Club" fashion on Tuesday evening, with the familiar figure of Luke Rhoads in the capacity of master of ceremonies. A Hawaiian quartet from Shenandoah entertained as guest artists, rendering some interesting numbers on their guitars. Dr. Arthur Herman Wilson contributed a few words on fraternity life. Musical numbers were offered by Professor Elrose L. Allison and Dr. Leon M. Messner of Selingsgrove on the piano, and vocal selections by Professor Frederick C. Stevens. Additional entertainment was contributed by members of the University in various "scenes." Guests not already mentioned who attended, included Dr. George F. Dunkelberger, Professor Thomas C. Houtz, Dr. Herbert Allison, Dr. Paul Boeder, Prof. George N. Wood, Professor Edwin M. Brungart, and Dr. Howard F. Straub of Selingsgrove.

Wednesday evening found the haze of tobacco smoke pervading the halls of the Epsilon Sigma House, marking the third evening of such entertainment. Dr. George F. Dunkelberger was the principal speaker of the evening, addressing the group on "Fellowship." He was introduced by Quinto Gionta, master of ceremonies. President Fred C. Ahl addressed the first year men with a few words of welcome. Other responses were alternated with music supplied by the Germania Band from Northumberland, following which refreshments and games were enjoyed until the hour of departure arrived.

Phi Lambda Theta concluded the week's program of rush smokers on Thursday evening at the fraternity home. Addresses were delivered here by Professor Eldon K. Rumberger, Dr. Russell W. Gilbert, and Professor D. (Concluded on Page 4)

Pledges Celebrate At Annual Dances

Dances Well Attended Despite Cold Weather; Many Alumnae Return For Formal Affair

Saturday evening, February 11, was a big dance night on the campus. The twenty-seven pledges of the four campus sororities were honored at two dances. The Inter-sorority group composed of Kappa Delta Phi, Sigma Alpha Iota, and Omega Delta Sigma held a combined pledge dance at the Alumni Gymnasium and the Sigma Delta Delta active entertained their pledges at the Bond and Key house. Both dances were largely attended by natives, pledges, alumnae, and guests.

At the Inter-sorority dance Ivan Plaux and his Pennsylvania Ramblers provided the necessary rhythm and were received with much enthusiasm for their slow numbers. The gym was decorated with the sorority furniture and lighting.

The faculty and guests were Dr. and Mrs. G. Morris Smith, Miss Naomi K. (Concluded on Page 4)

Noted Russian Here On Lecture Course

Maurice Hindus, Authoritative Russian Writer Will Speak on Star Course on Thursday, February 23

MAURICE G. HINDUS
Maurice Hindus, world-famed authority on Russian topics, will speak in Seibert Hall Chapel, Thursday evening, February 23rd, at 8:15, as the third number on the University Star Course.

For many years Hindus has been regarded as our leading authority on all subjects pertaining to Russia. He has written four books on this subject, entitled, "The Russian Peasant and the Revolution," "Broken Earth," "Humanity Uprooted," and his latest book, "Red Bread." His books are well regarded by the thinking men of America, such as H. G. Wells, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Professor John Dewey, and many others. He has had numerous articles published by such magazines as the Yale Review, Century, Outlook, Current History, Asia, and World's Work, which are among the leading periodicals of America.

Maurice Hindus was born in a Russian village, came to this country at the age of fourteen, and worked his way through Colgate and Harvard. He is one of America's thoughtful speakers, and has lectured in all parts of the United States and Canada. His lectures are based on personal experience and are dramatic interpretations of the land and the people. He has a keen sense of the dramatic, an excellent flow of wit, and above all is fair-minded. He does not try to prove Russian policies, but merely brings a picture of Russia as she exists now, a picture which he has gained at firsthand. His lecture subject will be "Russia and the World."

Sorority Pledges

Twenty-seven pledges, divided among the four campus sororities, were the result of a semester's rushing. It is interesting to note that last year an identical number of pledges were made. Following are the names of the Freshmen that each sorority pledged:

Board Holds Semi-Annual Meeting

Directors Discuss Depression Program; Three Board Members Died Since June Meeting

Hon. Charles Steele presided at the Mid-Year Board meeting on Monday evening, February 6, in the place of Dr. William A. Reark, who was ill at his home in Millburn.

The meeting time was taken up by short routine matters. The following members were present: Senator Benjamin Apple, of Sunbury; Mr. Frank A. Eyer, of Selingsgrove; Hon. Charles Steele, of Northumberland; Dr. R. L. Schroyer, of Selingsgrove; Reverend John Harkins, of State College; Dr. Claude G. Aikens, of State College; Dr. Thomas Reisch, of Harrisburg; Mr. J. P. Carpenter, of Sunbury; Mr. Roscoe C. North, of Selingsgrove; Reverend H. W. Miller, of Williamsport, and Dr. H. C. Michael, of Johnstown. President G. Morris Smith is also a member of the Board.

In his report to the Board, Dr. G. Morris Smith called attention to the fact that the Board had suffered three deaths since the June meeting. Sterling R. Decker, a member from Montgomery, met a tragic death at a railroad crossing near his home. Dr. H. C. Wicand, of Lancaster, died suddenly after a short illness. Mr. William A. Deisroth, of Hazleton, was buried the afternoon of the day that the Board met. President Smith also made a statement concerning the death of Mr. John C. Oberdorf on October 9. Mr. Oberdorf was the outstanding Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings and Purchasing Agent.

Reference was made to the helpful work that he had done. A committee was appointed by Senator Steele, presiding, to draw up suitable resolutions concerning these men.

The President's report referred to a plan of balancing the budget. He spoke of the necessity of making every effort to guarantee as large an enrollment as possible during these depression days. It is part of our constituency all along the line to help greatly in this matter by directing students to our campus. Further he showed that the liberal arts education is best adapted to our age, as the person with fundamental training is more likely to adapt himself to the changing circumstances of our age with happiness and helpfulness to all.

Walter Foulkrod '31 Addresses Students

Popular Alumnaus of Susquehanna Conducts Chapel Exercises on Brief Return to Campus

S. Walter Foulkrod, '31, returned to the campus where he was once a most popular figure, conducting Chapel exercises and addressing the student body last Friday morning.

Mr. Foulkrod discussed the life of the college man or woman the "square life," with its four sides of physical, spiritual, mental, and social development. He stressed the social side as being the most important to the average student, as the college itself arranged for the other three. In developing the social growth of the individual, Mr. Foulkrod urged the students to take part in whatever activities to which they had access and in which they could afford the time.

Mr. Foulkrod is at present Grand President of the National Chapter of Phi Lambda Theta. While attending Susquehanna, he was captain of an undefeated debating team and president of Tau Kappa Alpha. In addition to being class president and holding several other positions of prominence on the campus.

At present Mr. Foulkrod is attending Temple Law School.

Getting off to a poor start, the Crusaders staged a second half onslaught, to completely outscore their opponents and to vanquish an Elizabethtown College cage aggregation in the Alumni Gymnasium on Friday night by a score of 38 to 25.

The Orange and Maroon took the lead early in the game when Naegeli converted a charity throw. From this time both teams slipped the ball through the net with clock-like regularity with Susquehanna holding the lead most of the time. With seconds to go in the first half, Bruce Worthington zipped the cords with a field goal to place Susquehanna in the fore by three points.

In the second half, Naegeli and Sassaman led an attack which increased their lead to thirteen points. The Crusaders were playing a great defensive game also as they held Elizabethtown without a single field goal during the first fifteen minutes of the final session. Coach Ullery sent in his reserves for the last five minutes of play and they held the visitors to four points.

Bruce Worthington and John Naegeli were tied for high scoring honors with twelve points apiece, as they displayed great offensive playing for the Orange and Maroon. Jerry Schegel was playing a great defensive game for the Crusaders at the pivot post as well as registering six markers. Captain Bob McGeehan played his usual defensive game as he broke up passes and shots while his running mate, Bob Sassaman was breaking into the scoring column with a total of eight tallies. Good, playing at a guard position for the visitors, led the offense for his men with ten counters, while Bucher was close behind with nine units.

Susquehanna Area Boy Scouts in Rally Meet

On Saturday evening, February 11, a very important meeting of the Susquehanna Area of Boy Scouts was held in Seibert Hall Chapel. Representatives from the entire area were there, including Selingsgrove, Lewisburg, Milton, Sunbury and Northumberland.

The objective of the meeting was to enlist churches and benevolent organizations in the scouting movement. This in turn will launch more scout troops, get more leaders, and fill the ranks. There are many boys in every district who are ready to enlist in scouting but the facilities are not available. For instance there are now three hundred boys in Sunbury of scout age who must await until sufficient facilities are prepared or them to join.

Each troop present at the meeting entertained with a stunt that was directly concerned with the phases of scouting. During the meeting the coveted President Hoover medal was awarded to the lucky scout that was so deserving.

NOTICE, SENIORS!
Seniors are requested to hand to the registrar's office before March 1, a slip on which is typed or printed their name and the degree for which they are a candidate in June.

WHICH FRATERNITY SHALL I JOIN?

The eleventh hour is at hand.

In a short time I must make a selection which will probably affect most the future of my life at Susquehanna. Will this choice later give me cause for regret, or will it be wise enough to place me with the group of men who are best fitted to my particular nature?

What must I consider in coming to a decision?

Should I give heed to various facts and figures of high pressure "salesmanship," to wordy promises and "baits," to a profuse display of last minute rushing? No. . . . for I am not joining a business organization, but choosing that body of men with whom I must live, work, and play for the rest of my college days. I am interested in their characters, not in their economic and political structure.

Furthermore, I am old enough to think things out for myself. I am not blind; I am able to see which men sincerely seek my friendship, and which appear merely to be angling for me as if I were a catch to be landed. I do not have to be told who likes me and who does not; I know with whom I enjoy myself most thoroughly.

Perhaps I should consult my closest friends who are also about to pledge themselves, and see if their opinions coincide with mine. After all, it is they with whom I shall associate during the greater part of my college career.

I trust that I shall make a happy selection.

IS THIS A COLLEGE MAN?

With college the high school boy usually steps into manhood, but apparently the males here present are so far retarded that they must ever continue their high school antics.

It is not a pretty individual that we find rampant in our dormitories. Here is a typical specimen: He is probably out of the teen age but he has not learned the value of being carefully and neatly dressed. As an amusement he damages school property and wrecks, steals, or destroys the personal belongings of his fellow students. In odd moments, he listens in on our telephone connections, interrupts them and proves his juvenility by his remarks. At other times he telephones the girls he is afraid to accost in person. During the meals when co-eds are present, he is silent, ill-at-ease, or boisterous; when the sexes are segregated, his table-manners drop to nullity. He is deemed quite a man when he makes as much noise as possible, violates the hospitality of his hosts, and prattles the English of the slums.

It is not a pretty individual we have here and he is not a fair representative of Susquehanna University, so we are certain that three years of college life will be enough to make a silk purse out of this sow's ear, but we doubt that anything can make this individual into a gentleman who is representative of Susquehanna.

ALUMNI NOTES

Theisinger-Saltzer Nuptial

Miss Mildred Theisinger of Harrisburg, graduate of Susquehanna University, recently became the bride of Frank R. Saltzer, of Pine Grove. The former Miss Theisinger had been a commercial teacher in the Butler high school until the time of her marriage.

Rip Garman Proud Daddy

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Garman are the proud parents of a baby boy. Mr. Garman, a graduate of Susquehanna University, is teaching and coaching in a New Jersey school, having taught formerly in Schuylkill Haven. His brother Alton, also a graduate of Susquehanna University, is teaching and coaching in Sunbury.

Rev. John Yoder Dies

Reverend John O. Yoder, D.D., a retired Lutheran minister, passed away at this home in Middleburg on January 30. Reverend Yoder is a graduate of Susquehanna University and of Muhlenberg College. He has served a number of churches, among them one in New Jersey, one in Maryland, and one he accepted a call to Akron, Ohio. He built up the congregation there from 200 to 2,000. He tore down the old church and built a new one, which is one of the finest in Akron. Reverend Yoder continued there until three years ago, when he retired from active service and moved to Middleburg. In accordance with a request made by Reverend Yoder, Dr. William M. Bearick, of Millburg, president of the Susquehanna Synod, and a classmate at Susquehanna University, officiated.

CAMPUSMANIA

Giving the low-down on the girl who sits beside you and the boy seen every day on campus. But don't tell them I told you!

"Sweet's to the sweet" on St. Valentine's day seems to be the favorite thought for love-sick Susquehanna swain. Among those whose chocolates will tickle the delectable palates of Seibert coming doves are: Stan Lipski, Harold Kramer, Senor Dockey, Fred Carl, John Schuffstall, Herb Hohman, Bruce Worthington, Saviour Abbott and Hughes Brinningford. Of course, not all of these Don Juans have their pals in Seibert but wherever they are—honest to John, it must be love!

To our credit or discredit, the first column Dr. Smith read in the "Susquehanna" (post office, last Tuesday morning) was Wenchell's heart-of-stone opus. . . . Bill and "Baby" are whispering Sugary Lies. . . . There are six Frosh fellows in the Con; six girls were pledged to S. A. I. . . . Ann calls Charles Mitchell her "Lamb's Lettuce" (What a lucky man!) . . . Now for a little tragedy: Abbie Phillips took B. and K. "Dictator Don" to the dance only because he thought "Cherry" wouldn't issue the call to arms, command to love, or what have you! . . . Sad-eyed "Cherry" kept it in the fraternity, however, by inviting "Rich" Fisher, but she thinks Abbie, just the same, is an old "smoothy". . . . An orchid to Marcela and Hutch for their joint rendition of "Dreams!". . . . Mabel and Kramer are arm-in-arming it. . . . Ditto for "Promiscuous" Daisee and Spielmeier. . . . While Lena and Roland continue their Eye-Gazing. . . . An orchid to K. D. P. for sending every pledge a corsage! . . . Of course, you noticed Earl with Rose Runk and that Marcela is being rushed by no less than the Phi Mu president. . . . But did you know that Rose refused to attend the previous dance because her "date" (Grossman) telephoned to ask what time he should call for her? . . . Dashed queer, these feminine critters! . . . Black-tipped finger-nails for Betty and "Baby" in a formal gown sans stockings. . . . Where does "Doc" Wilson secure his intimate knowledge of nite-cuddles? . . . The Seibert doves are going from jig-saw puzzles to German whist these days, while the love-torn are playing solitaire. . . . Well, well! Pete has sworn-off room-wrecking but poor Alexander is minus one box of "To My Valentine" candy. . . . "Canary Crooner" Wesley Drew his Valentine—and was he Gracie (crazy to you!) about it. . . . Note to our registrar: Prof-Spanish teacher-affair de coeur. We're not printing it but we wanted to tell you we knew. . . . Johnny Stauffer won "Pappy's" blanket (and it's a good blanket, too!) . . . Very amusing—I mean the fact that last year two Seniors evaded the super burglar-alarm system attached to the Seibert fire-escape and told Miss Hade about it this year. . . . Can't take it, eh! . . . Jo and Dave are listening to Soft Music—though the orchestra isn't playing anytime. . . . The Alton Martin twoome is in a Minor Key, after having written him a very sugary letter saying farewell to (his) arms. . . . The Phi Mu nite-cup featured profs covered with streamers and confetti and Prof. Boeder looking particularly hectic! . . . Idiosyncrasies: Peg Williams is afraid of the dark; June keeps Al waiting from one-half to a full hour but A. Carl objects to waiting seven minutes. . . . Incidentally, Ruth Helene likes chocolate-coated pretzels. . . . Price tells us that he enjoyed the dance—"Vos dere, Sharlie!" . . . Bill Caruth met Miss (Wrigley) Mint on a street-car in Wilkes-Barre, after she had favored the conductor with a brand new green-back. Bill had beenchut! . . . Aacrot to Lipski: the guy who borrows a nickle for street-concure from the blind-hearted motorist who practically drove him to his destination. . . . Prof. G. N. Wood, while in college, received 28 "A's", 30 "B's", and one "C". . . . We're reminding you that in the November 8 issue (Volume XXXIX, Number 12) we predicted KDP would be able to take without trouble any Frosh fellows it wanted—and it did! . . . "Baby" is just realizing how she failed to succeed with Al Hess. . . . Bill Sullivan was heard to ask a certain young lady what it was like to be in love. . . . Lucille Mae Lehman, have you discovered Wenchell's identity? . . . Imagine: Estelle Pearl buying her evening gown in Hop Bottom. . . . Susquehanna has quite an outlook on life: two cemeteries and an epileptic colony! . . . Helen Bartlow, alumna, is progressing nicely in a Phila. beauty contest for selection of Queen of the Chicago Exposition. . . . A call to O. B. S. for their rushing tactics. . . . "Varsity Jack's" heart warms between Miriam and Betty—two hi-school lasses while Jerry Schlegel rushes Madeleine Straub. . . . Of course, we can't forget the high-powered rush "Dictator Don" gives Elsie Bolig. . . . Glenn has joined another fire-company. . . . "Dink" Walsh is Neckromancing on Eighth Street. . . .

Ah! That's It

It was the first time Mr. and Mrs. Gaffer had been to a huge super-cinema. The magnificence of everything in the building made them gape in astonishment.

Above, in the roof, the whirring of an electric propeller for freshening the air, caught their ears.

"Whatever that, Henry?" she asked her husband.

Hubby looked thoughtful.

"Why, Mita," he said at last, "I know what it is. It's one of them 'film fans' you read so much about."

"Co-ed Etiquette" Topic for Y. W.

Y. W. meeting was under the leadership of Louise Mehring Thursday evening in the social room.

The subject brought up for discussion was "Co-Ed Etiquette." The scripture was taken from Matt. 7:1-5 and 23:11-12. A prayer followed and several songs.

Next to personal appearance a girl's etiquette is her most outstanding characteristic. Etiquette in a sense is a part of culture; some one said that true culture is knowing how to act like a Christian under any circumstance. A co-ed's etiquette is on parade in her own room, on the campus, in the class room, in the library, in the dining room, on the street, at a dance and at a tea.

In a game marked by many thrills, the undefeated Juniors proved their claim to the first half title by downing the previously undefeated Theologians by a score of 34 to 21.

Al Meyers led the attack of the Juniors with five buckets and a charity throw to cap scoring honors for the evening.

Sophis Trounce Theologians in Initial Game of Second Half

A team that can't be beaten, won't be beaten. That is what the Sophis said before the game, and the results prove their statement.

A determined Sophomore team with its best team on the floor fighting the entire way, were rewarded with victory by the close margin of 32 to 28.

Anderson and Dorsett led the Soph attack with 12 and 11 points respectively, while Rhoads, the star forward of the Theologians, again took scoring honors for his team with 11 pointers.

Lutheran Leader in Education on Campus

Dr. J. Gould Wickey, National Secretary of the Lutheran Education Board Addresses Students Here

Dr. J. Gould Wickey, National Secretary of the Board of Education in the United Lutheran Church, was a visitor at Susquehanna University last week, addressing the student body at the chapel exercises in Seibert Hall on Friday morning, and attending classes in philosophy during the day.

Dr. Wickey, who was formerly President of Carthage College in Illinois, spoke mainly of development of an individual in college, particularly that of the freshman as he enters and his ensuing progress. His theme "What Are You?" brought out the significance of a man's ability and character as seen in his life at college, where he is given a chance to prove his worth.

His sojourn at Susquehanna is part of a survey that Dr. Wickey is conducting among Lutheran Colleges of the United States. He is particularly interested in classes in philosophy, psychology, and education.

Three Games to Test Crusaders' Strength

Rejuvenated Courtmen Face Return Tilt With Lebanon Valley, Elizabethtown and Bucknell

Susquehanna University's knights of the wooden way will meet the cage combinations of three rival institutions in return encounters, which will be fought on foreign courts during the coming week.

The Crusaders will experience stiff opposition in their efforts to extend the two game winning streak which has been gained at the expense of Haverford and Elizabethtown College quintets.

On Thursday night, the cagers will attempt to avenge an early season defeat at Annapolis, which was sustained at the hands of a clever Lebanon Valley five in a hard-fought contest in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Elizabethtown will be met on Saturday night on the Chocolate Town court with pre-game dope favoring the Ulferymen to repeat their performance of last week, when the Crusaders staged a second half scoring spree to win by a 38 to 25 count.

Next Monday night, the Crusaders will journey to the up-country town of Lewisburg to engage a stalwart Bucknell Bison outfit on the Lewisburg High floor. The Bisons eked out one point victory in a colorful tilt over the Ulferymen several weeks ago. Nevertheless, the Orange and Maroon will be represented by a fighting, fast, hard-working team which will expend every ounce of power in an effort to win over their arch rivals.

New Preliminary Aggregation Scores Thrilling 37-36 Triumph Over Business College Team

Jay Vees of Susquehanna University put up a battle royal in the alumni gymnasium last Friday evening when they edged out the McCann Business College passers, 37 to 36.

With the score knotted at 35 to 35, Red Gray entered the game and tossed two points through the nets and the McCann quintet managed to count a charity throw before the final whistle.

Al Myer proved to be the whole show for the Junior Varsity five as he registered seventeen points. Johnson, flashy McCann forward, was leading scorer with twenty points.

Coach of Debating Announces Teams

Professor Russel W. Gilbert, coach of the varsity debating teams, has recently announced the following members of the two teams. The affirmative speakers are Alexander I. Youngerman, Henry Cassler, and Edwin Clapper. Mr. Youngerman and Mr. Cassler are newcomers to Susquehanna teams, but both have had previous experience. Edwin Clapper is a veteran of last year's platform battles.

The negative team is composed of Joseph Maimon, William Morrow and Harold Rowe. Mr. Rowe is the only new man on this team; the other two were in active service last year.

Both teams have been having intensive practice debates and are preparing for their first debates in the near future. The schedule is rather full and the negative team will have a trip into foreign territory.

Moundmen Start to Practice in Gym

Tossers of the horsehide who will probably represent S. U. on the mound in the Spring sports campaign, began their daily workouts in the gym last week.

Captain Hughes Brininger, Al Meyers, and Joe Maimon, veteran hurlers together with Jimmy Yaros, a promising prospect of the Freshman Class, will probably constitute the hurling corps.

26 COLLEGES ARE REPRESENTED AT STUDENT WEEK-END CONFERENCE

Over 75 Students Meet on Our Campus in Religious Event; Harold Rowe, Y.M.C.A. President, Acts as Chairman of Conference Committee

Over seventy-five students from twenty-six colleges and universities in the North Atlantic Region of the Lutheran Students' Association of America attended the annual Conference of this Association as guests of Susquehanna University last Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Conference was officially opened Friday evening with a banquet in Horton Dining Hall. Harold Rowe, chairman of the Conference Committee, and president of the Y. M. C. A. at Susquehanna, acted as toastmaster, introducing President G. Morris Smith, who gave the visitors a true Susquehanna welcome. Mr. John H. K. Miller, of the Mt. Airy Seminary, and president of the Association, gave a short response in behalf of the delegation. Following these short talks, Toastmaster Rowe introduced the various principals of the conference to the assembly.

After the group had adjourned from the scene of banqueting, they retired to the Selbert Hall Chapel, where further registration was made. Mr. Charles Cooper, student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Mt. Airy, led a short devotional service which prepared the group for the address of the evening.

The principal speaker of the conference was Dr. W. C. Schaeffer, pastor of the St. John's Lutheran Church at Allentown. Dr. Schaeffer's opening address was delivered following the devotional period. He spoke principally on the subject, "How my life can have an effect on the world's well-being." He pointed out the various problems confronting the true Christian man, namely: prayer and source of religion. Dr. Schaeffer said, "One must open his soul to God and then his word becomes true religion. If a person is truly religious he will know that the Redeemer lives, for here is there true fellowship with the unseen." According to Dr. Schaeffer, living is placing ourselves in line with the great redemptive powers. In closing his address, Dr. Schaeffer urged the importance of the Gospel according to John by saying (Concluded on Page 4)

S. U. Debates Open at Allentown Tonight

Affirmative Team Meets Muhlenberg Negative on War Debt Problem; Schedules Announced

Susquehanna University's debaters will open their season tonight when the affirmative team meets Muhlenberg at Allentown. The question for debate this season is, "Resolved that all inter-allied war debts and reparations should be cancelled." This question was chosen by the National Intercollegiate Debating Association.

Professor Russell Gilbert, director of forensic activities on Susquehanna's campus this year, has been revamping various lineups during the past few weeks and after a number of practice debates has definitely decided upon his varsity teams. The affirmative team, which will debate Muhlenberg at this evening, includes Alexander Youngerman, Henry Cassler and Edwin Clapper, and Paul Hartman, alternate.

The negative team will be composed of Joseph Malmon, Harold Rowe, and William Morrow, and Kenneth Anderson, alternate.

The affirmative team will meet the representatives of the Mansfield State Teachers College on the home platform on Friday evening, February 24.

Joseph Malmon, manager of the debating team, has announced the following schedule for the affirmative orators: March 9, Ursinus, away; March 10, Franklin and Marshall, away; March 23, Lebanon Valley, home; March 30, Bucknell, away, and April 5, Geneva, home.

The upholders of the negative side will participate against the affirmative debaters of the following institutions: March 2, Waynesburg, home; March 9, Ursinus, home; March 13, Albright, home; March 21, St. Francis, away; March 22, Geneva, away; March 30, Bucknell, home; and April 10, Muhlenberg, home.

The lists of the different fraternities is as follows:

Education Secretary Speaks at Chapel

Dr. Mary Markley Addresses Chapel, Assists in Solving Problems; Remains for Student Conclave

Dr. Mary Markley, one of the Secretaries of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church, spoke at the regular chapel service on Wednesday morning, February 15. Miss Markley has made several stops on our campus while fulfilling her duties and has been so interested in the progress of the University that she was recently elected to honorary membership in our alumni association.

She spoke on the conditions of education prevalent in Japan. During her short lecture she read excerpts from letters of Japanese students in Lutheran Colleges in Japan. Miss Markley equally well showed that the students in colleges and universities in the United States have many problems which tap the resources of the student. "Students everywhere are beginning to count the cost and some students fail because they haven't the power to pay." "Our problems," she continued, "will not be solved by economics and political science, but by spiritual contacts. Christianity can only be measured in terms of the men and women its produces." Finally she made the statement that Christianity needs saints! With this sentence she concluded her delightful speech.

DR. MARKLEY SPEAKS AT CAMPUS CLUB VALENTINE TEA

Mrs. E. Edwin Sheldon was hostess to the Campus Club on Wednesday, afternoon, February 15, from three to five o'clock. The occasion was a Valentine Tea, and decorations and refreshments were appropriate. Thirty women were present at the tea.

Dr. Mary Markley spoke very interestingly on the subject, "Northern and Southern India."

Those who assisted Mrs. Sheldon were: Mrs. Bertha Rodgers, Miss Mary Nesbit, Mrs. Percy Linebaugh, and Miss Mary Potteiger.

College Delegates Visit Alumni Clubs

Professor Luther D. Grossman and President G. Morris Smith Attend Alumni Banquets in West

Professor Luther D. Grossman, General Secretary of Susquehanna University's Alumni Association, returned recently from an extended visit among our alumni in the western part of the state. During the journey he attended district club meetings of the Alumni Association at Johnstown and Pittsburgh.

At the Johnstown meeting over fifty alumni braved a snow storm to attend the annual banquet. President G. Morris Smith was the guest speaker and Professor Grossman showed moving pictures of campus activities. Dr. Grossman returned from Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

The Crusaders lengthened their winning streak to four straight victories last week by noosing out Lebanon Valley by a one point margin, 38-37, on Thursday night at Lebanon and on Saturday night repeated their previous victory over the passers from Elizabethtown College by a 31 to 26 score.

Susquehanna 38, Lebanon Valley 37

Their win over Lebanon Valley broke up a jinx that had been existing on the basketball floor between the two schools for six years. In a last minute rally, Captain McGeehan and Hess performed in great style to give the Orange and Maroon their well-earned victory. The Crusaders were minus their lanky center, Schlegel, who sprained his ankle two nights previous in practice.

Naegeli and Captain McGeehan proved to be the mainstays in the Crusaders' attack, scoring twenty-seven points between them. Hess alternated at guard and center and contributed timely counters in the closing minutes of the game.

Naegeli's brilliant foul shooting, making nine out of thirteen free tosses, did much to keep his teammates in the running. Besides his work from the foul line, he swished the nets on four occasions from difficult angles and was a powerful factor in the Orange and Maroon attack. Captain McGeehan was second to Naegeli in tallying, as he counted five goals from the field, and was the driving factor in their last minute rally, with Hess scoring the winning goal.

The win over Lebanon Valley was sweet vengeance for the three straight defeats suffered at the hands of theville cagers at the rate of two for the last five years and also the loss that the Crusaders sustained earlier in the current season at the hands of "Hooks" Mylin's cagers.

Miss Allison Lectures to Y.W. on Cathedrals

Last Wednesday evening, Miss Evelyn Allison spoke to the Y. W. girls at their regular meeting on the subject "French Cathedrals."

Miss Allison stated that a cathedral is not different architecturally from any other church but it is built in a town where the seat of the bishop is located. The thought and the life of the people of the Middle Ages is reflected to a marked degree in their cathedrals. Cathedral building was a civic enterprise and towns vied with each other, each wishing to build the most beautiful cathedral.

She also remarked that the Gothic cathedrals in the region about Paris are the most famous of the French structures. "Like carved jewels they dot the surface of Northern France." Notre Dame of Paris, Amiens, Rheims, and Rouen are typical Gothic cathedrals.

THE THEFT OF HONOR

The fraternity rushing season no longer has a "Silence Period." The strategy of the present year has nullified it.

Although such a measure may indicate the decadence of honor among fraternities and although it may even strike at the very governing group, the Interfraternity Council must abolish the period of silence. Certain individuals by their mad scramble to take in the entire Freshman class, have already violated the meaning of the very name "frater." If thinking men are to retain their respect for the fraternity system, such thefts of honor must cease.

Henceforth, it is true, Freshmen will have little or no time to reflect on the wisdom of their course. They will not be given leisure calmly to make their choice; it will be made amid hectic rushing days of dinners, "smokers," and one-sided bull sessions. They will not find it fair, because while one is being entertained and reflect in an unprejudiced manner upon the relative merits of his hosts.

But, at least, a Freshman will not be presented with the spectacle of Susquehanna students breaking the code which is traditionally that of a gentleman. He will more likely retain his respect for the fraternity he joins. Lastly, fraternities who extend the privilege of membership to a man because of his merits and their own will not feel the sting of unfair competition.

The "knife in the back" is the accepted sign for the "double-cross." There must be no more the three knives of a three day "silence" period.

Let the Interfraternity Council face the facts. Unless its members act to mete out swift, unequivocal, and effective punishment to offenders, "silence" period and honor must be both abolished.

THE IDEAL COLLEGIAN

Rev. John A. Berens, dean of men at Marquette University and instructor and adviser of boys and young men for more than twenty years, lists ten cardinal virtues which go to make up the "ideal college man."

These requirements which any normal boy can meet are as follows:

1. He should have a strong ambition to succeed, together with the determination to overcome obstacles.
2. He should take part in the normal activities of extra-curricular affairs, but without excess in them.
3. He should possess qualities of leadership, but this does not imply that he must be a class officer or hold office in campus organizations.
4. He may do outside work if he must, but it is better to save money for one or two years after preparatory school, and then enter college.
5. As to character, he must possess the qualities of honesty, uprightness, courage and fidelity.
6. He must be temperate.
7. Inasmuch as the countenance reflects the quality of the soul, he must give an outward appearance of pleasantness. He need not be good looking or a Beau Brummel.
8. He must be neat in appearance and in habits.
9. He must be mature. A boy who appears immature at the age of 18 should delay entering college. A year or two of work would bring him into contact with the difficulties of life; he would learn the value of money and develop a better outlook on education.
10. He must conduct himself in such a manner as will give evidence of a sincere, Christian gentleman.

Crusaders Expect Hard Games at West Chester and Delaware This Week

The Crusaders will meet stiff competition this week-end when they tangle with West Chester State Teachers College on Friday night and then continue their journey to meet the University of Delaware on Saturday night.

Last year, West Chester boasted of a fast clicking combination which captured the championship of the State Teacher Colleges and are playing a high type of basketball this season. The Orange and Maroon quintet will have to work hard in order to win the encounters. However, the probable return of Jerry Schlegel to the line up will strengthen Coach Bill Ullery's passers.

The tilt with Delaware according to pre-game dope will be a battle from start to finish since the Peach State lead created the Orange and Maroon last season by a score of 40 to 28. The Crusaders have not met the cagers from Dover thus far but the Ullery-men are expecting a stiff encounter.

Lutherans Lead in Religious Census

Catholics Second by Margin of Five With Methodist Ranking Third 46 Percent of Students Are Lutheran

The Lutheran students at Susquehanna lead in the total number by a wide margin, according to the results of the religious census which were released by the registrar's office for the first semester, and which show the number of students members of the different religious denominations.

Although Susquehanna is a Lutheran school, only about 46 per cent of the students enrolled are registered as Lutherans and fourteen other denominations are represented in the remaining 54 per cent of the student body.

Among the non-Lutherans, the Catholic church ranks first with thirty-four Susquehanna students. The Methodist Church is second with twenty-nine members and the Presbyterian follows closely with twenty-six.

Six students are Hebrews, five are Baptists, and two belong to the Congregational church. The list also includes students who are members of the Reformed, Evangelical, Episcopal, and United Brethren churches. The Church of God, Salvation Army, Christian Church, and Friends are denominations having a single member on the campus.

The religious classification of the students enrolled exclusive of extension, seminary, and special students, is as follows:

Lutherans	128
Catholic	34
Methodists	29
Presbyterians	26
Reformed	20
Evangelical	12
Episcopal	10
Hebrew	6
United Brethren	5

Crusaders Succumb To Bucknell Five

Four Game Winning "Streak" Snapped When MacKenzie Tabs Twelve Points in Closing Minutes of Play

After leading at the end of the first half by a score of 17 to 14, the Crusaders bowed to the powerful Bucknell "Bisons" by the score of 55-35. During the last five minutes of play MacKenzie, flashy Bucknell forward, broke loose to score twelve counters in the seasons second clash which was played at Lewising last night.

Naegeil scored first for Susquehanna early in the opening minutes when he took the ball from a Bucknell guard directly under the goal and stepped out to sink the shot. The Bison's pivot man immediately tied the score at 2-2 by swishing the net on a side stab. For the remainder of the half the play was fast and close with the Orange and Maroon in the lead throughout by one or two points. Hess and Naegeil contributed a majority of the points to the Susquehanna attack in the first half, while the guards were playing a stellar defensive game.

Bucknell's spectacular rally at the beginning of the second half was almost nullified as the Crusaders trailed by a score of 37 to 35 with only five minutes left to play. Bucknell then broke loose and led by MacKenzie and Gilleland rolled up a total of 18 points on remarkable one-handed shots. The Crusaders were unable to combat the powerful offensive which was used by the Bisons in the closing minutes, being tired and worn by the furious battle. "Bob" Sassaman and Bruce Worthington featured for the Orange and Maroon in the second half with Worthington zipping the strings on three successive occasions, from the center of the floor. Besides brilliant second half guarding by Sassaman, he led his teammates in scoring with a total of nine pointers on four field goals and one free throw. Hess and Bruce Worthington were tied for second honors with eight markers apiece.

MacKenzie captured high scoring honors for the game with a total of eighteen points which were all tallied in the second half. James and Gilleland were tied for second place with twelve counters.

Statistician Finds Dads Busily Engaged

Fathers of "Joe College" and "Betty Coed" Are Occupied in Various Fields. Merchants Lead the List

Two hundred sixty Dads are doing everything from preaching to detective work to keep "Joe College" and "Betty Coed" at Susquehanna, this year.

Contrary to popular and traditional belief, not all the students here are sons and daughters of pastors; rather their fathers represent fifty-one other occupations beside the ministry.

Looking through the records it is found that the merchants lead the list with twenty-five, or almost a tenth of the total enrollment. The second highest number is made up of teachers, 18 in number. Seventeen students have fathers who are ministers.

There are two students who get "a box from home" of eatables from their Dad's bakery.

Almost every type of work, which is familiar in the Middle Atlantic States is represented. Many of the vocations and employments are typical of the average communities in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and Maryland from which the university draws most of its students.

Upon further examination it is found that 16 dads are farmers, 13 are laborers, and 10 are railroaders.

Some of the others who have not been listed above include mechanics, salesmen, lawyers, foremen and managers, state officials, carpenters and contractors, doctors, superintendents, insurance agents, postal employees, manufacturers, tax collectors, miners, clerks, barbers, auto dealers, bankers, beside a score of others.

Tomorrow night, Richard Cromwell will take the leading role as a football star in "That's My Boy."

Doug Fairbanks, Sr., is at his bounding best in "Mr. Robinson Crusoe" on Thursday evening. A tropical island picture with grand gaps and laughs aplenty.

On Friday evening, Jack Holt will be flashed on the silver sheet in "Man Against Woman."

Saturday's attraction is Universal's thriller of Uncle Sam's extra-fare letters "Alarm!" with a virile and romantic background. Ralph Bellamy as the airport superintendent and Pat O'Brien as the daredevil stunter shine.

If you like rowdy wisecracks seasoned with slapstick and a dash of melodrama, you'll probably love "Me and My Gal," next Monday and Tuesday evenings. Joan Bennett as a tough girl and Spencer Tracy as the cop are good.

Fighting Frosh Throw Scare Into Juniors, Turn In First Win Over Sophomores

In the race for honors in the second half play of the Inter-Class league, the Juniors, first half champions, and the Seniors are battling for the top rung of the ladder. At the present time both teams are tied for the coveted position with a lone victory and no defeats.

Frosh Lose Thriller to Overconfident Juniors
Putting up a stiff battle, the Frosh class five held the first half champion Juniors to a 21-18 score, losing the game in the closing minutes of play to an overconfident Junior team. The Frosh had their best fighting team on the floor thus far this season.

36 COUNTIES REPRESENTED IN S. U. STUDENT BODY

Students hailing from the four corners of Pennsylvania as well as from several nearby states comprise the student body of Susquehanna this semester. Figure compiled by the registrar show that a total of thirty-six counties of the sixty-seven are represented.

Northumberland and Snyder counties, as in former years, provide the major part of the group by furnishing 53 and 50 students respectively. Luzerne county is represented by 38 students and Juniata boasts 13 representatives.

Harry C. Michael, formerly pastor at Northumberland, was elected honorary president of the Johnstown-Susquehanna Alumni Club.

Pittsburgh was the first district of Susquehanna Alumni to organize a district club and this meeting celebrated their twenty-seventh anniversary. Here again Dr. Smith was the guest speaker and the moving picture exhibition was greeted with enthusiasm. A brief memorial service was held in memory of the club president, Albert Gowinski who died during the past year. He was also a member of the Board of Trustees of the University.

Two more alumni meetings will be held this month. The Lewistown Club will meet on the 24th and the Susquehanna graduates in the Centre-Union District will meet at Millheim on March 27th.

that he thought this the greatest book on earth.

Following the address there was a reception given by members of the Y. W. C. A. in the Seibert Hall parlors. Evening meditations closed the first day's activities.

Devotions in charge of Mr. Cooper opened the Saturday morning sessions, and this period was followed by another stirring address by Dr. Schaeffer. Dr. Mary E. Markley, of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church, then conducted an open forum, which preceded the discussion groups on student projects. The various student projects with their leaders were: Russian Seminary by Dr. H. D. Hoover; Lutheran Social Service by Miss Frances Dysinger; and Missions by Dr. Markley.

After lunch the usual devotional service in charge of Mr. Cooper was followed by a general discussion of Campus Problems, and then the delegates were given the remainder of the afternoon for recreation.

The evening session opened with devotions and the third address by Dr. Schaeffer. Dr. Segars then conducted an interesting open forum, and the Saturday activities closed with the Evening Meditation.

Mr. Cooper opened the session on Sunday morning with Devotions. This period was held in Seibert Hall Chapel, and at its conclusion the students repaired to the auditorium of Trinity Lutheran Church, where they engaged in the Service of Worship. Dr. Schaeffer delivered the sermon and used as his theme, "A Living Faith." He said "Faith is just a different sort of knowledge a convincing knowledge."

As a most appropriate closing service, the delegates partook of the Holy Communion with Dr. Schaeffer, President Smith and Rev. Dallas C. Baer administering the Sacrament.

The colleges and universities represented include Columbia, Barnard, Hunter, New York University, all of New York City; University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, Bryn Mawr College, Muhlenberg, Gettysburg Seminary, George Washington University, Lock Haven State Teachers College, Bucknell and Susquehanna.

CRUSADERS TOP LEBANON VALLEY AND ELIZABETHTOWN TO WIN FORT IN ROW

Maroon cagers passed their way to a five point victory over the Elizabethtown tossers, thus making it the fourth straight victory for the Crusaders.

The game was a close one from the beginning to finish, with both teams displaying fast basketball. The Crusaders were just a little off on their shooting, as they missed a number of easy shots. Both teams were behind in their foul shooting with only a total of seventeen being registered out of thirty-seven free throws which also indicates that the game was under control throughout and was closely refereed.

Hess, playing at the center position for the Crusaders, captured high scoring honors for the game with ten points, as he zipped the nets for three field goals and counted four times from the foul line. Bruce Worthington was second for the Orange and Maroon with three goals and converting one from the foul line. Naegeli also found the basket for three goals for a total of six points.

Bucher, flashy Elizabethtown forward, led his teammates with nine counters by registering two field goals and five tumbles on free throws.

Hindus Lecture Met With Approval Here

Russia and the World." Topic of Well known Author; Large Crowd Attends Feature of the Star Course

Lawrence Hindus, famous author, writer, and authority on Russian affairs, spoke in Selbert Chapel Hall, Tuesday evening, selecting as his topic "Russia and the World." Hindus' lecture was indeed historic. He is a keen interpreter and a magnificent speaker. Above all, he was fair-minded in his discussion of Russia. He thoroughly engrossed the large audience by citing the remarkable changes worked by the Russians as a result of the "Five-Year Plan."

The lecturer opened his remarks with the statement that "The Russian Revolution is the last revolution the world has had." The people of the nations south of Russia are so interested in their own problems that they forget all about the Russian Revolution, but the effects of this great struggle have been gradually affecting the lives of many. It is a power which must be recognized as any other great revolutionary change.

The three basic principles of civilization are private property, religion, and family life. The Russian Revolution destroyed by the Revolution and the principles have been established which affect the people of that nation. Neither the newspapers nor the people of this country understand Russia's "Five-Year Plan." Therefore, we have had many things which have been unexplained. The "Five-Year Plan" is a social problem which means the redistribution of the lives of 158,000,000 people. This cannot be done in five years, but the principles of the plan are already firmly rooted themselves in the lives of this nation. Drastic changes have taken place. The plan destroyed private ownership. Mr. Hindus said that he did not see a trace of communism in the country of Russia. It is a state capitalism.

Private ownership is limited to those who have never owned private property nor engaged in any form of capitalism. The only persons admitted to the Russian high schools and colleges are the sons of the former capitalists. The sons of the former capitalists are barred from a secondary education because they go out in the state factories and farms and work with their hands. A certain period of time; then they are granted citizenship and thus are entitled to further education. At the same time there are 30,000,000 enrolled in the schools in Russia.

The family is not utterly destroyed. It must support itself or it will collapse. The result of this attitude is that it is a very easy and simple matter to be married or divorced. In closing this interesting lecture Mr. Hindus stressed the fact (Concluded on Page 4)

Members of Faculty at Lewistown Alumni Meet; President Smith Speaks

Dr. G. Morris Smith and Professor D. Grossman spoke to over forty members of the Lewistown Alumni group at their annual meeting and banquet in Green Gables Hotel in Lewistown, Friday evening, February 24. The alumni group had the privilege of seeing the moving pictures of campus scenes and activities which Professor Grossman, the Alumni Secretary, had prepared. Following President Smith's address the body was further entertained by the McCar-Sho String Quartet, composed of Mr. Robert McCall, Mr. William Caruth, Mr. Eric Shober, and Miss Dorothy Leisher, a Susquehanna Alumna, residing at Renova, having several interesting numbers for the group.

On Friday morning, February 24, a group of Susquehanna faculty members were present at the Lewistown High School Chapel exercises. Miss Naomi Hade, representing the University Faculty, Deaconess, spoke to the students concerning her European trip last summer. She compared English and American systems of education in colleges and secondary schools. Professor C. Stevens, of the Conservatory, sang two groups of songs. Following the chapel program Professor L. D. Grossman met privately with the seniors explaining the activities and scholastic of Susquehanna.

Affirmative Debate Loses to Mansfield

Susquehanna Forensic Team Opened Season Here Last Week, Losing a Two to One Decision

Susquehanna's Affirmative Debating Team lost its opening debate of the current season to the Mansfield State Teachers College here on Friday evening, February 24. The decision was awarded to the winners by a vote of two to one by the judges, the arguments being closely contested throughout the debate.

The question for debate was "Resolved: That all inter-governmental world war debts, including reparations, be cancelled."

The speakers for Susquehanna were, in order, Mr. Alexander Youngerman, Mr. Fred Cassler, and Mr. Edwin Clapper, who supported the resolution. Judges for the debate were Miss Eva Herman, instructor in English in Selinsgrove High School; Mr. Roscoe C. North, President of the First National Bank of Selinsgrove; and the Reverend Snable, pastor of the Salem Lutheran Church.

The debate was fairly well attended, in comparison with audiences of recent years.

P.M.C. Game Here to Mark Season's Final

Powerful Cadet Five Boasts Envious Record This Year; Three Seniors Wind Up Crusaders' Careers

Susquehanna's basketball machine will bring the current season to a close on Saturday night in the Alumni Gymnasium, where the Ulyermans will entertain the cagers from Pennsylvania Military College, this being the only contest between the two teams this year.

With such stars as Kawal, Finch, Weaver, Cook, and Beisten in the visiting lineup, the Crusaders will have their hands full in their final encounter. The Cadets are for the most part well over six feet, as those who witnessed the performance of their football team will easily recall.

In addition to bulk, the P. M. C. outfit can boast of an enviable record compiled already this year on the basketball floor. They lost an encounter to Delaware by two points, a margin which does not compare favorably with Susquehanna's score of last week; defeating Osteopathy, another of Susquehanna's conquerors, they made use of their reserves during the greater part of the second half. Last week they dropped a hard game to the high rating Yale University quarter after trying the score five times in the second half.

However, with a week's rest, the Ulyermans will be poised to give their best in this curtain-closer of the season, providing that they are not handicapped by minor injuries sustained in last week's games.

This will mark not only the last game of the season, but also the end of the college career of Captain Bob McGeehan, one of the greatest guards ever to don the Orange and Maroon court jersey. This cool-headed, long-limbed guard has been a tower of strength on the Crusader defense during his entire four years at Susquehanna, and has also proven himself a sterling leader during the trying moments of the present season.

With Captain McGeehan there will be two other men who will make their last appearance on the Crusader cage teams, Bruce and Jay Worthington. Bruce was shifted to a regular varsity berth at forward this year, and fulfilled all expectations by proving to be a valuable point-guard. Particularly prominent in shooting, Bruce has tallied (Concluded on Page 4)

Senior Class Leads In Term Honor Roll

Forty-Five Honor Students Outstanding by Miss Marian Walborn With 'A' Average; Juniors Second, 161

The Senior Class easily outdistanced the other classes when forty-five students were mentioned on the first semester scholastic honor roll released from the Dean's Office on Saturday. Each semester the assistants in the office compile the averages of the ten leading students in each regular class on the campus.

MARIAN WALBORN

The grades and averages are determined on the regular honor point system with an "A" equalling 3 points, a "B" two points, and a "C" one point. The average for the entire class enrollments are as follows: The Senior class outdistanced the rest of the classes with 1.79; the Juniors were second with 1.64; the Sophomore class was third with 1.34.

From the honor roll report of forty-five students the following statistics were taken: Thirty of the leaders are in the classical arts departments, six more are from the Conservatory, five are taking work in the science and mathematical departments, and the remaining four are business students.

Fifteen students on this roll are commuters or day students, twenty-seven are resident students in university dormitories, and the remaining three are residents of the different fraternity houses.

Twenty-five of the leaders are girls and twenty are boys, a fact which shows that the averages between the two sexes are becoming closer. There were twelve honor students in each of the Senior and Freshman classes, eleven in the Sophomore class, and only ten in the Junior class.

Miss Marion Walborn, a commuter from Sunbury, has the distinction of being the only student in the university with a straight "A" average for the first semester. Miss Walborn is a senior and a member of Kappa Delta Phi society. Mr. William Royer, another commuter from Sunbury, was second in the senior class with a 2.81 average. Mr. Francis Geigle, a day student from Williamsport, rated third in the Senior Class with 2.76.

In the Junior class Miss Ruth Plummer, a Selinsgrove girl, was first with 2.83. Miss Eleanor Browne of Westminster, Maryland, was a close second with 2.81. Miss Margaret Hausman, another Selinsgrove student, was third by a 2.72 average.

Mr. Eric Shober, popular president of the Sophomore class, led his classmates with a 2.80 average. Miss Louise Mehling followed closely with 2.78 and Mr. Robert Clark was third with 2.47.

In the Freshman Class Miss Lois Long and Mr. John YonKondy divided first honors; both students had a 2.63 average. Mr. Fred Billman, a conservatory student, was third with 2.59.

A list of the ten leaders in each class will be found on the front page.

Scholarship Trophy Awarded to B. & K.

Inter-Fraternity Cup Goes to Bond and Key for Second Consecutive Year; High Average of 1.88

Bond and Key Club was again awarded the Inter-Fraternity Scholastic Trophy for the coming year when the Dean's Office compiled the fraternity grades for the second semester of the 1931-32 term and the first semester of the 1932-33 term.

William Royer and Eric Shober led the winners in marks with 2.81 and 2.80 respectively. The grading of these fraternity averages is done on the same honor point system as is used in the regular honor roll grading.

Bond and Key Club had a total average for both semesters of 1.88. Phi Mu Delta and Phi Lambda Theta were tied for second honors with 1.49 apiece. Epsilon Sigma rated third with 1.46.

The fraternity having the highest average in two consecutive semesters is awarded the cup for the coming scholastic year. The Inter-Fraternity regulations designate that any club winning the cup three consecutive years shall have permanent possession of it. Bond and Key has now won the cup for two consecutive years. The scholastic trophy will be presented in chapel in the near future.

Following are the fraternity averages for both semesters:

	1931-32	1932-33	Ave.
Bond and Key	1.92	1.86	1.88
Phi Lambda Theta	1.49	1.50	1.49
Phi Mu Delta	1.72	1.27	1.49
Epsilon Sigma	1.43	1.49	1.46

Fraternities Fete Pledges at Dances

Friday, March 3, Marks Return of Friday Night Dances to Our Campus; Custom Decides for Informality

Four campus fraternities will entertain their thirty-six pledges at the Annual Pledge Dance on Friday evening, March 3, at the respective club homes. This is the first Friday night dance at the university for some years and therefore the dancing will be from nine to one o'clock instead of the usual eight to twelve.

Custom on the campus has decided that the men shall dress informally at the pledge dance, but dress is optional for the ladies.

"The Revelers," a Sunbury band, will play for Epsilon Sigma brothers; Ivan Paux and His Band, also from Sunbury, will entertain at the Phi Mu Delta House; the Indiana Serenaders from Harrisburg will furnish rhythm at the Phi Lambda Theta chapter house, and the music of Joe Vanucci's Williamsport Band will emanate from Bond and Key.

Each of the fraternities is expecting many of its alumni back to greet the new pledges and to dance in the fraternity house again.

SPANISH CLUB COMBINES BUSINESS WITH PLEASURE

Susquehanna's Spanish Club held a combined business and social meeting on Monday evening, February 20, in the lecture Room of Steele Science Hall. The short business meeting was followed by a talk on southern Spain, Miss Lucy Irving, instructor of Spanish, showed a number of slides to illustrate her lecture, which was both entertaining and educational.

NOTICE TO FRESHMEN

There will be a meeting of the entire Freshman class on Thursday, March 2, at 12:45, in Steele Science Hall.

Crusaders Drop Two Tilts Over Week-end

Lose at West Chester and Delaware; Naegeli Forced to Bench With Injured Ankle on Friday

Susquehanna University's cagers suffered two defeats on their two-day trip over the week-end when they lost out, in a close battle, to West Chester Teachers' College on Friday night by a score of 34 to 29, and to the University of Delaware on Saturday with the count of 48 to 26.

At West Chester, the Crusaders were handicapped in the second half since Naegeli, the flashing Orange and Maroon forward, sprained his ankle in the first period. With McGeehan and Hess leading the attack in the first period, Susquehanna was leading at the end of that stage of the game by a score of 17 to 13. The game was close throughout, with both sides fighting every minute for a margin in the score.

Captain McGeehan, Hess and Bruce Worthington were tied for scoring honors for the Crusaders, with eight points each. Besides having two field goals to his credit, Bruce Worthington had a perfect evening in converting four charity throws.

Earl was easily the outstanding player for the victors as he zipped the nets for eight goals and one free throw from his guard position. Howard, West Chester forward, was second in scoring for his teammates with eight points, by having four goals from the field.

Delaware Too Powerful

The Crusaders were edged out by fast University of Delaware team by an overwhelming score of 48 to 26 on their last trip abroad this season.

Displaying a brand of fast-clicking teamwork, the victors immediately got under way in the first half to lead at the end of that period by a score of 24 to 13.

Losses of Susquehanna were unable to compete with such a smooth working outfit that represented the University of Delaware, handicapped by the absence of Naegeli sharp-shooting forward.

Kaufman and O'Connell, forward men for Delaware, switched the goals for enough points to tie the Crusaders (Concluded on Page 4)

Teaching is Listed as Favorite Choice Among Professions at S. U.

Thirteen different professions are listed by Susquehanna students, with more than half of the entire body choosing teaching as their preference, according to statistics released recently by the Administration of the college. One hundred and sixty-five of the regularly enrolled students have indicated that they will follow teaching as their chosen profession. The second highest choice is in the field of law, where there are twenty-one aspirants; theology is a close third, with twenty followers.

Thirty-seven students are still undecided in their selection of a life work, while the rest divide their choices among the following: medicine, dentistry, engineering, business, journalism, office work, missionary work, chemistry, and commercial art.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

An editor of a magazine or city newspaper can tell what his readers like by his circulation figures. If the people like what he has to offer, they are willing to pay for it; conversely, the editor is only too happy to offer that which they are willing to purchase.

Circulation figures of THE SUSQUEHANNA are constant. The student on the campus pays for his subscription whether he likes it or not. He cannot choose whether or not he will BUY the paper.

He can, however, determine WHAT HE IS PAYING FOR, if he will take the little time and trouble necessary to make his desires known to those who have no other means of knowing what those desires are.

Every year it is stated clearly in these columns that the reader should express his opinions in writing. All letters of a sincere nature will be read and considered; signatures will not be made public, and the letter itself will not be printed if it is the desire of the writer.

Unfortunately, few of such letters are ever received. If THE SUSQUEHANNA has, in recent years, seemed to reflect too much the principles and policies of individuals instead of those of the college, it is not the fault of those individuals, but of the readers who are too indifferent or irresponsible to make their desires known through the proper channels. We cannot give you what you would like if we have no means of knowing what you want.

We work without recompense and with little thanks; we take abuse without complaint. Is it not reasonable to assume that we would do the same amount of work if we knew that we were actually pleasing our readers?

We are willing to confess that our facts are seldom "news." Enthusiasm in reading THE SUSQUEHANNA must depend upon other factors,—those features which you can and should suggest, since you are paying for them.

However, THE SUSQUEHANNA is primarily a college paper, designed for the intellect that a college mind should have. We are not, after all, a three-ring circus; it is not our duty to secure your attention through the medium of sensational and impudent stunts.

If such is what you want, then it would be better that THE SUSQUEHANNA were discontinued. If so, we should like to know that also. It is your paper; you are the real publishers.

Do you want THE SUSQUEHANNA discontinued? Do you want it changed? Do you like it as it is?

WHAT DO YOU WANT? That's what we want to know. Start now, and let us hear from all sides.

You have a right to spend your money in the way that is most profitable to you. What is that way?

WE CHALLENGE DISORDER

The tradition of order in a dormitory for men must be established.

It is time that Student Council realizes that Susquehanna dormitories should be made livable, and not mere places of existence. Conditions conducive of study, atmosphere that will seem like home, and security for the individual are things that should be obtained. The present state of property destruction, theft, and disorder should be abolished. So badly is some semblance of orderliness needed that an individual leaving his room and his possessions cannot be certain of their safety from one hour to the next.

How can Student Council remedy present evils?

The best way of establishing and maintaining conditions in keeping with adult university life is for the students themselves to enforce regulations against rowdiness. Student Council is the organ of undergraduate government. Let it appoint a committee for each building—the need is most crying in Haggard Hall—that will be held responsible for the punishment of any further depredations, theft, or abuse of property. Let that committee be empowered by the President to enforce its commands and eventually to create a tradition that would automatically ostracize any individual's tampering with the belongings of others. If college is to mature its students, then adult conditions of life must be guaranteed in living quarters.

The man best fitted to head such a tradition-creating body would be a member of Student Council, a man who is awarded the respect of every student, and who lives on the campus himself. We recommend the immediate appointment of such a man!

Student Council members have known about dormitory conditions for a long time. This is, perhaps, the first public challenge to remedy them. We are anxious to see in what manner they will respond to the challenge to justify their existence as a student-governing body.

POT POURRI

..... presenting cosmopolitan collegians' shifting scene, garbed in modernity's robes but touching all times and all climes.
This week: love, cribbing, edible diplomas

A course in love-making has been added to the curriculum of Middlebury College, Vermont, demonstrations to be given by Seniors. At Tulane, the Beau Brummels form a gigolo bureau. Membership is limited to handsome, well dressed men, object being to provide "dates" for love-lorn co-eds. Rates are one dollar for an informal, two dollars for a formal affair and all expenses must be paid by the client. At the University of Melbourne, men take up knitting as a protest against co-eds who adopt football as one of their major sports.

Washington University's Dean claims men often state they flunk a course because of Ventura's "temporary insanity"—otherwise known as love. Recently, one of these men applied for re-admission. He answered the question on the petition, "Has the cause of failure been removed?" by saying, "Yes, I married her."

Statistics have proven that the percentage of college women who marry is smaller than that of non-college women. Of Susquehanna lovers, contradictory viewpoints are held by some eminent authorities

College, however, will not make splinters from our girls. It will help them better to manage world affairs, which women and youth always will manage and have managed. In the fifth century B. C. Themiocles, brilliant, gifted, astute Athenian statesman, said: "You see that boy of mine? Though but five, he governs the universe. Yes, for he rules his Mother, his Mother rules me, I rule Athens and Athens the world." By such influence is man, lord of the universe, directed.

Princeton's "Alumni Weekly" states that cribbing will be raised to a major industry. For one hundred dollars in cash, their students can buy a four-year set of notes.

Cribbing in examinations is no modern invention, as is revealed by a Chinese silk handkerchief three hundred years old now in possession of Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History. The handkerchief bears thousands of microscopic Chinese characters, used as answers in a civil service examination.

Listen to an Oxford student describe his examination: "First we all light our pipes and sit around a while discussing the subject. Then we start to write and if we get stuck, we can always ask our neighbor. That is all expected. You can't write a paper unless you know the subject." Cribbing in this examination would be unnecessary and cowardly. In the last phrase lies the significance: "You can't write a paper unless you know the subject"—especially when the paper does not come until after four years of study.

A professor at Detroit says it would be better to give graduating seniors hot dogs than diplomas. You can eat hot dogs But for the human brain, a "sneepkin" will prove far more digestible.

Whether at Detroit University or Selingrove College, Cranberry Crossroads, man needs three symbols to inspire him: the flag, the Cross, and the diploma.

Perfect Attendance For 13 During First Term

Thirteen regular Susquehanna students had perfect attendance during the first semester of the 1932-1933 term. In a report released from the Registrar's Office on Saturday the following statistics were gleaned:

Seven Freshmen, three Seniors, two Juniors and one Sophomore did not miss a class period during the sixteen school weeks. Of this number seven are students in the classical arts departments, three are taking work in the science and mathematical departments, two in the business department and one of the group is a Conservatory student.

Five of this group are commuters or day students, and eight are resident students. There were no men rooming at fraternity houses on this list. Eight were girls and five boys.

Dean Presents Paper to Williamsport Ministers

Dr. George F. Dunkelberger presented the paper of the day at the meeting of the Williamsport Ministerial Association on Monday, February 20. His subject was "Marks of the Church in Great Americans." He traced the influence of environment and heredity on personality, and the inadequacy of psychology to explain how or why one develops as he does.

He had popped the great question. She had coyly accepted him.

He produced the engagement ring and slipped it on her finger.

"Oh, George, darling," she sighed, "how sweet of you to remember the stone I preferred! None of the other fellows was ever so thoughtful."

The youth was staggered for a moment. He quickly pulled himself together.

"Not at all, my dear," he blandly replied. "You see, this is the ring I always use."

Football Moguls Announce New Rules

Change Affecting Side Zones and Altered Definition of Clipping Feature Revised Code

Following a three-day session of the National Collegiate Athletic Association at Philadelphia, the following changes were announced in the existing code:

(1) Side zones, 10 yards wide, were established on either side of the playing field to eliminate loss of downs on futile sideline plays, thus strengthening the game's offensive.

(2) The definition of clipping was broadened to include any contact with the back of an opposing player not carrying the ball, and the penalty for clipping was reduced from 25 yards to 15 yards, to insure prompt penalizing by hitherto hesitant field officials.

(3) A loose ball kicked in the end zone will, under the 1933 rules, result in an automatic safety. Heretofore, it was possible for the offended team to be awarded a touchdown on this play.

The adoption of these changes marks a distinct triumph by the coaches in their brisk war fare with the field officials.

Cham's In Subs' Code

In 1932, if a substitute was sent into the game under the player's watch was running, the team making the substitution was charged with a time-out and a yardage penalty imposed if three legal time-outs had already been taken. However, exceptions were granted, if the captain desired to replace a tired player, or in the case of injuries. In 1933 the captain will not have the privilege of calling for substitutes under these conditions.

There were enough suggestions from football fans, which poured into the hands of the committeemen to change the entire game of football, in addition to altering the size of the field.

Junior Varsity In Two Hard Games This Week

Susquehanna's hard working Junior Varsity five will meet worthy competition this week, engaging in return contests with the Bucknell Freshmen and the St. Paul's five from Williamsport.

The Jayvees will receive the Bucknell Frosh here tomorrow night, and are anxious to avenge the overwhelming defeat suffered at Lewisburg, when they emerged at the short end of a 46-13 score.

On Saturday night, the local five will play the St. Paul's aggregation as a preliminary game to the Varsity-P. M. C. contest in the Alumni Gymnasium. The Williamsport team also handed the Jayvees a decisive beating in an earlier game this year, but the latter are confident of putting forth a better brand of basketball on the home court and with the experience they have gained since taking over the schedule of the old Junior Varsity quintet.

Coach Ullery was forced to shift the Crusader lineup due to injuries sustained on Friday night against West Chester. Alexander was placed at the forward position in place of Naegeli and Eisenhower saw service at the pivot post when Hess was shifted to forward. However, the constant shifting of the lineup during the game failed to check the steady flow of goals on the part of the Delaware marksmen.

Alexander led his teammates with seven tallies with two field goals and three free throws. Eisenhower was a close second with six counters while Sassaman contributed five points from his guard post.

Negative Wins 3-0 From Waynesburg

Local Negative Easily Overcame Western Trio in Argument on War Debts Last Thursday

Waynesburg's affirmative debate team lost a judges' decision of three to nothing to Susquehanna's negative forensic aggregation last Thursday evening in Steele School Hall.

The question, "Resolved: That all inter-governmental war debts, including reparations, should be cancelled," was cleverly handled by both sides, with the direct appeal to the American taxpayer being stressed by the Susquehanna team sufficiently to outweigh the technical discussion of the visiting team.

Joseph Maimon, president of Tau Kappa Alpha debating society, Harold Rowe, and William Morrow represented the Susquehanna Negative team in the order mentioned. For Waynesburg, the speakers were James Gladden, Eric Enstrom, and John Young.

Judges for the debate were Miss Phillips and Mr. Hendricks, of the Selinsgrove High School teaching staff, and Professor Toole, also of Selinsgrove.

Indoor Track Meet Date Is March 23

Records Expected to Fall in Men's and Women's Events During This Year's Interclass Meet

With basketball practically gone for another year, we now turn to track and the Inter-Class Track Meet, which is looked forward to by the various classes, and is scheduled to take place in the Alumni Gymnasium on Thursday night, March 23, the time to be announced later.

This year's meet will be interesting to most of the students, as there will be close competition among the classes. Last year the meet was won by the present Junior Class by a small margin of one-half a point. This meet is not only for the men, but the women also participate in various track and field events.

Last year many new records were established and these record getters will be out this season to break their previous marks. The Senior Relay team the college record and they expect to break their own record. Meyers, who has been running the dashes for the Orange and Maroon track team, holds the college record in the 210 yard dash. Swann, who is co-captain with Meyers of the Crusader track team for this season, expects to blast his own college record in the one-half mile run. Kramer holds the record in the bar-vault and hopes to better his mark. Barbara Jones is expected to better the mark in the rope vault, which she tied in her freshman year. These record holders are all Seniors and will strengthen the Senior team so that a victory may be realized by the fourth year team.

Candidates are already working out in their events in preparation for this annual occasion.

Local Debaters Busy This Week; Trip East For the Affirmative

Susquehanna's affirmative debaters will make an eastern trip on Thursday and Friday, March 9 and 10; meeting University negative on Thursday at Norristown and Franklin and Marshall negative on Friday evening. The local negative will meet the Ursinus affirmative on the home platform on Thursday evening.

Last week the negative aggregation won their first contest of the season by defeating Waynesburg.

The question for all the debates will be the same as heretofore announced: "Resolved: That all inter-governmental world war debts, including reparations, be cancelled."

NOTICE
There will be a meeting of the members of the Freshman staff of "The Susquehanna" tomorrow (Wednesday) at 12:45 in Steele School Hall.

O.D.S. Women Annex Cup in Grade Race

Heated Contest Between O. D. S. and Rivals Marked by One Hundredth of Point; K. D. P. Close Second

Omega Delta Sigma women captured the Inter-sorority Scholarship Cup for the coming year by attaining a sorority average of 1.936 for the second semester of last year and the first semester of the present year. Kappa Delta Phi gave the winners a close contest with an average of 1.826.

The two remaining sororities were also close in the final evaluation. Sigma Sigma Delta earned a sorority average of 1.67 and Sigma Alpha Iota was fourth with 1.64.

The intensity of the contest may be shown by the fact that it was necessary for the Dean's office to work the averages out to three places instead of the usual two places. The difference of one one-hundredth of a point is certainly significant of the closeness of the two leading groups.

Annual Concert of Band on Thursday

University Musicians Offer Splendid Program This Year; Allison Number Is Special Feature

This Susquehanna University Band, under the baton of Prof. Elrose L. Allison, will present its annual concert this Thursday evening at eight-fifteen in Seibert Hall Chapel.

The members of the Band have been working diligently for some time on this concert and it promises to be one of the best ever rendered. Much practical experience has been gained through the recent engagements at Lewistown and Watsonstown. The program is varied and, under the capable direction of Prof. Allison, should please the most fastidious of all types of music-lovers.

A few of the numbers on the program are such familiar ones as Tschakowsky's "Marche Slav," and Von Weber's "Oberon." A march, as yet unnamed, written and arranged by Prof. Allison, will be one of the outstanding numbers on the program. A Clarinet Solo by Richard Shade, and a vocal solo by Roland Pritchard, will also be special features.

Centre-Union District Holds Alumni Banquet

Professor L. D. Grossman, General Alumni Secretary, spoke briefly to the Centre-Union District Alumni Club at their annual banquet at Millheim, February 27.

Thirty alumni were present at the banquet meeting held at the Millheim Inn. Professor Grossman again showed the moving pictures of campus activities.

Following the banquet a business meeting was held in which the following District officers were elected: President, Reverend Louis Lester, of Millheim; Vice President, Mr. G. Franklin Stover, State College; Secretary, Mrs. John F. Harkins, State College; Treasurer, Mr. Aaron S. Hershinger, Laurelton, and Committee Chairman, Reverend Harry C. Reynolds, Hazleton.

Miss Ethel Fox, Product of Chicago Opera, and Leonard Cortes, Noted Pianist, Appear Here March 15

Ethel Fox, noted soprano, will appear on the Star Course number in Seibert Hall Chapel on March fifteenth. Leonard Cortes, acclaimed in Europe and America, will be the pianist.

Miss Fox was formerly with the Chicago Opera Company, and is well known in the musical circles of the country.

This number, being a decided contrast to the recent lecture by Maurice Hindus on "Russia," will wind up the season as the final Star Course Number should draw a capacity audience.

Dr. Follmer Slowly Regaining Health

Admired Economics Professor Gradually Combats Illness Which Kept Him From Second Semester Classwork

Dr. Harold N. Follmer, professor of economics and sociology at Susquehanna University, is gradually regaining his health following the illness which has resulted in his being unable to meet any of his classes during the remainder of this semester.

This information is gratifying to his many friends, as his condition was considered quite serious for a time. However, his strength has been returning steadily so that now Dr. Follmer may receive visitors at his home where he is now confined.

Most of Dr. Follmer's classes have been taken over by other members of the faculty, although it is hoped by his many friends and admirers among the student body that he may return to his professional duties in the near future.

Ferster Elected to Edit Freshman Issue

Vernon Ferster was elected Editor of the Freshman issue of the Susquehanna at a meeting of the Freshman class last Friday, March 3. At the Thursday election he tied with Fred Billman, but the Friday election left him the editor.

The Freshman issue, which will be written and edited entirely by the Freshman class, will be published on March 21.

Ferster announced his supporting editorial staff as follows:

Women Lead the Men in Scholarship

School Average Goes Up to 1.54 for First Semester; Fraternities and Sororities Head Non-Members

Susquehanna women again outdistanced the men in the first semester scholastic averages passed out from the Dean's Office late last week. The average for the women was 1.65 while the men received an average of 1.44. It is noticeable, however, that the gap between the men's and women's averages is becoming narrower each semester.

Another fact derived from these averages is the total school average which was very commendable. The entire student grades averaged up to 1.54.

The resident students barely nosed out the day students by three-hundredths of a point. Those living on the campus had 1.55 and the day students averaged 1.52.

Fraternity men easily won over the non-fraternity men with 1.53 and 1.34 respectively. The sorority women also defeated the non-sorority women by one-tenth of a point. Sororities had an average of 1.70 and the non-sorority women had 1.60.

P. M. C. Giants Down Crusader Five, 52-38

Crippled Ulerymen Succumb to Powerful Cadet Attack in Second Half Following Stubborn Battle

Susquehanna's basketball quintet did their season on Saturday night in the Alumni Gymnasium in a glorious manner when they battled a much superior Pennsylvania Military College team on even terms in the first half, only to lose out in the final period with a score of 52 to 38.

The Crusaders immediately got down to work with the opening whistle and took the lead when Schiele registered two free throws. Led by Alexander, who was starting his second game at varsity forward, the Crusaders maintained their margin until the closing seconds of the first half, when the score stood 21 to 20, P. M. C. in the lead. The Cadets displayed the smoothest team that has been on the floor this year against the Orange and Maroon. Every man with the exception of two were well over six feet in height and had the edge over the Crusaders. However, the Crusaders fought every minute of the game and were determined to break through with a (Continued on Page 4)

Fraternities Hold Friday Eve Dances

Four Campus Greek Clubs Entertain Pledges at Annual Dances; Return of Nine to One Dance

Campus fraternities held their Annual Pledge Dances in their respective club homes on Friday night, March 3. This was the first Friday night dance in some years and was very well attended. Each of the houses had many alumni and friends in attendance.

As announced, the dances were informal at each of the houses. The new nine to one o'clock dance apparently was well accepted, judging from the number of people that attended.

The orchestras were of a high class nature. At the Epsilon Sigma house "The Sunny Revelers" entertained. "Ivan Faux and His Band" furnished the couples with rhythm at the Phi Mu Delta home. Phi Lambda Theta was entertained at their "bridge party dance" by Charlie Israel's Band from York, Pa. The Bond and Key couples enjoyed the music of "Joe Vannucci and His Williamsport Band."

Members of the faculty were kind enough to act as chaperones and guests at every one of the dances.

"MEANING OF LENT" TOPIC AT PRE-THEOLOG MEETING

The Pre-Theological Club met Thursday evening in room 205 of G. A. Hall at seven o'clock.

Edwin Clapper, the president of the Club, led the opening devotions. Then an interesting talk was given by Ralph Shockey on the subject, "Lent, what it means, and how it is observed."

The topic for the next meeting is to be "Worship" and different phases of this subject were assigned to members for preparation.

The meeting closed with the members repeating the Apostles' Creed and the Lord's Prayer.

Stellar Forward in Final College Tilt

BRUCE WORTHINGTON

played his greatest game, scoring eleven points against P. M. C. on Saturday night, in his final appearance on Susquehanna's basketball floor. Bruce has worn the Orange and Maroon for four years, capably filling the breach whenever called upon.

Basketball Season Fairly Successful

Orange and Maroon Five Won Five and Lost Ten Games; Forced Handicap Were Constant Handicap

The Crusaders of Susquehanna closed a fairly successful basketball season on Saturday night by winning five games and losing ten encounters. Much credit is due the Orange and Maroon cagers for their fighting spirit throughout the season, as many of their games were lost only by a few points.

Coach Ullery deserves commendation for putting out a team that fought every minute of the game, as it did on Saturday night against Pennsylvania Military College. He was faced with a task of shifting his line-up many times on account of injuries during the season, but each time the chosen team was playing basketball and forcing every competitor to the limit.

After winning their opening game against the Susquehanna Alumni by a score of 41 to 20, the Crusaders fell short by eight points as they lost to a strong College of Osteopathy team by a score of 36 to 28. Following the Christmas holidays, the Orange and Maroon were outclassed by a Penn State Lion with a score of 43 to 24. Returning to the home floor, they next fell short in the second half to lose to their old rival, Lebanon Valley, 34 to 29. A return game with the College of Osteopathy ended with another loss for the Crusaders by the score of 39 to 32, and then the Orange and Maroon basketekers again lost a heart-breaking game to Bucknell by a single point.

After losing six straight games, Coach Ullery was forced to shift his line-up due to drop-outs and a practically new team won over Haverford College by a score of 37 to 35 and then stretched their winning streak to four games with victories over Lebanon Valley, and two wins with Elizabethtown College. Losing to La Salle and West Chester by small margins, the Crusaders were then outclassed by the University of Delaware and the Bucknell Bison.

Dr. Boeder Speaks of Hitler to Rotarians

Dr. Boeder, instructor of mathematics at Susquehanna University, spoke before the Rotary Club of Selinsgrove last week. He related the outstanding characteristics of one of Germany's leading personalities, Hitler, and he expressed the power he exerts over the common people.

In the course of his talk Dr. Boeder stated some vital facts concerning this leader. He informed his audience that Hitler is self-centered, his chief aim is to gain rule over the common mass. If he achieves this goal, it will be through exasperated peoples. Hitler lacks executive power because his train of thought dwells in the realm of illusion. Professor Boeder's talk was deeply appreciated, being quite informative and exceedingly interesting.

HAVE THEY FAILED?

What is the heritage of the athletic field?

Was it merely the unbroken string of victories on the football field that resulted in such a wave of enthusiasm a few months ago?

Or was it the spirit of great endeavor, of constant striving for the ideals of team interest, courage, and good sportsmanship? These are the qualities which constitute the true athlete.

We speak not of moral victories, nor in apology. On paper, our basketball season appears as a distinct failure; but such games are not played on paper, but by living men who represent their college by their efforts and conduct.

Can we say that our representatives on the basketball floor have failed? Those who watched them perform on Saturday evening—crippled in nearly every respect possible for such a team, handicapped physically by size and court—those who saw them rise to the heights of human endeavor in their attempt to match impossible odds, know that they have not failed.

Saturday's game and one other defeat—when five men played together for the first time four weeks ago at Philadelphia, and succumbed only after another bitter uphill struggle—stand out as great performances in the season just completed.

By these two defeats alone, these men have won a just claim to the true heritage of the athletic field, the quality of striving their hardest in the best way that they were able.

FIVE-DAY WEEK

One of the topics suggested for an English theme in the early part of the year was concerned with the "five-day" week situation at Susquehanna.

This problem would seem appropriate for discussion at the present time in particular. For the next five or six weeks there are no inter-collegiate athletic contests, dances, or other major attractions on the college calendar to keep the interest of the student on the campus over week-ends.

Consequently, many of our resident students will probably be leaving the campus regularly on Friday afternoons or Saturday mornings. This situation reflects upon the college and upon the initiative of the students themselves.

Why can't we adjust this matter ourselves? Must the administration take it upon themselves to secure outstanding features on the calendar to keep our interests here? Why can't the students, or their various organizations, promote activities which will stimulate this interest?

The five-day week makes our college almost exclusively a classroom existence. The full seven-day week is necessary for the well-rounded life and broader education which is extended to the college student to be utilized according to his own will.

GOOD WORK, FROSH

At a recent meeting of the Freshman Class, more than eighty per cent of the members were on hand at the scheduled time. This fact deserves mention since such a response has not generally been the rule in recent years.

This has been true not only of class meetings, but in many other organizations where attendance is not rendered compulsory by various penalties.

Such interest is necessary for the satisfactory adjustment of such problems as may be of interest to every student, and contributes to the general enthusiasm which makes for the best all-around campus life.

The class of '35 is to be commended for such an attitude, and it is hoped that their enthusiasm will continue at such a level during the remainder of their days at Susquehanna, and thereby exert a favorable influence upon incoming classes who will eventually take their place.

One Method
Peggy always sticks the stamps on her envelopes upside down.
"I'm not surprised. You know how Peggy enjoys turning a man's head."

Fund Mother (to daughter): "What did the editor tell you when you submitted your poem to him?"
Daughter: "He said he couldn't print it because he was out of poetry type."

POTPOURRI

... presenting cosmopolitan collegiana's shifting scene, garbed in modernity's robes, but touching all times and all climes.

This week: Six-weeks' sighs; co-eds' attention; Africa speaks; Ziegfeld four . . .

The end of every six weeks at Susquehanna finds published a "list of sighs," sometimes facetiously called the "Honor Roll," and many times referred to by various and sundry other epithets. From Spain came a suggestion for unhappy students who don't expect to make the grade. Fifty students at Valpin found a way to escape their final course by the simple process of locking their profs in a room until they promised to pass the whole class without examination.

Creighton University, however, has a sign on the Dean's door, "Get your grades here and pass out quietly." Our Registrar will appreciate that, but some students won't. It takes a lot of smelling salts to revive a fainted sludger.

Strange is the attention co-eds ask for and receive. At the University of Louisiana, three young women completely shaved their heads to discourage "dates" . . . At Minnesota, asterisks are placed before catalogue names of unmarried profs . . . A special telephone system to encourage social contacts is placed between men and women's dormitories at Antioch College. Perhaps Louisiana co-eds temporarily blotching their femininity will learn that woman's attractiveness can be diminished too much. No man wants a freak, and all men want women who are really feminine. That is why the masculine trend in feminine sportswear for this spring will not spread further.

This column advises that those three Louisiana girls transfer to Butler University, take a course in the "Art of Staying Married," now being given by an instructor who has been twice married himself . . . They will need it.

At the University of Glessen, Germany, Herr Professor enters a lecture room crowded with impatient students. No one interrupts the lecture; when students differ they shuffle their feet; if they agree there is great applause . . . is a good plan, adding interest and enthusiasm to the class, when students are earnest.

Comtesse Francois-Guillaume de Mairret, returning from Tunis, is the first woman to wear a fez, specially adapted from that country's chechia. Africa, which has given us many things—from tom-tom's jazz to Eugene O'Neill opera—now contributes to midday's fashions.

Advance notices also state that the humble beret will be worn pulled down over their light eye, in the fashion of a mushroom. Hand-knitted sweaters, scarfs, and hats will be popular, also chiffon for evening wear. After dark, the vogue is to brush the hair straight back and hold it in place with a bandeau.

"Three things men will have in good times or bad," said Ziegfeld, "yes, four; to wit: female beauty to inspire the mind, tobacco to soothe it, and a little something to stimulate it, and a few shares on margin to give it hope" . . .

Ziegfeld knew what to place first. Let us hope that female beauty heightened by spring fashions will inspire man's mind sufficiently to lift him from the depression.

Miss Elizabeth V. Kauffman, '28, is doing private and general nursing in the Presbyterian Hospital at Pittsburgh. Miss Kauffman has recently received word from Harrisburg that she has passed the State Board Examinations.

THE GRAB-BAG

Note: The Grab-Bag wants items, essays, poetry, sketches, skits, or what have you for its columns. We should like most of our contributions to come from our readers. The only requirement is that they be interesting. We should like to make the Grab-Bag not a collection of odds and ends, but a real surprise package.

A new indoor sport was born over the week-end: guessing how many banks had closed and for how long . . . it's becoming an obsession . . . instead of opening conversation with "Wonder if it will rain today?" the first remark is now "Wonder when the banks will open?" . . . Strange how many people who were wondering where their next dime was coming from a few days ago now want to know when they can get at their money or cash that big check.

Suggestion for Thursday night: Why not put the Band and the Debating teams in the same hall and let them fight to a finish . . . Can "Rory" Allison's brass section drown out the playing and braying of the forensic enthusiasts . . . As far as the wind goes . . . Well, it would be lots of fun, anyway.

Al Jedoff, Temple Pharmacy forward, who was named by our last year's Sports Editor on Susquehanna's all-opponent team, recently dropped 56 out of 60 fouts to win the all-Temple University foul-shooting contest . . . We thought Alexander was having a foul-shooting battle with Kaval of P. M. C. on Saturday night.

Speaking of the basketball game, Al Says—

I asked some of the boys what they thought about the game the other night, and this is what they told me—
Captain Bob—I ain't gonna reign no more, no more.
Sassaman (yassuh!)—The Quadrangle on the rocks.
"Crisco" Schlegel—If I could only jump, I'd be a star.
Ken (watch the bouncing ball) Alexander—One more minute and I would have won the game.

Prexy Worthington—How could we win—she works on Saturday nights.
Jack (hot dog and sauerkraut) Naegel—I had a swell seat.

Shrimp Worthington—What's the score up there?
Lightnin' Hess—if I had my razor I could have cut a better figure on the floor.

Mahatma Kony—Ten seconds is all I need.
Thunderbolt Eisenhower—Maybe I was too rough with them; the nasty men wouldn't let me finish the game.

Coach Ullery—Dod gas it! There aren't any holes in those baskets when our men shoot.

Our manager—Ahl I ask is sympathy.

"Doc" Boeder (our loyal supporter)—They were too mam-moth!

Concili

I'd rather I should like myself than you.

It may be I'm conciliated, it is true.

With you I do not always have to be.

But after all I have to live with me.

When the doctor told Charlie Keller, a year ago, that he had better stop smoking or he would get a tobacco heart, Charlie began eating candy and now he has a sweet-heart . . .

Ye Editor looked his closet door on Friday night so the co-eds couldn't peek at his wardrobe. To complete the job he lost the key, and wandered about for three hours on Saturday morning wondering how long he would have to wear the same clothes. Eventually, along came ye Managing Editor and naively suggested that he remove the hinges from the door . . . When "Doc" Boeder was catching a few baseballs for Al Meyer recently, Al asked if he should "burn them in." "No, no!" exclaimed the other, "Throw them parabola!" . . . Hess defines "social": "As you desire me, social you have me" . . . Pardon, but we can't continue after that one . . .

The Editor's Mail

Two letters, of differing opinions were received in answer to last week's editorial requesting the attitude of the student body towards "The Susquehanna."

The first, from one of the men students, cannot be reproduced in its entirety here, but can be best stated by its concluding paragraph, as follows:

"If the 'Susquehanna' is to continue its policies as they been and now are, please remove my name from the subscription list, as it will not be worth the necessary effort I give in going to the Post Office Tuesday afternoon."

The second letter, signed "Betty Coed," expresses a different angle on the situation. Parts of it follow:

"Perhaps the news in the paper is not all so new to us; but a college paper does and should present it in a correct and compact form. To me originality in the method of treatment of the subject matter is almost as much as the news item itself."

"We don't want a 'cat's paw' . . . We don't want it done away with. What we do want is a college paper we can be proud of. One we shall be anxious to exhibit to our parents and friends. Why not 'The Susquehanna'?"

We thank these two readers for their sincere opinions, and hope that they may receive similar letters from others among our readers in the near future.

"My aunt in Venice is sending me a gondola for my birthday. How am I going to play it?"
"You don't play a gondoli; you throw it over your shoulder like a shawl."

CONSERVATORY GROUP ENTERTAINS AT PEN

Professor Fredrick Stevens, and the Mac-Car-Sho String Trio, composed of Mr. Erie Shober, Mr. Robert McNally and William Caruth, were guest artists at a Sunday afternoon program at the new Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg. Phi Lambda Theta Brothers Paul Haines, '31, and Ray Minich, '32, visited the House over the week-end.

The fraternity basketball team defeated the Beavertown High Alumni here last week, 33-32. Sala, Grider, and Naugle scored all of the points for the Phi Lambdas with 12, 11 and 10 markers, respectively.

Discovering America

The name of Sir Raleigh, once professor of English literature at Oxford and other universities, naturally recalls that of his great namesake, the Elizabethan navigator.

When Sir Walter came to the United States to lecture, the spokesman of the small deputation from the learned societies sponsoring his visit, inadvertently addressed the wrong man coming down the gangway.

"Good morning, Sir Walter Raleigh, I believe?"

"No, sir!" said the surprised one, as he hurried from what he supposed was an escaped "patient." "Christopher Columbus!"

A Full Description

"What's the formula for water, Jones?" asked the science master.

"H I J K L M N O," spelled out the scholar.

"What's that?" barked the master. The scholar slowly repeated the letters.

"Whatever are you driving at?" said the master. "Who gave you that idea?" "You, sir," said Jones. "You said yesterday it was H to O."

A young wife, wishing to announce the arrival of her first child to a friend in a distant city, telegraphed:

"Isiah 9: 6." Which passage begins: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given."

Her friend, unfamiliar with the Scriptures, said to her husband: "Margaret evidently has a boy who weighs nine pounds and six ounces, but why on earth did they name him Isiah?"

Etude Editor Here For Club Program

Dr. James Francis Cooke, Etude Editor and President of Presser Foundation Will Speak Here Tonight

On Tuesday evening, March 7th, the In-And-Out Susquehanna Valley Club will hold its March meeting in the Seibert Hall Chapel at Susquehanna University.

The guest speaker will be Dr. James Francis Cooke, editor of "The Etude," a musical journal. He is also president of the Presser Foundation Scholarship. One of these Scholarships is awarded each year to a conservatory of music student on Susquehanna's campus. At the present time Miss Andra Mertz of Sunbury and William Caruth of Wilkes-Barre, are holders of the scholarship.

Preceding the address by Dr. Cooke, the Susquehanna University Choral Society will sing three numbers; the last being a composition by Dr. Cooke. The individuals in charge of arranging for the program invite the public to attend.

English Head Addresses Educators In Scranton

Dr. Arthur Herman Wilson, head of the college English department, spoke on "The Purpose of High School English," before the Pennsylvania State Education Association, for the program of the College and Teacher Training Division. The occasion was the North-eastern Convention of the association, held in Scranton at the Central High School, on Friday, March 3.

Dr. Wilson has been elected secretary of the Department of College and Teacher Training for the present year.

PLATO'S IDEAL GOVERNMENT DISCUSSED IN PHIL-HELLENIC

The Phil-Hellenic Society held its regular meeting Thursday evening in room 205 of G. A. Hall at eight o'clock.

A short business meeting was followed by an excellent talk on Plato and his conception of an ideal government, given by James Suter. The talk began with a resume of the life of Plato, whose life story reads like a volume of fiction. Then the speaker discussed a dialogue of Plato entitled "The Republic," through which Plato conceives an ideal state, although the means he suggests for forming this state are purely hypothetical, not having been attempted by him or anyone else. The speaker pointed out that many of the ideas of Plato might be applicable in our government of the modern day.

BAND PLAYS AT OPENING OF WATSONTOWN THEATRE

Susquehanna University's Band, under the direction of Prof. Erase Allison, presented a concert in Watstown on Wednesday evening, March 1. The concert was given from the stage of the recently opened Lyceum Theatre in Watstown and was well received by the theatre-goers.

The program was similar to that given by the Band a few weeks ago in Lewistown and was as follows: Alma Mater, Stepping Along (Goldman), Country Gardens (Grainger), Sylvia (Speaks), with vocal by Roland Pritchard, and Marche Slav (Tschai-kowsky).

I could not comprehend how dreams could fade
When from my very soul they had been made.

And I was happy for I did not know Fate had decreed that dreams must come and go.

I watched my dream take shape until at last
I thought it could not slip beneath my crisp.
But dreams are funny things, I soon found out.

They fade and die just when you are about
To realize them. Mine did vanish so.
Fled from my sight, just where I do not know.

I lost my dream. I watched it fade and die.
And for a while in bitterness I'd cry,
"Dreams are for fools. I'll never dream again."

But soon my heart became as it had been.
And foolish as I am, I dream anew.
For I'm still young and optimistic too.
Do Do.

S. S. D. Alumnae Here At Mid-Winter Union

Sigma Sigma Delta's Alumnae held their mid-winter reunion on Saturday, March 4. A business meeting was held in the Sorority Room at 3:30 P. M. At this time the girls decided to offer a prize to the student having the highest average for the entire year. The prize is offered to any girl in the sorority. The reward will be made at the alumnae reunion in June.

The meeting was followed by a banquet to which were invited the honorees, activities and pledges of the sorority. Misses Grace Minnig, Amelia Krapp, and Rita Dillon, the presidents of the alumnae, active and pledge groups, gave short addresses. The table was attractively decorated in green and white, the sorority colors.

Most of the alumnae remained for the basket-ball game with P. M. C. In addition to all the actives and pledges, the following attended: Misses Lucy Irving, Emily Sweetman, Catherine Doyer, Thelma Grebs, Edith Erdley, Margaret Fink, Martha Gessner, Nancy Leonore, and Grace Minnig.

Seniors Occupy Second Place in Cage League

Seniors won the only interclass basketball game to be played during the past week, by defeating the Sophomores, 24-15, on Monday evening, February 27.

The Seniors were enabled to advance into second place in the league standings by this victory.

Truckenmiller led the Senior attack with three baskets, while Gemberling counted five with a basket and three charity throws, and Ahl the same with two baskets and a foul.

Theologians Can Cause Trouble
The Juniors can still be beaten out for second half honors by a slight possibility. If they are defeated in their remaining game with the Theologians, and if the Seniors in turn down the Parsons, the Seniors will tie for first place in the second half.

V. M. C. A. HOLDS FIRST OF MEETINGS DURING LENT

Y. M. C. A. held a meeting in the Y room of Hassinger Hall on Sunday afternoon at one-thirty. This meeting was the first of a series of devotional meetings which are to be held weekly during Lent. These weekly meetings, however, will be held regularly on Wednesday evenings at nine-thirty, and will be in charge of various members of the Y. The topics discussed will be taken from a pamphlet published by the State Y. M. C. A. which is entitled "The Fellowship of Prayer." All members of the Y are urged to be present at these devotional services which at no time will exceed a half hour in length.

Faculty Represented at Capitol Faculty Meet

Dr. A. William Ahl and Dr. Paul J. Overbo attended the Seventh Annual Faculty Conference of Eastern Pennsylvania in the Penn-Harris Hotel at Harrisburg on Saturday. President G. Morris Smith served on the invitation committee for this conference.

"The Leadership of Jesus and Life Today" was the subject selected as the conference theme for 1933. The program began at ten o'clock in the morning, with President H. W. A. Hanson of Gettysburg College, as chairman.

victory but they just couldn't keep the place in the closing minutes of the game.

Captain McGeehan, playing his last game for the Crusaders, played a stellar game at the guard post and the crowd applauded him as he trotted from the floor near the end of the game. Alexander was high scorer for the Orange and Maroon with twelve points and Bruce Worthington, who was also ending his collegiate basketball career, was a close second with eleven counters.

Kawal, lanky forward for the Cadets, captured scoring honors for the game as he swished the nets from all angles for a total of twenty-two points. Cook and Finch, guards on the Red and Gold team, showed that they were something besides football stars, as they each registered eight tallies in the second half. Although they experienced great difficulty in the first half in getting through the stubborn defense of the Crusaders, they hit their stride in the latter part of the second period and managed to outscore the Orange and Maroon.

Debaters Lose and Win Over Week-end

Encounter With Ursinus Results in Losses; Affirmative Victorious in Franklin and Marshall Clash

NOVEL DECISION MADE

Audience Gave Decision Before and After Hearing Speakers

Susquehanna forensic teams lost twice and won once in week-end encounters with Ursinus and Franklin and Marshall respectively, concerning the timely war-debt problem. The college affirmative defeated a heretofore undefeated Franklin and Marshall negative aggregation.

The local negative team dropped a 2-1 decision to the Ursinus affirmative on the Steele Science Hall platform on Thursday evening, while their affirmative team makes were taking a similar defeat at the hands of the Bear negative. Not to be daunted by the first defeat of their eastern trip, the Susquehanna affirmative handed the F. and M. Negative a marginal defeat in an audience decision.

Affirmative Eastern Trip
The affirmative team suffered their first defeat at the hands of the Ursinus negative on Thursday evening by a 2-1 decision.

A part of the following day was spent in visiting Valley Forge, where the men enjoyed the music of the chapel bells playing in honor of the state of Maryland. The traveling team was composed of Mr. Alexander Youngerman, Mr. Henry Casler, Mr. Edwin Clapper, Mr. Jerome Guas, formerly a member of the negative team, acted as alternate in lieu of the regular affirmative alternate. On Friday evening the affirmative team concluded its debate tour at Lancaster with Marshall negative.

Novel Decision at Lancaster
At Lancaster both the affirmative and negative teams consented to permit the audience to cast the deciding vote. The two regular judges each handed down opposite decisions and the audience was called upon to cast its verdict. The audience cast an overwhelming vote for Susquehanna affirmative, this being one of the few times that an audience voted against the members of its own team. In a period of eight debates for the F. and M. negative this was their first defeat.

Band Stages Annual Concert at Seibert

Difficult Program Contains "March Victorious" Written by Professor Allison, and Solo Selections

The Susquehanna University Band, under the direction of Professor Elrose Allison, presented its fourth annual concert last Thursday evening at eight fifteen in Seibert Hall Chapel. A small but appreciative audience heard this concert, which was of a much more difficult type than the ones of former years, as well as being rendered in a more delightful manner.

One of the features of the concert was a march written and arranged by Prof. Allison, which has been entitled "March Victorious." Solos by Richard Shade and Roland Pritchard were received with enthusiasm.

The complete program was as follows:
On the Mall Goldman
First Norwegian Rhapsody, Christensen
Sylvia—Song Speaks
Soloist, Mr. Pritchard
Concert a l'Antissa from Rigolotto, Verdi-Bassi
Soloist, Mr. Shade
Country Gardens Grainger
Selection from Natoma Herbert (Intermission)

MISS ETHEL FOX

S. U. Women Attend Faculty Members at Bucknell Meeting Dinner With Dutch

Miss Naomi K. Hade is Vice President of the Association of University Women Which Met Last Week

Miss Naomi K. Hade attended the monthly meeting of the American Association of University Women last evening, March 13, at Hunt Hall, Bucknell University. Miss Hade is Vice President of the organization and therefore attended the Executive Board dinner at 6:30 p. m. before the regular group meetings.

After the dinner, there was a meeting of the individual groups at which various subjects were discussed. In one division, Adolescent Psychology was discussed; in another, International Relations was the subject; and in another, the theme was Literature. In the last group, Miss Hade spoke on Modern Poetry. Immediately after these discussions or lectures, all the groups went into a larger room where they were addressed by Professor Frank G. Davis, of Bucknell, who spoke on "Pennsylvania's New Plan for Public School Education."

The A. U. W. is an International organization with its headquarters at Washington. The purpose of the organization is academic; its program, however, is flexible. In order to belong to it, one must be graduated from an approved college, or have had two years' residence in one.

Some of the women affiliated with Susquehanna, or from Selingsgrove, who belong, are Miss Naomi K. Hade, Miss Lucy T. Irving, Mrs. Martha S. Dodson, Mrs. R. Whitney Tucker, Miss Ruth Horn, Miss Alice Bickelstaff, Miss Thelma Ahmaga, and Miss Bedtrice Herman.

FRESHMAN STAFF WILL EDIT NEXT WEEK'S "SUSQUEHANNA"

Next week's issue of "The Susquehanna" will be put out by the Freshman Class, under the direction of Vernon Ferster, editor-in-chief of the issue.

The Freshman Staff will take over the paper entirely, holding a staff meeting in Gastavus Adolus Hall at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon, as is the practice of the regular staff.

There will be no class of the regular staff at this time.

NOTED SOPRANO AND PIANIST WILL APPEAR ON SUSQUEHANNA PLATFORM

Miss Ethel Fox and Miss Leonora Cortez, Famed Internationally, Will Appear Tomorrow Evening in Last Star Course of Year

Ethel Fox, prima donna soprano, and Leonora Cortez, pianist of international reputation, will appear at Seibert Chapel Hall in a joint recital tomorrow evening at eight-fifteen o'clock. This will be the fourth and last number on the Susquehanna University Star Course for this season.

Miss Fox, one of the most gifted of the younger American artists today, made her debut in 1927 with the San Carlo Opera Company and was immediately engaged to sing in many leading roles. Since then she has continued to meet with decided success, being acclaimed not only for her lovely voice, which some critics describe as "luscious," but also for marked dramatic talent and histrionic ability which she has displayed in her rendition of her various operatic roles.

Included in her concert repertoire are songs in four languages, while her operatic repertoire consists of sixteen roles, which she sings in French and Italian. Miss Fox has sung in the leading parts of Musetta in "La Boheme," Gretel in "Haensel and Gretel," Micaela in "Carmen," Marguerite in "Faust," Julietta in "Tales of Hoffman," and Nedda in "Pagliacci."

Miss Leonora Cortez has been acclaimed as a brilliant technician and artist, the pianoforte by critics of both Europe and America. She is noted for a vigor and power which, however, does not operate to the disadvantage of her attractive tone and refinement of style.

"She is literally a little giant among the little giants, and she bespeaks a language with which they are all acquainted," says Harold Strickland, of the "Brooklyn Daily Times," in review of Miss Cortez. The pianist drew much favorable comment from New York critics following her recitals in Carnegie Hall last year.

Her rendition of difficult numbers by Schumann, Chopin, and Mendelssohn has been found to draw particular words of commendation. Scriabine, Scarlatti, Brahms, Liszt, Saint-Saens, Debussy, and Schubert are among others of favorite composers who appear frequently upon the programs of Miss Cortez.

These two artists present a high standard of entertainment which students and friends of Susquehanna are seldom afforded; in consequence a capacity audience is anticipated.

S. U. SENIOR BROADCASTS FROM STATION WJBU

Mrs. Margaret Benner Burns, a senior in the Conservatory of Music, presented a recital over station WJBU Lewisburg, on Saturday afternoon, March 11, from 5:30 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Burns was assisted by Mr. Chester B. Steffen, tenor.

The Purpose of High School

English: Real and Ideal

By Arthur Herman Wilson, Ph.D.
(Ed. Note.—This is the first of a series of articles which "The Susquehanna" plans to run, written by members of the faculty, alumni, or any prominent person who is connected with Susquehanna. The material in this week's article embodies the substance of an address delivered by Dr. Wilson before the Pennsylvania State Education Association, at Scranton a few weeks ago.)

Actual facts justify to my mind our asking what the purpose is of High School English, and suggest that we are not altogether successful in our present and general teaching method for the subject. First, let me offer the real and the ideal functions of English in High School, and, second, the facts that support a claim for alteration of method.

The real purpose of High School English, it seems to me, is the education of our young people to an accurate and correct use of their language. That is the whole duty of High School English to the commonwealth. Teaching literature apparently does not do that. Teaching grammar, through frequent themes and exercises, does accomplish that purpose.

English classical literature perhaps could be sent to serve this purpose if it were nineteenth-century literature, discussed and carefully analyzed by teacher and class, for its sentence structure, diction, and methods of gaining effect. But, reading Shakespeare in the original Elizabethan English (of the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries)—a torture to which High School students are subjected, not only wastes time and intelligence, but also acquaints the impressionable and struggling student with many Elizabethanisms in speech that are absolutely incorrect today; tautology and loose agreement of subject and predicate, for example. Furthermore, many Elizabethan words do not even have the same meaning today. Compare: wink, cancel, character, fancy, modern and proper. And there is no time and no need for a High School student to develop an Elizabethan vocabulary. No wonder he is as disgusted with Shakespeare's "Hamlet" as he is with Caesar's "Gallic Wars."

The safest way to teach accuracy and correctness in English is the method that emphasizes actual composition, weekly or semi-weekly, either through oral or written discourse by the students.

High School English would have an ideal purpose, of course, if it could also present the whole picture of English literature, through the reading of many representative works, but its real purpose is to present the whole picture of English grammar, not of English literature, so as to fulfill its duty to the State, and I maintain either that there is too much emphasis today upon English literature in the High Schools, or that our teachers are showing that they are incapable of teaching English grammar. I have reason to believe that our teachers are capable, and that the faulty rhetoric of High School graduates is due to too much time spent upon unabsorbed prescriptions of English literature.

For instance, if you believe that it is desirable for High School students to be acquainted with Shakespeare, let us do that teaching thoroughly, but with less time, less pain, and more comprehension for the immature mind. Familiarize the student with the great stories of Shakespeare through Charles (Concluded on Page 4)

WHO IS GOING TO ELECT THE MAY QUEEN?

It may seem early to be worrying about the choice of May Queen, but as a rule most of the worrying occurs after the selection has been made.

Should the present method be continued at Susquehanna? In former years the men had the right to cast a vote; they forfeited this right by abusing their privilege. Now the women seem in danger of committing a similar offense by making the election a matter of political manoeuvres.

We are not trying to create the impression that recent selections have been unjust; we are merely suggesting that such a situation appears possible and probable, sooner or later, under the present system. It would be better to achieve an adjustment to this problem before there can be an occasion of hard feelings. For the same reason we wish to face the situation early enough to avoid an apparent motive for wanting a change.

At many colleges the choice is made by student vote; others decide through their yearbook or college paper (we withdraw, however, from such a possible nomination!); still others employ outside and impartial judges.

Perhaps there are other methods which have proven satisfactory. Possibly you can suggest a new system entirely. A happy solution would certainly be welcomed by all concerned.

How about a few suggestions?

NAUGHTY SENIORS?

Do you go to chapel?

Yes, I go to chapel now.

Why do you say "now"?

Because I don't know who is taking the Senior roll.

Won't they tell you who is taking it?

No, because then we don't go.

Naughty, naughty Senior, not to go to chapel when you know who is taking the roll . . .

Kindergarten stuff? Perhaps. It is necessary to resort to kindergarten methods when dealing with kindergarten tricks.

What kind of an example do you suppose "naughty Senior" is setting for the alleged inferior Freshman?

Perhaps you don't like Chapel? Whose fault is that? Who asked you to come to Susquehanna? Didn't you select it of your own free will, and agree to abide by its rules and regulations?

Come now, naughty Senior, and go to Chapel like a good little boy. It's only a few weeks until moving-up day.

Think you can stand a little religion that long?

DON'T STUDY TOO HARD

It seems that Susquehanna students spend every available moment with their noses buried in their books.

The total number in the audience at last week's debate was four; on the same evening the total of students at the Band Concert could not have been much more than forty. There was no admission charge for either event.

Where was everyone? Studying? We doubt it.

But why such a ridiculous attendance?

Yet the students deliberately turn their backs on such free diversion. What do they want for extra-curricular activity in college life? A burlesque show, a carnival, a bull-fight, or what?

We give up. You'll have to tell us.

AMUSEMENTS

Tonight is the last showing of "No Man of Her Own," with Clark Gable and Carole Lombard heading a fine supporting cast. Gable is cast as a card sharp, with Miss Lombard offering scintillating lines and personality. "American Madness," featuring Walter Huston, will be shown tomorrow night. A great picture, described by critics as the first picture that looks "The Depression" straight in the eye.

Edmund Lowe, supported by the inimitable James Gleason and lovable Dickie Moore, appears in "The Devil is Driving," on Thursday. Friday brings an outstanding picture, "Silver Dollar," with Edward Robinson, Alaine MacMahon, and Bebe Daniels. Robinson is cast in an excellent role, as prospector, store-keeper, mayor, lieutenant-governor, and U. S. senator, the setting being the early mining days of Colorado. "Mysterious Rider," Saturday's feature, is taken from a Zane Grey story,

POTPOURRI

. presenting collegiana's shifting scene, garbed in modernity's robes but touching all times and all climates.

This week: Cedar Crest naivete; boon to the unemployed; Princetonian script; the Dean walks home.

Very naive feminine inmates of Cedar Crest on the Leigh express were asked as to why "Soft, tender, violet-scented" thinks like young men being kissed by "big, awkward, and bayrum-scented" plebeians like men.

Despite suspicion that familiarity with the scent of bayrum on men must mean contact, masculine antics sometimes give us pause to wonder. At Marquette University, for instance, all fraternity residents have their names, characteristics, and peculiarities listed with the police.

History cites Napoleon, Rabelais, Lord Byron, and many others as woman-haters, but its pages speak of no women returning that feeling.

It is also of curiosity to note that co-eds at the University of Missouri cannot take a bath before six in the morning; cannot use a taxi without permission from the dean of women; are forbidden to speak to male students on the street for more than three minutes at a time; and must have a chaperone when going to the dentist. Women's I. Q. at this institution is evidently not thought of very highly. We may, in addition, deduce that Sweetbrier College females do not possess a Cedar Crest attitude, since a notice was recently posted there: "Under no circumstances are girls allowed to enter the barn opposite the orchard."

Colleges may show specific examples of their utility during depression days. Haverford, Lafayette, Rutgers, and Villanova, for instance, open their classes to unemployed. Out-of-work men, usually with a minimum age limit of twenty-five years, may come as auditors, and thus secure training to better fit them for future service. As auditors, the unemployed are properly registered, have use of library facilities, but receive no credit toward a degree. Says Dr. Watson, head of the Haverford College faculty committee: the college . . . "is not becoming philanthropic; it is simply discharging a part of its social debt to the community in a time of unusual conditions. It hopes thereby to turn a period of monotonous futility into a constructive opportunity for certain men who can advantageously accept what the College has to offer."

The "Daily Princetonian," that university's undergraduate newspaper, admirably relieves inconvenience for its own students, $500 worth of script to relieve student financial embarrassment during the bank holiday was printed in 25-cent notes, paid for by individual checks, and accepted by down-town merchants. Each note is signed and guaranteed by the newspaper's business manager; merchants are able to cash the script upon completion of the bank moratorium.

Columbia, too, has felt the depression. Its gifts for 1932 were only $2,900,000 as compared with $4,100,000 for 1931.

The first complete Alumni Register of Columbia has been compiled. It contains 92,721 names, included every man or woman who has attended for at least one year since 1754. With an alumni of that strength, the University should have, however, few enrollment worries these days.

Times change. Following a dance at Gettysburg College, the Dean found his car captured by two young people. Politely tipping his hat he told Mrs. Dean by the arm and walked home.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week, a triumph of screen artistry will be shown in "Farewell to Arms," the Hemingway novel being the plot, directed by Frank Borzage, and starring Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper.

Vesper services on Sunday evening were in charge of those students at Susquehanna who had been Campers at Camp Nawakwa, Bigsville, Pa. BACKSTAGE

(Giving the observations, sensations, and gyrations of one of the band-boys just before the big moment.)

Four minutes until curtain time. Thirty musicians and one tympani player, hindered by starched fronts and formal collars, tramped through aisles of chairs and slipped nervously into their respective seats.

Saxophones and clarinets moaned and squeaked at will until the leader threatened sudden death by a heavy music stand to the next performer who played a sour note. Complete silence was not immediately forthcoming and from somewhere in the percussion section a strangled snicker escaped.

Steel chairs grated and three or four throats were cleared in unison. A cymbal tinkled on its high perch until a misplaced foot of the alto saxophone player brought it to the floor with a guttural "pha". On its descent the cymbal tipped the music-laden stand of the tuba players, who endangered their lives in a concerted effort to regain the scattered scores. It was a vain attempt and it required the back-bending skill of the four trumpet players to recover the music.

The conductor muttered, "Let's tune, fellows; all right clarinet, give us a 'C'. The first clarinetist managed to force a sad resemblance of the note through the instrument, and immediately a babel of brass and wood-winds took up the required pitch.

A late-comer from the drum section stumbled through the entire band in an effort to find a chair. A burned-out cigarette stub and a worn, brown hat still remained with the drummer. He removed the hat with diffidence, after locating a chair, and placed the stub between the bass drum stays where he could easily get it at intermission.

Meanwhile thirteen wads of chewing-gum were deposited beneath musicians' chairs and were replaced in dry mouths by mints taken from tinfol packages.

"Listen, fellows," this time the director's voice boomed, "we have exactly one minute to get our numbers arranged. Here they are! Get them in order on your music stands. First—" Here the voice was lost midst the rustle of pages and last minute tuning.

"Did anyone see the bull-fiddle music?" stormed the string bass player. A bit of it was found in every folio.

Some of the veterans on the stage consciously relaxed as curtain time arrived, but the rest grew tense as the cold fingers played with valves and keys. Some foreheads were marked with a moisture played to stage fright and nearly everyone scanned the curtain with interest.

The director stepped off the stage with one or two words which had a semblance of "Let's go, gang."

Curtains swished and the tension relaxed, for there was not one person visible in the first fifteen rows of seats. Conscientiously each bandman mentally noted that the crowd must have gone to the debate. Then the lone tympani player struck a barrel-tone and the concert was on.

A TOOTER.

What's this, Alma?

The tale comes from the Muhlenberg Weekly that one Alma, of Susquehanna, has quite subjugated one of the males from our neighbor institution. It seems that a young man named Herbie couldn't stand the sight of an olive—until he met our own Alma at the Lutheran Conference on the campus recently—but when HIS Alma took two olives, Herbie took three."

Incidentally, the writer refers to our co-eds as "the so-called fairer sex at Susquehanna" Just what, we wonder, did he mean by that?

The Co-ed's Lament

Why is it that the men I want
 And those who care for me
 Have never yet turned out to have
 The same identity?

Amel! Moan of the Male

Amel!

Our negative debaters ran up against a new one the other night. After having abused the quotations used by the opposition, the boys heard the gentleman from Ursinus, the last speaker of the debate, calmly state that the author of the quotations he had been using was the same author who had written the reference book being used by our negative. Now it happens that it wasn't the same author, but being the last speaker, the affirmative supporter from Ursinus could afford to make such a bluff. The local boys could only fidget about, muttering veiled imprecations and casting such scornful looks as only a momentarily baffled debater can cast at his opponent.

And that brings up the story of a successful coup enacted by our own Joseph Malmom way back in '32 down at Lebanon Valley The opposition had stressed the waste in tremendous advertising outlays of cigarette companies, using a large chart with statistics during the course of the debate. They maintained that there was absolutely no use to be found in such advertising. The Mighty Malmom, rising for his rebuttal, nonchalantly strolled over to the chart his opponent had used, reversed it, and remarked that certainly some use could be found: "The side exposed by Malmom revealed a huge Lucky Strike ad, used as in window displays!"

Tricky, these debaters Come around some time.

The service was in charge of Miss Alfarata Stamets. Robert Clark led the opening devotions with the reading of the Scripture and Prayer, then Miss Louise Mehring introduced the speaker of the evening—Miss LaVene Grove. Miss Grove is Associate Director of Camp Nawakwa and, at present, a teacher in Harrisburg. She gave a glowing description of the ideals and objectives of camp life, and brought to the minds of many the real worth of four-fold education to young people during the summer months.

Miss Frances Stambaugh sang the camp song "Nawakwa," accompanied on the piano by Miss Beatrice Gentler, and the service closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Co-eds Control Cash Crisis During Holiday by Harvest from Hamburgs

Love and hamburgers seem to keep the average college student contented. Since love will usually find a way, the hamburger remained as the alternative means of combating the bank holiday, and thus it was that some of our more or less resourceful co-eds converted the national morale into ready cash.

A notice was posted on Seibert Hall's eagerly followed bulletin board, early in the morning, so that the residents might pass many times during the day and thereby strengthen the stimulus-response bonds that function when being confronted by the image of hamburger and its subsequent reactions in the abode of the gastric juices.

Dr. James F. Cooke, Etude Editor, Spoke at Club Meeting Here

Dr. James Francis Cooke, editor of the "Etude," music magazine, delivered an interesting address at the March meeting of the In-and-Out-Band-Susquehanna Valley Club at Seibert Chapel Hall last Tuesday evening.

In his talk, Dr. Cooke discussed the correlation between business and music, pointing out those musicians who are also successful in the field of business.

Dr. Cooke also spoke favorably of some of the music which is being turned out as jazz in New York today, saying that certain of such numbers possessed some clever features of harmony.

Preceding Dr. Cooke's address, the Susquehanna University Choral Club sang three numbers, featuring one of the Etude editor's own compositions, "Of Carolina."

Dr. Cooke is president of the Presser Foundation Scholarship, which awards a scholarship each year to a student at Susquehanna. Miss Audra Martz, of Sunbury, and Mr. William Caruth, of Wilkes-Barre, are the present holders of this scholarship.

Juniors Win Final To Capture Crown

Victors in Interclass Basketball Were Undeclared During Both Halves of the Schedule

By defeating a stubborn Theological team, the Juniors captured the championship of the Interclass Basketball League last week, finishing their season without a single defeat. Since the Juniors won both halves of the competition, no playoff will be necessary. The Theologians moved into a tie for second place with the Seniors, defeating the latter, 26-18, in the deciding game last week.

The final standings are as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Juniors	4	0	1.000
Seniors	2	2	.500
Theologs	2	2	.500
Sophomores	1	3	.250
Freshmen	1	3	.250

Theologs Down Seniors
Defeating the Seniors, 26-18, the Theologs pushed into second place in the inter-class basketball league. Holman took scoring honors for the winning team by registering eleven of his team-mates' points.

By virtue of this victory the Theologs had a chance of winning the second half, if they had defeated the Juniors in the final battle.

After disposing of the fighting Parsons by a 25-15 score, the Juniors are now the sole possessors of the inter-class basketball crown. The third year men, by virtue of their hard work and superior playing annexed both halves of the contest. Oberdorf, tall center and backbone of the Junior five, won scoring laurels by sinking four buckets. Score:

Freshman Leads in Basketball Scoring

John Naegeli, member of the Freshman class and consistent point-getter on the Susquehanna quintet, captured high scoring honors for the season with a total of eighty-five points in twelve games in which he played. Although he was used only part of the time during the first half of the season and was unable to play the last three games because of injuries, he proved to be a valuable player on Coach Ullery's five as he zipped the nets from difficult angles of the floor.

Second honors went to Bruce Worthington, member of the Senior class and running mate with Naegeli at the forward position. Registering a total of sixty-eight points, he displayed a fine brand of basketball after he was shifted to the varsity in the middle of the season. Captain Bob McGeehan, also a member of the Senior class and a stellar guard on the Crusader team, scored only Bob Sassaman, Freshman as they registered forty-eight and forty-seven counters respectively.

Following is the list of the highest scores:

Naegeli	85
B. Worthington	68
McGeehan	48
Sassaman	47
Hess	38
Schlegel	29
Alexander	22
Eisenhower	18

The Crusaders had a total of 492 points while their opponents had 444 counters in fifteen games.

A CHARMING WEEK-END? "THOOEY!" SAYS ALBERT

"Man is a slave to the machine age!" emphatically assert Albert Meyer, Lou Schivo, and Max Elair in an interview following their week-end trip to Atlantic City.

The boys started their little excursion in high spirits. However, it was after four o'clock in the morning when they reached their destination, and that hour is not a pleasant time to reach any place without the assurance of satisfactory shelter.

What is most significant is that it was also very cold. Now automobile radiators have a peculiar habit of freezing up under such conditions, and, after a check-up it was found that the total number of blankets in the party was one.

What to do if the radiator froze, their method of return would be badly affected. If they froze, perhaps there would be no need of returning.

Anyway, the radiator finally received the benefit of the lone blanket, and the boys shiveringly awaited the long delayed coming of dawn.

Adding insult to injury, Albert and his companions were hailed on the return trip as potential garage-bandits by an alert patrolman.

"Ay tank ay stay home, now," says Albert from his perch on the radiator (not that of the automobile, however) where he is still in the process of thawing out.

Technocracy Subject of Business Meeting

The Business Association of Susquehanna University held its monthly meeting last night in Room 300 of G. A. Building, at which time interesting questions were discussed by members of the association. The topic for discussion was on the subject of Technocracy.

The following questions were discussed: "What is Technocracy and how did it originate?" by John Hassay; "In what respect does Technocracy condemn the present system?" by James Bonnell; "How does Technocracy propose to remedy the present economic and political defects?" by Fred Carl; "What will be the conditions of life under a system proposed by Technocracy?" by Selin Dockey; "Are the statistics and examples of Technocracy correct and accurate?" by Ruth C. Henry; "What are the theoretical weaknesses of Technocracy's proposals?" by William Carolan; and "What are the views of engineers, economists, business men, and politicians on Technocracy?" by Dorothea Meyer.

After a general discussion, the regular business meeting was held, presided over by the president, John Ballentine, at which time a proposed constitution was voted upon.

B. & K. Pledges Down Elders in Court Tilt

Bond and Key's neophytes taught their future brethren a few tricks on the basketball floor last Friday afternoon, defeating the upperclassmen in a fast finish, 26-22.

With Oberdorf sinking two long shots, the Members brought the score up to 24-22 with a few minutes to go, but the Pledges drew away immediately on clever shots by Hess and Fasold.

Jack Naegeli registered ten points for the winners with Hess counting seven; Worthington and Oberdorf were high for the Members with eight and seven markers respectively.

THE PURPOSE OF FULGH SCHOOL ENGLISH; REAL AND IDEAL

Lamb's recantation of the six great tragedies, and his sister's version of the twelve indicative comedies. You who is interested in story and will remember of Shakespeare in this way. Furthermore, individual study could be made of many of the great speeches in the plays. There is more profit to this than there is to wading painfully through "Hamlet" and "Macbeth," by audible and dreary reading in class.

And there is more time left to be spent upon grammar. Every student who graduates from High School should understand the structure of a sentence, and be able to put that understanding into practice. Every High School graduate does not give evidence of such an understanding today.

What is the proof?

I have recently completed an investigation of sixty-nine accredited colleges and universities in New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania to discover if those institutions recognized the problem of the college entrant whose High School training did not appear to educate him to college standard. (And the college standard simply demands that a student shall arrive upon the campus with the education equipment necessary to construct a sentence intelligently.) The results are arresting.

Thirty-one of the sixty-nine colleges give a special extracurricular, coaching course in English grammar for first-year men. Ten colleges provide for this same special training by placing their Freshmen in graded sections; the lowest group receives particular training in English grammar. Twenty-five colleges for various reasons do not face the situation, but only a few claim that it does not exist for them. And three provide special training for foreign students. Therefore, forty-one of sixty-nine of the best colleges in three states are absolutely and actively engaged in coaching first-year men to meet their "first-year" standards. And the percentage of Freshmen so considered varies from six to one hundred, with the average choice at twenty-five per cent. The favored time spent on this coaching course appears generally to be three classes a week until satisfactory work results. All of these colleges employ placement tests to determine immediately in their matriculation the state of English preparation. Twenty-one colleges use their own tests, and others express choice for the Columbia, Iowa, Cross, and Purdue examinations.

My solution to this problem is not that we must discontinue the teaching of literature in High School, but that we must emphasize the grammar-content in our High School English courses.

INDOOR TRACK MEET TO BE HELD IN ALUMNI GYMNASIUM THURSDAY NIGHT

All Classes Enter Participants in Track and Field Events. Both Men and Women to Take Part. Freshmen Hope to Make Good Showing

The intramural track meet will be held in the Alumni gymnasium Thursday evening, March 23, at 7:30. Track Coach Herb Snell and student director William Swann will be in charge. Some of the officials who will assist them in conducting the meet are:

Starter: George S. Schoch.
Clerk of the course: Dan McKelvey.
Times and judges: Prof. W. V. Ullery, Prof. John Houtz, Dr. Boeder, Mr. Ralph Carter, Henry J. Sommer, and Marlin Botteiger.

The meet is open to all members, both women and men of any of the four classes. Members of the varsity track team are eligible to participate in the indoor meet.

There are two persons and one team in school at the present time who hold records. Bill Swann holds the record for the 880 yard run. He expects to lower his present record of 2 minutes 14.3 seconds established in 1931. Harold Kramer holds the record of 6 feet 10 inches in the fence vault. He is also expected to better his existing record. The class of '33's relay team established the record in the mile relay in 1931. They are determined to break their own record. There are several Freshmen who have expressed their determination to equal or better the existing records, and we expect big things from them. Ken Alexander has been elected captain of the Freshman track team, and is gradually selecting the entrants for each event. Ken says that the class of '36 is going to win the meet without a bit of trouble.

The winner of the meet will be determined by the point system. Five points are awarded for first place, three for second and one for third. In case of a tie, the points for the place tied for are divided between the tying contestants. The class which secures the largest total number of points is, of course, the winner. The decision of the judges is final.

The list of events and the order in which they will be run is as follows:

- Track
1. All up (Club) Trials.
 2. All up Club (Girls) Finals.
 3. 70 yard dash
 4. Mile run
 5. 210 yard dash
 6. 880 yard run

Hopping Happily at the Box Social

Big boxes, little boxes, shoe boxes, cake tins, green boxes with white ribbons, white boxes with green ribbons, pink ribbons, yellow ribbons! Seibertarians with boxes tucked under their arms, looked as if they were going to a country on Friday evening.

The social in the gymnasium was a success with a capital S. Ted Hutchison's Crusaders kept the dancers on the floor. Bell hops Stitzer and Stonesifer sold peanuts and such. At intermission, our clever campus auctioneer, Luke Rhoads, auctioned off the boxes. And who said the boys were broke? The banks surely must have opened, or where did the money come from? A way to a man's pocketbook is through his stomach, and pocketbooks opened wide. Pity the poor men who were bid and over-bid for the box, they thought was the one and only's. And what was that we heard about one of the faculty members bidding against a student for a Frosh girl's box?

After all the boxes were sold, card tables and benches were transformed into lunch counters, and the fun began. Seibertarians must have received

Eight Baseball Games and Six Track Contests Comprise Spring Program

There has been a slight cut in the number of engagements on Susquehanna University's Spring sports program as approved by the Athletic Board and announced by Luther D. Grossman, Athletic Director. The schedule slashing appears in the baseball division.

This Spring the Orange and Maroon diamond patrons will be limited to eight contests. The schedule is evenly divided; four games will be played at home and four away.

Last year the diamond program consisted of twelve engagements. Hugh Brininger of McClure, Pa., will captain the nine this season while John Hassay of Amherst, Mass., will serve as student manager. Head athletic member Bill Ullery, former St. Louis Brown first baseman will again coach the baseball team.

Track activities will again be introduced by inter-class competition. The first collegiate competition this season will be the Crusaders appearance at the Penn Relays on April 29th at Philadelphia. The only change on the track schedule this year is Drexel replacing Washington College in one of the dual meets.

John Meyers, State College, Pa., and Bill Swann, Millheim, Pa., will serve as co-captains of track this season. Charles Lauver of Selinsgrove is the student manager and Luther D. Grossman is the track coach. Coach Grossman will be assisted by Herb Snell, assistant football coach.

The Spring schedules follow:

boxes of food from home last week. When the boxes were opened, there was disclosed sandwiches, cakes, pickles, and what have you? Every variety of food from chicken to lolly-pops.

Dancing continued. The orchestra added their bit to making the evening a success, entertaining us with "Dinah" and other novelty numbers. The entire crowd was in the mood for the affair. Everyone had come prepared for a good time and received it. The party was noisy, informal, and novel. It broke up all too soon with everyone wondering whether informal dances couldn't be held often.

A ST. PATRICK CELEBRATION
The old saying, "a good time was had by all" was carried out to perfection at the St. Patrick's Party sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. last Thursday evening. The clever games, conducted by Frances Hubler, taxed the alertness of every participant. Some of the results were quite amusing.

At the close of the party, the entertainers served refreshments; the green punch was especially attractive.

Veteran Batteries Prepare for Spring Baseball Season

The arms of Susquehanna University's hurlers, who have been working in the Alumni Gymnasium for the past three weeks, are becoming un-ruly, as they are anxious to put everything in their deliveries. Coach Bill Ullery, well-known baseball figure, has been showing these men every trick he knows in the pitching department and promises his charges that they will be getting down to real work on the outside diamond by the end of the month.

Susquehanna's mentor has already become optimistic about his pitching staff this year; regardless of the fact that he lost one of the best southpaws ever to twirl for the Orange and Maroon. His pitching corps this season will be headed by Hugh Brininger of McClure, captain of the nine this Spring. Several years ago Susquehanna's diamond leader gained prominence in the sport world by pitching a no-hit and no-run game in his first appearance in collegiate baseball. It has been noticed in his indoor work that the Orange and Maroon hurler has mastered several new deliveries and has greatly improved over previous seasons.

For speed ball pitching, Coach Ullery has a real prize package in Al Meyers, husky Wilkes-Barre boy who looks like a consistent winner this season. Because of his husky build, this big right-hander gets his body behind his throwing and as a result shows tremendous speed. Meyer seemed to have trouble with his control in former years but in his early season work-outs he has demonstrated that he has eliminated all this nervousness.

Left-handers that will be eligible for pitching assignments are Joe Maimon, Philadelphia, Pa., and James Yaros, Middletown, Pa. Maimon has been with the varsity squad for the past two years and has pitched some good ball. Throwing from the port-side, he does not go over so well with opposing batters. Yaros is a Freshman and untried but right now he looks very promising and Coach Ullery intends to give him plenty of grooming. Other pitchers that the Susquehanna mentor has to complete his staff include: Harold Kramer, Shamokin, Pa.; Richard Crankshaw, Philadelphia, Pa., and Kenneth Anderson, Petersburg, Pa.

Another factor in favor of Coach Ullery is the fact that he has the 1933 baseball season in that he will have a seasoned catcher to fill the vacancy left by the graduation of Maurice Shaffer last June. Bob Sassaman, a Freshman who has already captured varsity letters in two sports, is a finished receiver with plenty of experience. Sassaman was a former Williamsport high school and Peddie Prep School star athlete.

FRESHMEN ELECT CAPTAIN
The Freshmen boys held an important election in the gymnasium to decide who would be captain of the Freshman team for the indoor track meet. Kenneth Alexander and Kenneth Badger were nominated, but Alexander polled a few more votes than Badger. The class is quite confident of their ability to capture many of the honors.

Wolfe Besieges Seibert's Doors With a Vengeance! Co-Eds All Fall For Him

Little Carl Wolfe wants a "bicycle." Rea and Derick's are offering one to the child who gets the most votes by June. The other children in Selinsgrove have appealed to parents, friends, and neighbors to help them in securing votes, but Carl is of a more ingenious nature. In all the buying power of Selinsgrove, there was one, as he is untouched. He appealed to it.

Last Saturday morning, on the bulletin board of Seibert Hall, his appeal was posted.

"Dear girls:
I am trying to win a bicycle. At Rea and Derick's Drugstore. Will you help me? You get votes at the store when you buy something there. Will you please give them to Miss Diana Lixdas and she will

WHY WEAR CUSTOMS?

We Freshmen wish to make a plea for justice. Please, upper classmen, lend us your ears until we explain to you why we should not wear customs.

Most colleges allowed their Freshmen to cast off customs at the end of the first semester. The girls were also permitted to discard their customs at this time. Then, why aren't we fellows allowed to put away our dinks, black ties, and properly supported socks?

We know that we are just Freshmen—and what is lower than a Freshman?

Have we fellows disobeyed the rules laid down by the student council (except in a few cases)? Haven't we shown our class spirit? Hasn't the class contributed members to Susquehanna's athletic activities—and good ones, too?

In conclusion, aren't we trying to contribute what little we can to the interests of Susquehanna in all endeavors or whatever we have been called upon to do?

Please give us some consideration. We know you have just overlooked the problems of us Freshmen, and now we take the liberty to publish our plea for consideration by you upper-classmen.

IS OUR SYSTEM OF STUDENT GOVERNMENT FAIR?

In the study of mankind, we learn that with even the most primitive and savage peoples, a man was given some sort of trial before being punished for his alleged crime.

The ancient Greeks permitted a man to speak in self-defense before punishing him. We read in histories of Socrates' powerful and dignified speech in his own defense. Later in history we read of Roman courts: here again a man was given an opportunity to plead his cause. In the Middle Ages we find that even the barbaric Germanic tribes had trials of compurgation and ordeal.

But our student council resembles neither the Roman trial, nor the medieval compurgation and ordeals in meting out punishment to offending Freshmen. That a Freshman is lowly, we admit. But however low he may be we think he is deserving of a trial. We think that at least he should be allowed to speak in self-defense before the "paddles" are applied.

We make the suggestion that our student council give this matter due consideration and determine whether we Freshmen are entitled to that same respect accorded to the ancient barbarian.

DR. SMITH MAKES TRIP

During this past week President Smith made a trip through several southern localities in the interest of the University, incidentally visiting his home in Virginia. He made stops at the following cities: Carlisle, Chambersburg, Hagerstown, and Winchester. At Hagerstown, he addressed the Men's Sunday school class and the regular Sunday school. In the evening, he delivered the sermon. While there, he visited two of the men representatives on Susquehanna's Board of Directors, namely, M. P. Moler Sr., and Rev. Edward J. Harms. At Winchester he interviewed the heads of the Hanley High School.

"Bloomberg State Teachers College apparently also has trouble with compulsory chapel attendance. The Maaron and Gold comments thus:)

Why compulsory chapel? For this reason: A certain element of every student body cannot resist the temptation to "relax for an hour" probably in a way that would not be of any benefit whatsoever. Consequently our presence is requested in the auditorium where we can relax and yet be exposed to something that might be beneficial educationally and culturally. Don't kick. If we were not compelled, we would not go to chapel and would miss much. Ignorance is bliss, but who wants to be ignorant?

S. U. Football Men Note:

Roy E. Randall, former All-American quarterback and member of the famous Brown Iron-Men, has been selected as next year's football coach at Haverford College, succeeding Elwood A. Geiges who resigned the post last fall. (If the coach can make a team, Haverford should be a good team next year.)

ALUMNI NOTES

John M. Auten, '28, popular Sunbury high school teacher and assistant coach is refereeing quite a few large college basketball games in this section.

Dr. William M. Rearick, '34, Mifflinburg clergyman and president of the board of directors of Susquehanna University, has been assigned the lettered auto tag SU for this year.

Pupils of Mrs. Margaret Benner Burns, '13, were heard in songs and solos over station WJBU, Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Saturday, January 28th. These children range in age from five to ten years, and have been studying music with Mrs. Burns since September.

Benjamin K. Focht, '76, a graduate of Missionary Institute, was elected to the House of Representatives at the recent election. He has a very active career both in politics and in journalism. Since 1893 he has been in politics: first in the State House of Representatives, then in the State Senate, and finally in Lower House of Congress. He had also been Deputy of State under Governor John Fisher. At present he is editor of the Lewisburg Saturday News.

Formal announcement was made several months ago that the resignation of Jay M. Riden, '20, as football coach of Sunbury High School, effective at the close of the 1932-33 term has been received. Jay has served as football coach and instructor in Sunbury High for the past six years and has an enviable record as an instructor of mathematics and history in the high school.

Football Schedule For 1933 Announced

Difficult Schedule Will Include Five 1932 Rivals, Two Newcomers,
One Open Date

Two friendly enemies of 1932, an old rival returned, and one new comer arrived. Susquehanna University's schedule for the gridiron for the season of 1933, according to a schedule arranged by Luther D. Grossman, Director of Physical Education, and announced, after approved by the Athletic Board.

The newcomer on the Crusader schedule is St. Joseph College. Although new to a Susquehanna schedule, this Philadelphia institution has been having athletic relations with a number of the Crusader's opponents. In working out the new schedule, athletic authorities continue the policy to keep Susquehanna in her own class of colleges.

Susquehanna is glad to announce the return of Drexel Institute to their schedule after athletic relations have lapsed for a few years. In the past these two institutions had many happy relationships and it is hoped that a real athletic rivalry will be built up between these two colleges. With the addition of Drexel and St. Joseph to the Orange and Maroon schedule, four Main Line institutions will be on the gridiron menu for 1933 season.

The other two colleges representing the Main Line district are Haverford and Pennsylvania Military College.

In 1933 there will be one less home game, and Susquehanna rooters will be able to see their favorite in action on University Field in three engagements: Haverford (Parents' Day), Washington (Homecoming Day), and Pennsylvania Military College (Founders' Day).

The Crusaders will open the 1933 season, as it did in the 1932 undefeated season with the eleven of Moravian at Bethlehem, on October 7th, and will conclude on November 25th with Pennsylvania Military College at Selingsgrove.

The schedule follows:

Oct. 7—Moravian		Away
Oct. 14—Haverford		Home
Oct. 21—St. Joseph		Away
Oct. 28—Washington		Home
Nov. 4—Hartwick		Away
Nov. 11—Drexel		Away
Nov. 18—Open
Nov. 25—Pennsylvania Military College		Home

Hahnemann Dean Will Address Science Club

Tonight at 6:45 o'clock, in the lecture room of Steele Science Hall, Dr. W. A. Pearson, dean of Hahnemann Medical College, will address the Honor Science Club on, "Some Wonders of the Human Body."

The speaker is well known in medical circles and has an enviable social record. He is a past president of the Philadelphia Rotary Club, of which organization he had been president for several years. The Philadelphia Rotary Club is one of the largest and best chapters of the Rotarian organization in the world. He has also represented the Rotary Club in all parts of the world and is an internationally known Rotarian. Besides being dean of Hahnemann Medical College, Dr. Pearson is also Professor of Physiological Chemistry at that institution, and a lecturer in Chemistry at Hahnemann Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in Philadelphia and in the United States.

The Honor Science Club has been very fortunate to secure a speaker of Dr. Pearson's calibre and all students should take advantage of this opportunity to hear such an authority on the human body, speak about something that should be of interest to every student—musical students as well as science students. All are invited to attend this lecture.

S. U. Negatives Are Again Victors, 3-0

The negative team of Susquehanna University met the affirmative team of Albright College in the Seibert Hall Chapel last Monday night, March 13th.

The debaters again presented the disarmament question to the audience in a direct and sincere manner, each one endeavoring to prove his point in an emphatic and yet authoritative speech. The S. U. debating club has as members of its negative team: Joseph Madison, Harold Rowe, and William Morrow. The Albright affirmative speakers were Howard Mayor, Newton Danford and Harold Rosen.

Professor Gilbert, Susquehanna's debating coach, opened the debating evening by a word of greeting, and an explanation of debate procedure. He then in turn introduced the various speakers of the evening.

The judges selected for this debate were Reverend Norris, Reverend Snook, and Attorney R. Awlings. They rendered a three to nothing decision in favor of Susquehanna's negative team.

This team has brought more laurels to S. U. in that it has won another 3-0 decision.

Bass-Baritone	Mr. Wesley Sterling

The soloists were accompanied by Mrs. Roy Stetler.

The Cantata was accompanied by an orchestra of Susquehanna University students, under the direction of Professor Donald Hemphill.

Next Sunday evening the Cantata will be again rendered at the Beaver Joint Vocational High School at Beavertown, Pa. The Choral Club will give the Cantata on the evening of Palm Sunday at the Zion Lutheran Church in Sunbury, in conjunction with the Zion Lutheran Church choir. Negative Debaters

Win Twice on Trip

St. Francis and Geneva Fall Easy Prey to Crusader Negative in Debates on War Debts

Susquehanna's Negative Debate Team completed a successful invasion of foreign territory last week, returning from St. Francis and Geneva Colleges with victories over both opponents.

St. Francis, with an imposing record of fourteen wins in sixteen platform contests, bowed to the convincing arguments of the Susquehanna Negative on Tuesday evening before a capacity audience. The Judges' vote was two to one for the Negative, while the spectators voiced their approval of the decision with considerable demonstration.

Joseph Malmgren, Harold Rowe, and William Morrow ascended the platform for Susquehanna to challenge the question "Resolved—That all World War debts, including reparations, should be cancelled." The affirmative proposed to stimulate world trade by allowing twenty-five cents on a dollar towards cancellation of debts on all foreign trade over the figures of last year. The members of the Negative, however, pointed out that this would mean cancellation of only 75 per cent of the war debts, whereas the question stated "all world war debts should be cancelled."

With this victory, the Susquehanna debaters proceeded to Geneva College on Wednesday, taking the platform before an audience composed largely of students in public speaking at that college. Here the Negative again won handsily, receiving a two to one decision over more from the balks of the judges. The win over Geneva marked the fourth victory of Susquehanna's Negative Team in five engagements.

Hahnenman Dean Speaks To Honor Science Club

Dr. W. A. Pearson, well-known biological chemist and dean of the Hahnenman Medical College of Philadelphia, addressed the Honor Science Club of Susquehanna University in the Charles Steele Science Hall lecture room on March 21. Dean Pearson spoke on "Wonders of the Human Body." Dr. Howard F. Straub, at one time a student of Dean Pearson's, introduced the speaker.

Some of the wonders of the human body enumerated by Dr. Pearson were: the human skeleton, central nervous system, human face, human hand and the eye. Dr. Pearson went on to say that life itself is the greatest wonder as it is the source of everything. Life is one of the things that is hard to define, but according to the popular medical college dean, it is a process of continuous change. He then pointed out to his audience how the chemical qualities of the human body serve to build up and repair degenerate parts. This, he said, is the difference between the human body and the most intricate and delicate machine made by man.

Another important point stressed by Dr. Pearson concerned the functioning of the various ductless glands in the body. He pointed out that these glands play a very important part in our well-being and are really the adjusting center of the body. That is, it is the nature of these glands that determines whether an individual is geared high or low.

His lecture not only proved helpful to pre-medical students, but was very interesting to all those present.

Technocrat With Ergs and Watt-Not

And now the Business Administration Society knows what Technocracy is. Even Dean Dunkelberger came to learn and was conquered, although he still insists that he prefers his Essex to the car the Technocrats offer.

Would you, O Casual Reader, care to learn about the new energy system which is to replace prices? Then you must understand some of the terms.

A dyne is the force necessary to accelerate a mass of one gram, one centimeter per second. (Acceleration means to gain in velocity per second, and Velocity equals Distance over time.)

An erg is the work done when a force of one dyne acts through a distance of one centimeter. You don't understand? Read a little farther.

Enlarged Lanthorn Promised by Staff

Entire Copy Will Go To Press in Near Future; Book Will Take Special Note of University's Diamond Jubilee

Members of the Lanthorn Staff are completing the work so that in a short time the entire copy of the Thirty-Seventh Volume of the "Lanthorn" will be sent to the press. The staff promises one of the largest and most interesting books to be published in recent years despite economic conditions.

A number of new features have been added and others subtracted which should make this volume exceptionally interesting to both alumni and students. Subscribers should be interested in the facts that this year marks the diamond jubilee of the institution, the first time Susquehanna experienced an undefeated football season, and that three hundred years ago an event occurred in history which is closely associated with Susquehanna. This book will also include an account of the bi-centennial celebration held on May Day, 1932.

Those persons desiring copies should inform the editor or business manager by mail with a substantial deposit immediately.

Bond and Key Pledges Hosts at House Party

Bond and Key pledges staged an informal party at the Club Home last Friday evening, enabling some thirty couples to benefit by this departure from routine week-end recreation.

An impromptu trio, composed of Fred Billman at the piano, Allen Eyer, saxophone, and Bill Caruth, trumpet, entertained with popular numbers, and were accorded a unanimous preference to victrola and radio music by the dancers. Light refreshments and cards provided additional diversion.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lesse were invited to chaperon the party, which began about eight o'clock, and was terminated in time to allow the escorts to leave their lady friends safely within Seibert's Halls by ten-thirty.

Freshmen Rebel—Ye Councillors Quell— In Uprising Over Clothing Regulations

"We are willing to send a committee to confer with Student Council, but we will not put on our caps and black ties again." Thus the President of the President of the Freshman Class defied the austere countenances of Student Council while the entire body of men students leaned forward in their seats in Susquehanna's chapel, eagerly awaiting the outcome of this duel of two equally determined and equally matched forces.

"Then you refuse to compromise?" demanded Council.

"We see no reason for compromise," stated the orator.

The meeting adjourned, scores of jubilant first year men swarming boldly over the campus minus the traditional "dinks" and black ties. Twenty-four hours passed. Freshmen might be seen wandering moodily about, maroon caps perched perilously on their bowed heads, black ties flowing gently in the breeze. Their statement was simple: "Council refuses to discontinue the wearing of customs unless the Freshmen are wearing the customs to be removed."

Thus did the mighty hand of tradition subdue the powers of sedition. Certain Freshmen, musically inclined however, warble significantly the popular tune "How Long Will It Last." Time will tell.

John Meyers and Bill Swarm, co-captains of Susquehanna University's track team, starred in the roles of recordsmashers last Thursday night in the Alumni Gymnasium, which was the scene of the thirteenth annual indoor track and field meet, the only college athletic event of its kind in Central Pennsylvania. The Juniors completely outclassed their field and amassed 61½ points for first honors. The Senior Class, which claims Meyers and Swarm as members, placed second with 44-6 points. The Freshmen and Sophomores finished third and fourth with 33-3 and 21 points, respectively.

Despite the fact that only two records were shattered in eighteen events, the competition was fast and every mark compared favorably with the top records in the events.

Johnny Meyers, who had never held a record on the indoor track, entered the 210 with but one thought, to cop a record and carve his name on the indoor plaques before he leaves the campus this June. He ran a beautiful race, outclassing every man in the event and turned in a record time in 32.8 seconds, breaking the mark which stood since 1927 by 6-10 of a second. Swarm broke his old record which he set in the 880-yard run in 1931, clipping 5 seconds off that time. His time in the event was 2 min. 9.3 seconds.

Meyers was also high scorer in the meet with 15-1 points for the Senior Class. Tied for second honors among the men were Schlegel, Al Meyer, Youngerman and Wrubel.

Sally Ulrich topped the women scorers with 13 points, with Browne and Nichols following closely with 11 and 10 points respectively. All three are Juniors.

The Senior men's relay team captured their third victory in that event in four years, although they failed to lower their record established in 1931. The Sophomores took first in the 280-yard relay for women.

Summary of the meet: Juniors 61½; Seniors 44-6; Freshmen 33-3; Sophomores 21.

All Up Club (Girls) tie for first and second, Nichols and Ulrich, Jr.s; third, Browne, Jr. Time: 24 seconds.

10-yard dash won by Meyers, Sr.; second, Leitner, Jr.; third tie between Yaros, Fr. and Casler Jr. Time: 8 seconds.

1 Mile Run won by J. Worthington, Sr.; second, Finn, Fr.; and third, Ma- (Concluded on Page 4)

Vocal Quartet to Aid Orchestra in Concert

Susquehanna University Orchestra, under the direction of W. Donald Hemphill, will give its annual concert in Seibert Hall Chapel on Thursday evening, April 6th. It will be assisted in its presentation by a vocal quartet, composed of Alma Myers, soprano; Elizabeth Shippe, contralto; Roland Pritchard, tenor, and Wesley Stirling, baritone.

The orchestra has expended a great deal of time and effort in preparing for this concert and as a result, has evolved a very interesting program. It will play "The Magic Flute" overture and the G minor Symphony of Mozart, as well as works of Wagner, Debibes, and Luigin.

THEY DO NOT SERVE WHO STAND AND WAIT

Waiting your turn at the tennis courts is not a new situation at Susquehanna, as a contributor to the Grab-Bag points out in forecast of the scramble which will soon take place with the arrival of warmer weather.

Four tennis courts cannot supply the needs of over three hundred students and faculty members, even with the aspirants getting up at six in the morning, leaving a bolted supper, or dashing down between classes.

Certainly provision for a few more courts would not involve a great expenditure of labor or money; courts of a nature that would satisfy the needs of the great majority who seek a little recreation or exercise, and do not demand conditions necessary to develop a maestro of the game.

Student labor has been secured in working on the track and golf course in the past, with the promise of pleasure derived from the former being a bit dubious to most students. Why not continue this practice by laying out a few tennis courts?

If physical education students should object to utilizing their required hours (for their own benefit) in this manner, there remain several organizations on the campus whose activity has been of a rather dormant nature in recent years, and who could perform a valuable service by sponsoring such a program. These organizations are based on athletic relations, yet they seem to exist in name only. Here is a splendid opportunity for them to start the wheels rolling towards a worthwhile goal.

The rush for courts in past years is sufficient evidence of their demand. If individuals are willing to put forth a little effort to satisfy this demand, the matter could easily be remedied.

Otherwise, they will continue to stand and wait, but not do any serving on the courts.

HOW TO BE BORED GRACEFULLY

Being bored is a social liability, but being bored gracefully is a social asset. Since the chief motive for coming to college is the acquisition of culture, it is in college that one should learn how to be bored gracefully.

Here at Susquehanna, with week-ends being what they are, we have many excellent opportunities of acquiring grace with our boredom. Since we should never let an opportunity slip from our hands, we should devote the entire week-end to the cultivation of this social art.

Instead of packing our bags in the middle of the week, and getting off the campus as soon as our last class is over, we should forget all about work, go around and do what we please, and learn to be bored gracefully.

There is absolutely no reason why week-ends should be dreaded. It means two days of freedom from the daily grind, which can be used to satisfy any of our particular interests. There is no one to command us to do anything, nor is there anyone to restrain us from doing what we please. If we want to be bored with the lack of any definitely specified activity it is our privilege. There is only one caution to remember; be graceful.

All this means that we should not be mean and nasty about the entire affair, but that we should take it all with a smile. When we hear people complain of having nothing to do, we should merely smile at their statement, and practice being bored gracefully.

POTPOURRI

Students seem to like their journalism course at Centre College, Kentucky. The entire student body went on an unconditional strike after the administration had dismissed two English professors and abolished their journalism course.

Dancing is the present subject under discussion at Simpson College, Iowa.

When the President of the Board of Trustees brought the students to task for their violation of the fifty-year dance prohibition, he was met half way and bombarded with stale fruit, and over-ripe eggs, to the accompaniment of the firing of blank cartridges.

To have co-eds or not have co-eds is the problem confronting the male students at Detroit University. The men have demanded that the number of co-eds be increased or cut out entirely. Here is a chance for the administration to make the boys happy.

On the other hand the University of Minnesota is offering every convenience to the co-eds. The college catalogue has placed asterisks before the names of all the unmarried professors.

At the University of Southern California organ music of a classical and semi-classical nature has replaced regular chapel services. If there is a sufficient demand for it, even jazz will be played.

Speaking of chapel services, one complains about the lack of reverence in attending these exercises. A critical student at Rutgers University glanced around the chapel during services and saw five funny papers, two sports sections, one crossword puzzle and several text books. Incidentally the offenders were upper-class men and the critic, a sophomore.

The demand for funny papers is so great at Kentucky University that they are filed in the library. It wouldn't be a bad idea to have them in our own library, so that when research work gets the better of us, we can have a little diversion.

At Connecticut College the use of rouge and lipstick is a senior privilege. Just a way of telling seniors from freshmen.

ALUMNI NOTES

Dr. Claude Buss, a graduate of Susquehanna University, will return from China with his family after spending three years abroad. Dr. Buss will sail from Shanghai on June 4, and will probably arrive in Sundry June 24 or 25. He is associated with the American Consular Service in Nanking. Summing up the conditions in China, Mr. Buss says that the shadow of Japan is resting rather heavily on China. However, there is something fundamentally joyful in the nature of the Chinese and they are able to enjoy themselves in spite of the most distressing of circumstances.

Martha J. Larson, '26, is instructor of Latin in the Gettysburg High School. She received her Master of Arts degree in Latin from Gettysburg College in 1931.

Several Susquehanna alumni have been residing in the vicinity of the California earthquake. Reverend D. J. Snyder, '00, a pastor of the Long Beach Lutheran Church, is uninjured, but his church has been damaged considerably. Captain John A. S. Schoch, '00, of Los Angeles, a brother to Geo. S. Schoch, of Selingrove, says that conditions there are very bad. George P. Fisher, who graduated from Missionary Institute in '74, and his daughters, were also in the stricken area.

Harold A. Smaltz, '25, has received a great deal of commendation for his excellent work in coaching athletics at the White Haven High School. Soon after graduating from Susquehanna University he commenced teaching at this high school, which took no interest in athletics until the time of his arrival. He is credited with being the founder of the Mountain Interscholastic Basketball League, which is affiliated with the P. I. A. A. His basketball team has been the winner of the league, and its success is impressive because, with one exception, the team is composed entirely of sophomores. This team is considered to have a very good chance to be the State champions next year.

Marion S. Schoch, '06, editor and publisher of The Selingrove Times, has been elected a vice president of the newly formed Pennsylvania Democratic Newspaper Association.

Reverend Jerome Michael Guss, pastor of the Central Lutheran Church of Phoenixville, died recently from an attack of influenza. Reverend Guss is a graduate of Missionary Institute and of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary. He was called to Phoenixville in 1930, after serving at Milltown, Dun-cann, Elma, Middleburg, Philadelphia and Chicago.

A New Deal in Psychology

"Are you ready?"
 The youth with the watch in his hand surveyed the other, who nodded in assent. The latter stood in front of a table, with a deck of playing cards in his hand. On the table were nine large sheets of paper with different numbers marked on them. The boy shuffled the cards nervously. The serious look in his eyes grew more intense as he stood grimly awaiting the signal.

"Go!" said the other.
 Hastily the boy with the playing cards began drawing them from the deck one by one, and placing them with jerky, feverish movements upon the various sheets of paper. A five on number five, an eight on number eight,—around and around he went, his head snapping from side to side, his fingers fumbling in their haste.

"Done!" he exclaimed, throwing down the last deuce on sheet number two, "Forty-two seconds," announced the timekeeper.

"Who won?" I ventured to inquire.
 "Won what?"

"Isn't this a sort of some kind?" I insisted.
 "Bet!" they snorted. "We are performing an experiment in psychology. We are proving that incorrect repetitions retard the speed of one's learning."

"Oh,—and do they?"
 "Well, . . . it hasn't worked yet, but it will!"

"But why do you want to . . . ?"
 "Oh, shut up! Get out of here and stop annoying us!"

"Ready, Bob?"
 "All ready."
 "Go!"

"I'll do it this time. . . . Three . . . Nine . . . Deuce . . ."

Bang!

It's A Racket!

College tennis is a peculiar game in which one person seeks another one, two rackets and two balls. If he succeeds, these two persons spend the entire afternoon sitting dejectedly on green benches, chasing stray balls for some perspiring participant who demands such attention, and waiting surreptitiously for someone to vacate one of the courts.

High noon melts into mid-afternoon and the two would-be gamblers are augmented by thrice, even four times their number. Competition becomes keen.

College men forget their gentility in their endeavor to smack a silly ball over a droopy net. College women do everything but mutter curses and pull hair. The two hunters, first on the scene of conflict, sneak over to a suspicious fountain to shake their thirst and cool their tempers. They race back only to find that the two other seekers have captured first prey, a dusty, murky court. They flay their arms in agitation and audible and inaudible imprecations are brought down upon the whole sports world, and especially upon its particular offspring, tennis.

Mid-afternoon lengthens into dusk and two watchers, grinning tolerantly, see the stragglers leave the courts for a pre-dinner shower. The two leave the scene unhurried and nonchalant, for they are tired; tired of the nervous strain. One thing stands out in their thoughts—"Only four tennis courts for three hundred students."

One Who Has Waited

One of our more or less illustrious Juniors has made the confession that he is writing his way through college with four fountain pens which he won during high school days by filling in the last line in limerick contests! (Same has promised to submit one of his efforts in the near future.)

More confessions! A certain male professor on the campus coyly admits having once won a $5 prize for a little gem entitled "How to Hold a Young Lady's Hand." Perhaps we should have inquired whether or not he ever won any prizes higher than $5.

First Day of Spring Arrives, Bringing Birds, Bees, Baseball Almost!

Snowflakes are falling, white, innocent, soundless.

Youthful eyes watch them swirl gently from the window pane. A baseball glove rests unnoted on the corner of the table, emitting a faint order of fresh oil. In one corner of the room stands a tennis racket, its new, tight strings gleaming hopefully from its carefully wiped frame. Draped over a chair is a pair of white ducks, heavily creased where they have been folded into convenient size during their interment.

A calendar bearing the title "March" on its foremost page hangs from the shaded wall; the figure "21" is marked by a circle in red pencil.

Pages fall from the calendar. The tennis racket has slipped to a horizontal position and remains untouched. The baseball glove has disappeared; the chair is undraped. The eyes no longer stare through the moisture laden window.

But the snowflakes are still falling, cold, cruel, relentless.

—Nobho.

Along the lines of the foregoing, we might submit the suggestion of one of our faculty that we blame Hitler for all the bad weather, since he has been blamed for about everything else.

In spite of the snow, spring's arrival has left its mark here and there. During a bridge game at one of the frat houses last week one of the boys was surveying his cards with that fixed, yet rather vague, expression when someone ended a remark with "Remember the Maine!"

The smitten one started, then exclaimed apologetically, "I thought it had been played!" All of which certainly has nothing to do with something.

Beware of telephone tollfollery!

Some of Seibert's silliest are anticipating April Fool's Day by butting in on private conversations and perpetrating divers other kindergarten pranks to kill away their valuable time. This practice ranks about the same as opening someone else's letters, but then we suppose that "listening in" has become so common as to be considered a tradition at the Hall.

As regards the pranks, we do have to chuckle when we think of the susceptible Senior who stepped out on the porch to see if the street lights were still shining, and then heard the advice to blow them out before he went to bed!

Debate Mentor Speaks On War Debt Question

Professor Russel W. Gilbert addressed the Selingrove Rotary Club last Thursday evening. The subject of his talk was the International Debt Question. He discussed reparations and possibility of payment, and explained the difference between debts of individuals and debts of nations.

Dr. G. Morris Smith introduced Professor Gilbert. Professor Gilbert is coaching Susquehanna's forsenle teams, who are successfully debating the war debt question with other colleges.

S. U. Representatives Judge Declamations

Susquehanna University sent as Judges to the Northumberland county academic competitions among the high schools, on March 25, Miss Emily E. Sweetman, registrar; Mrs. Martha Dodson, librarian; and Dr. Arthur Herman Wilscn, head of the English department.

The Susquehanna representatives officiated at the reading contests for Class B high schools, held in the Third Ward school, Sunbury.

Following the student declamations, which occurred between nine and twelve o'clock, Saturday morning, the judges were entertained at the City Hotel, in Sunbury, by Mr. Boyer, assistant superintendent of schools.

Spanish Club Members Try Luck at Telegrams

The Spanish Club held its monthly meeting on Monday evening, March 20 at 7:00 p. m., in the Social room of Seibert Hall. Miss Dorothea Myers, the president of the club, sang a solo in Spanish, after which Miss Freda Stephens played a piano solo.

Various Spanish songs were sung by members of the club. A game was played in which telegrams were used to write messages to imaginary friends. Elmer Deveraux won the first prize for having the best telegram written.

The Challenge

Clipper readers probably wondered why page 3 of last week's issue was left blank. We could give as an explanation the alibi that it was thru the misinterpretation of our order, but our real reason was to give some of our critics a page that they could not find more than one mistake in.

Inclement Weather Delays Crusaders

Baseball Nine Unable to Practice With First Game a Month Away; Track
Stars Practice Indoors

The Susquehanna nine is anxiously waiting for Coach Ullery's call to swing into action, but through inclement weather conditions during the past week they have been unable to take up outdoor practice in preparation for eight hard games, which the Orange and Maroon have scheduled for this season.

Coach Ullery will be faced with the problem of selecting someone to fill the places left vacant by Palmer, Malasky, Stroup, Shaffer, Poltz and Spielmeier, of last year's varsity. Eisenhower, found his hitting stride near the end of the season, may be called to hold down the first base position. Morrow, who played every position in the infield last year and had a fair batting average, will probably capture the second base cushion. The selection of a shortstop will be one of the toughest jobs. Benner, of the Freshman Class, comes with the reputation of being a dependable player at that post, but he has not had the chance to show his wares. Captain Malasky and Stroup left two vacancies in the outfield, which will be hard to fill. Anderson, who had one of the best throwing arms of the outfielders last year, will probably be shifted to center or left. Keller, who has been on the squad for the past two seasons and filled in at right and center field, may be shifted to third base. The easiest opening to fill will be that of Sussaman, of the Freshman class has had much experience at that post.

Despite the fact that the Crusaders will miss "Lefty" Danks, the Crusaders' favorite southpaw pitcher last year, Coach Ullery will have a large pitching staff from which to pick. Captain Brininger has been showing great form and is expected to come through this season. Besides Brininger, Coach Ullery will have some reliable pitchers from whom to choose in Al Meyer, Maimon, Yaros, Gray, Kramer, and Chankshaw.

With this large array of players, the Crusaders will be expected to have a successful season. Their first encounter is four weeks away, when they take a two-day trip to meet the University of Delaware nine and the Pennsylvania Military College aggregation.

The Orange and Maroon track stars have the advantage over the diamond stars, as they are working out daily in the gym and on the board track in preparation for a successful season. With Co-Captains Myers and Swann burning up the track, little else can be expected. The Freshman class promises to contribute several track men to the list in the way of distance men and sprinters.

The one event to which every runner on the Orange and Maroon team looks forward is the Penn Relays, which are held annually. Last year Susquehanna finished second in its class and there is no reason why it shouldn't take first position this season. With Myers and Swann, two of the four who represented Susquehanna last year, and with Truckenmiller, who was with the team as alternate, we should come through with flying colors. Coach Grossman is working hard in preparation for the coming meets and is being assisted by Herb Snell, assistant football coach.

AMUSEMENTS

Wallace Berry achieves another "Champ" in the role of a wrestler in "Flesh," being shown for the last time tonight. Karen Morley and Ricardo Cortez supply intrigue.

"Island of Lost Souls" brings Charles Laughton as a mad scientist whose experiments with human beings afford many hair-raising scenes. Kathleen Burke and Richard Arlen also have important roles in this feature for tomorrow night.

Thursday's film features Jack Oakie in a hilarious burlesque of Hollywood antics, "Once In A Lifetime." Oakie at his best, supported by Aline MacMahon and a strong cast, provide a laugh a second.

"Secrets of the French Police" is the main attraction for Friday, with Gwili Andre and Gregory Ratoff taking important roles in this novel mystery thriller.

John Wayne and Noah Berry make "The Big Stampede," Saturday's feature, a well portrayed presentation in the Western line.

Next Monday and Tuesday bring "King of the Jungle," novel story of a wild man let loose in modern civilization. Buster Crabbe, swimming ace, takes the feature role.

Governor Watches His P's, Q's and Commas

An extra comma once cost the United States Government $200,000 in a year. Governor Pinchot has just ordered a special comma in State documents. He has ordered that when the last member of a series of three or more terms is connected by a conjunction, a comma shall be inserted before the conjunction. For instance, in the line from Pope, "Thou wert my guide, philosopher, and friend," a comma is inserted before the conjunction, "and."

The instance in which the inclusion of one comma too many caused the United States Government to lose $200,000 was the punctuation of the tariff bill of June 6, 1872. Among the articles specified that should be admitted free of duty were "all foreign fruit plants." But a clerk, in copying the bill, inadvertently inserted a comma, making it read "all foreign fruit, plants."

Foreign fruits were admitted free of duty for a year, until Congress could remedy the error, and the loss in tariff duties was estimated at $200,000. On May 9, 1874, Congress passed a bill amending the Tariff act, to place a hyphen instead of a comma between "fruit" and "plants." The revision became effective July 1, 1874.

There are authorities for inserting the comma and others for omitting the comma. The official syllabus of the Board of Education, prepared in 1917, ordered that the comma should be inserted. Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania vote for the comma in their catalogues. On the other hand Bryn Mawr omits it from its catalogue.

The use of the comma is made optional by the English professors at Harvard and Wesleyan. In their advanced English grammar, Kittredge and Farley say, "If the conjunction is used to connect the last two members of a series of words but omitted with the others, the comma may be used before the conjunction."

"To use a comma, or not to use a comma," that is the question. Governor Pinchot says we should.

MISS REEDER ADDRESSES WOMEN'S ATHLETIC CLUB

Miss Dorothy Reeder, Director of Women's Athletics at Susquehanna, was the speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Athletic Club which was held last night in the Social Room at Selbert Hall.

In her address she spoke of the need for camp counselor, the requirements necessary, and the pleasure derived from being one. Her talk was very interesting as Miss Reeder has had experience in this line of work. The refreshment committee was composed of Diane Linds, Edith Frankenfield and Ludlow Nichols.

POET'S CORNER

It rained this afternoon when I met you.

You stopped and would have spoken, had I shown

By word or sign that I desired you to. My Dearest,—oh if you had only known How much I yearned to hear your voice —to see

Your face light up adorably again—To feel your kiss—but it was not to be. And I passed on, a stranger in the rain.

Far better you should think of me as one

Who loved you lightly, as a shining prize, And then passed on in search of other loves.

Than you should worship as you would have done.

Only to wake and sadly realize

In time, you'd loved a girl who never was.

LYNN.

Loneliness

I'm lonely; lonely just for one alone; The silent minutes slipping slowly by

Drag into weary hours; in vain I try

To tear my musings from this monotone

Of loneliness. Yet that depressing tone

Continues: longing thoughts bring forth a sigh.

And sigh we're only to intensify My melancholy mood. So time drags on.

I miss the soft tread of her dainty feet,

Her little bird-like gestures when surprised.

Her smothered laughter, all the dignity

With which she holds her head, the faint but sweet

Scent of her hair; And I, who so have prized

All these, must be content with memory.—Wm. Evans.

Orchestra In Annual Concert on Thursday

Professor Hemphill, Director, Will Present University Group at 8:15 in Seibert Hall Chapel

FEATURES MOZART SYMPHONY

Mixed Vocal Quartet Is Attraction; Nodded Works on Program

Susquehanna University Orchestra, under the direction of Professor W. Donald Hemphill, will present its annual concert on Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock in Seibert Chapel Hall.

Featured on the program will be the G minor Symphony of Mozart, and the "Magic Flute" Overture.

A vocal quartet will be an additional feature of this year's concert. This quartet will consist of mixed voices, as follows: Alma Myers, soprano; Elizabeth Shipe, contralto; Roland Pritchard, tenor, and Wesley Stirling, baritone.

Included among the other orchestral numbers on the program will be works by Wagner, Debussy, and Liszt. Professor Hemphill has been working very diligently with the orchestra all year, having selected these numbers with care, and expending much effort in developing them to afford an interesting program for all students as well as those who are studying music.

Musically, the Mozart symphony is probably the most important number on the program. It is interesting, in connection with this masterpiece, to know that the German composer, Mozart, wrote his three greatest symphonies—the E flat, the G minor, and C major (so-called "Jupiter" symphony) within the incredibly short period of two months. The dates on these three are all in the year 1788, June 26, July 25, and August 10, respectively.

All of the numbers are of such a nature that they can be enjoyed by an average audience, however, and are not so subtle that they cease to be entertaining. This concert has always met with the approval of the audiences in attendance, but too few students have taken advantage of its pleasure in recent years.

Susquehanna Graduates Are Representatives in the National Congress

Two members of the House of Representatives, Benjamin K. Focht and David R. Perry, are graduates of Susquehanna University. Both of these law-makers happen to be Republicans.

Hon. Benjamin K. Focht, a dominant political figure and editor of the Lewisburg Saturday News, is a veteran in Congress, having previously served in that legislative body. He is a graduate of Missionary Institute, '76, and is a brother of the late Dr. John B. Focht, a former president of Susquehanna University. Mr. Focht is a popular figure in Congress, and he has already taken important positions on some of the vital questions confronting the country.

The other Susquehanna Congressman is David R. Perry, a prominent Blair county lawyer, who is serving his first term in Congress. Congressman Perry has become popular because of his keen, analytical digests of current legislative affairs. He has also gained widespread reputation through a series of talks on the history of law and government every week for the last eighteen months. The program is sponsored as an educational feature.

Ghost Capers on Seibert Lawn in Dead of Night—But Co-Eds Fail to Respond

How easily are women frightened? This question apparently perturbed the mind of one of our imaginative males after viewing the motion picture "Island of Lost Souls," at the Stanley last week.

He observed the trembling figures and blanched faces of the feminine members in the audience as they cowered before the unfolding sequences of horror on the silver screen.

"NO BEER AT SUSQUEHANNA" STUDENTS LEARN AT CHAPEL

Susquehanna University will maintain its standards prohibiting the use of beer, wine, and spirituous liquors, announced President C. Morris Smith, during the chapel service on Thursday morning, March 30.

President Smith summarizes the situation: "It is the bounden obligation of college men and women to be strong enough and intelligent enough to erect and maintain an unassailable code of ethics without reference to what may be the call of the crowd or the permissive enactments of governments. As those who would make a higher degree of life and happiness possible to all mankind, Susquehanna will always seek to practice principles of personal conduct in keeping with this aim. The University's position has always been this, and it does not propose to take a backward step."

Rowe Reelected to "Y. M." Presidency For 1933-34 Term

The Y. M. C. A. held its annual election of officers for the coming 1933-34 term at a meeting in the Y room last Friday evening.

Harold Rowe, this year's president, was re-elected to head the organization for the coming year, with Robert Clark, Secretary this year, assisting him in the office of Vice-President. John Stouffer was chosen to fill the position of Secretary, and Luther Boyer will succeed Erle Shobert as Treasurer. The position of Editor of the Handbook was left unfilled for the present time, but Ralph Shockey was given the task of being Business Manager of this official organ of the Y.

After the regular election had taken place, the President gave a brief resume of the general plans for next year, and urged the members to attend, if possible, the Spring Officers' Training Conference in Kutztown.

The meeting closed with each member present pledging himself to uphold the ideals of the Y. M. C. A. and to loyally support the new officers in the work of the coming year.

Geneva and Muhlenberg Conclude Home Debates

Susquehanna's Negative debating team will meet Geneva College at home on Wednesday, April 5, and a dual debate with Muhlenberg will take place on April 10, at which time Coach Gilbert's Affirmative team will journey to Muhlenberg, while the Negative team remains at home to debate Muhlenberg's Affirmative team. These two attractions conclude the 1933 debating season on the home platform.

This year's team has proven successful to date despite the fact that the debates are poorly attended. Much credit must be given to Professor Russell Gilbert and his teams for their good work.

William J. Weliky, '31, is a student at the Marcer Bessley School of Law, Newark, New Jersey. He is also acquiring experience as a clerk with the Skeffington and Walker law firm. In extra-curricular activities he is president of his class, a member of student council, a member of the law club, and of the debating team.

Alas for such indefatigable efforts!

A few faces appeared at Seibert's windows, watched the performance with mild tolerance for a few minutes, and then disappeared. They were curious, of course, wondering just what might be the significance of such antics, but as for terror—the effect was about the same as that of the average person listening to a symphonic concert.

In an effort to get some response, the ambitious "ghost" turned desperately to Selinsgrove Hall, Gustavus Adolphus, and finally Steele Science.

Committee to Elect New Staff Members

Editor and Business Manager of "The Susquehanna" Will be Named Under Revised Constitution

Election of staff heads for The Susquehanna will be made next week by the Editorial Committee of The Susquehanna Publishing Association. Nomination will also be made at this time of at least two candidates for each office of the Susquehanna Publishing Association, these candidates then being voted on by subscribers to the paper at the annual meeting of the Association.

This will mark the first instance of selection by the Editorial Committee, under the revised constitution of the Publishing Association. This method was adopted to enable the candidate most capable and deserving of the various positions to be recognized by those connected with The Susquehanna, instead of leaving the choice to the mass vote of subscribers.

On the editorial staff, the following officers will be elected: The Editor-in-Chief, from the Managing Editor (Penn Dively); the News Editor (Ruth Bergstresser); the News Editor and Managing Editor, from the Assistants on the Reporterial Staff (Ken Anderson, Robert Clark, Donald Henry and A. Carl Messenger); and no less than four assistants on the Reporterial Staff, chosen from the list of Freshman applicants.

The officers to be elected to the Business Staff will be: Business Manager, from the Advertising Manager (Edwin Clapper); and the Circulation Manager (Daniel McKevelley); the Advertising and Circulation Managers from the Assistants (Elmer Devereaux, William Reger, and William Whitley); and not less than four Assistants from Freshman candidates.

Annual Banquet for Athletes Scheduled This Friday Night

Susquehanna's athletes will be the guests of honor at the annual Sports Banquet to be given this Friday night in the Horton Memorial Dining Hall. Coach William Ullery is in charge of the program committee and promises an enjoyable affair, although perhaps not as elaborate as in previous years.

Dr. G. Morris Smith will act as toastmaster for the occasion and will introduce the various persons who will make certificate presentations. Miss Esther Geisel, president of the Women's Athletic Association, will present the intra-mural awards for women, and Robert Sala, president of the intra-mural board, will make the presentations to the men.

Miss Dorothy Roper will make the letter awards to the women athletes, and Coach William Ullery and L. D. Grossman will issue the awards for the men.

FRESHMAN CANDIDATES MUST FILE THEIR NAMES THIS WEEK

Members of the Freshman Class who desire to be considered as candidates for either the Editorial or Business Staffs of The Susquehanna must make their intentions known to the respective heads before the end of this week.

The Editorial Committee will choose no less than four Assistants from the Freshman Class to each staff, according to the revised constitution of the Susquehanna Publishing Association.

Candidates for the Editorial Staff may submit their names to the Editor-in-Chief or the Faculty Advisor on the editorial staff; candidates for the Business Staff should notify the Business Manager or the Faculty Advisor on the Business Staff.

Freshmen Abide by Council Decree to Doff Dinks on 12th

Student Council's request that the Freshmen continue to observe clothing regulations until Wednesday, April 12, was agreed to without agitation on the part of the first year men. The decree was announced after chapel exercises last Monday morning.

The new date for discarding dinks and black ties comes as a result of Freshmen protest against wearing these regulations until the regular Moving-Up day, which is listed on the calendar as the third Wednesday in May.

The Student Council, recognizing the truth of many of the arguments presented by the yearlings, offered this compromise to set the date for April 12. The Freshmen reciprocated by consent without further dissent.

The situation appears to be prevalent on college campuses at this time of the year. Second semester regulations have been discontinued at Lehigh; at Gettysburg, Move Up Day has been advanced a month; and at Muhlenberg, revision of the Freshman Constitution is under consideration.

The new date set by the Council at Susquehanna affects only the clothing regulations; the other rules remain in effect until Moving-Up Day, on May 17.

Easter Recess Begins Wednesday, April 12

Easter recess begins on Wednesday, April 12, with all classes ending at eleven o'clock in the morning. Instruction will be resumed on the following Tuesday, April 18, with all one o'clock classes.

There will be an issue of The Susquehanna next week, with effort being made to distribute copies a few hours earlier than is customary, in order to reach those individuals who may be able to leave the campus on Tuesday.

Wee Willie Waxes Wroth With Werbosity In Demanding Debate Decisions—Pronto

Susquehanna debaters will not debate for nothing.

An interview with Mr. William Morrow, popular Junior debater, following the Bucknell non-decision debate on Thursday night, resulted in a complete denunciation of forensic activities without an adequate response from the audience or a decision from some judge.

Thus, wailed Willie, "What's the use? For two long and tedious hours we argued world war debts, both in fact and fiction, and to what end? Except for occasional, scattered applause the few people present were asleep. Fourteen times during the course of the evening we were misquoted by our opposition. We did not care, both teams would win a moral victory. In non-decision debates there is no thrill, no fight, and very poor argumentation."

S. U. Debaters Win Judge's Decision

Vermont Negative Bows to Youngerman and Clapper on Vote of Penn State Instructor

FIRST CRITIC JUDGE HERE

Professor Koepf Baker Proves Interesting and Analytical

"If we can get half of the apple, why not take all of it?" demanded Alex Youngerman of critic judge Professor Koepf Baker, of Pennsylvania State College, in Saturday's debate with the University of Vermont.

Youngerman's effective arguments, coupled with those of Edwin Clapper to form the Susquehanna Affirmative two-man team, sufficed for Prof. Baker to award them the decision on a point basis of 87 to 84.

It was Professor Baker's impromptu speech in criticism that delighted the small audience in attendance. His remarks concerning the delivery, poise, and arguments of the individual debaters were not only intelligent, but amusing and entertaining as well.

He referred to Youngerman, of the Susquehanna team, as the best debater on the platform, not only in delivery, but also in the coherence and logic of his arguments.

Russel Culburn and Realtus McCuin represented the Negative team from Vermont. The regular intercollegiate question of cancelling intergovernmental world war debts was the question.

This debate marked the first time a critic judge has been secured at Susquehanna to determine the winner.

Oldest Alumnus Will Return from Germany For Reunion in June

Sixty-seven years have passed since T. F. Dornbraser was graduated from Missionary Institute, forerunner of Susquehanna, but the University's oldest living alumnus intends to make the trip across the ocean from Germany to attend the annual class reunions on the campus in June.

Dr. Dornbraser, who revealed this intention in a letter to President G. Morris Smith, will have only two classmates from the Class of 1866 waiting to renew acquaintances. They are Dr. Edward Bartholomew, professor of English literature and philosophy at Augustana College in the Middle West, and John H. Ehrenhart, now retired, in New York City.

Dr. Dornbraser is honorary president of the Alumni Society.

Members of Phi Beta Kappa Attend Dinner

Susquehanna University was represented Saturday, April 1, at the annual Phi Beta Kappa dinner in Hunt Hall, Bucknell University, by Dr. and Mrs. Kreischmann, Miss Naomi Hade, Mrs. Fisk Scudder, and Dr. Arthur Wilson. Mrs. Scudder was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Cornell University, and Dr. Kreischmann and Dr. Wilson both belong to the Delta chapter of the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Clark Northrup, professor of English at Cornell, spoke upon the subject of "Demos and the Choice of Hercules," a pressing the fact that democracy, like the old hero, has to choose between the path of pleasure and the path of duty.

While the negative team was snoring here the Susquehanna affirmative slumbered peacefully in another non-decision party at Lewisburg.

AN IMMEDIATE SITUATION REMEDIED—

Student Council and the Freshmen have avoided an unpleasant crisis by an excellent display of co-operation.

Willingness to find a solution to an apparently unsatisfactory situation is evidenced by the concessions made by both parties.

Such an attitude is to be congratulated.

—BUT WHAT ABOUT THE FUTURE?

Squabbles over Frosh regulations, however, are not a new problem at Susquehanna, nor are they confined to this campus.

In glancing over the exchange papers from other colleges, we find that several nearby institutions are encountering similar situations at the present time.

Lehigh has abolished freshman regulations for the remainder of the semester, and next year will enforce only dink and the rules until the Christmas holidays. An editorial in the "Brown and White," however, maintains that the dinks should be maintained throughout the year as "an integral part of Lehigh tradition," or discarded altogether.

At Gettysburg, Move Up Day has been set ahead one month, although the Tribunal immediately began taking stock of present offenders and meting out punishments.

Muhlenberg is planning a revision of the Freshman Constitution, and is also troubled with "dormitory conduct."

At Dickinson there is no mention of change in the customs, but the Tribunal seems to be constantly busy trying to enforce them, passing out sentences right and left.

It has been suggested that enforcement is the major problem at Susquehanna. Yet three methods have been employed in the past four years—Sophomore Tribunal, Administration, and Student Council—and all three appear to have failed.

This fact alone would seem to indicate that the difficulty is not in the method of enforcement, but in the rules themselves. This is made more evident by the aforementioned conditions at neighboring colleges.

The present trend in collegiate circles seems to favor the gradual abolition of first year regulations. Traditions no longer exist merely because of the fact that they are traditions. The "Tie-Up" was one of Susquehanna's greatest traditions; the rivalry with Juniata was another. Yet both have fallen by the wayside.

Tradition, therefore, cannot be considered as an argument for retaining regulations throughout the year.

If, on the other hand, regulations are intended to keep the Freshman in his place until he has adapted himself to Susquehanna, then the rules should be retained, but first modified.

Immediately the question arises "Is it necessary for a Freshman in college to wear a dinky cap and a funeral necktie until the third Wednesday in May to make certain that he has become a real part of Susquehanna?"

Obviously, it is not.

If a Freshman has not assimilated the correct spirit after living on the campus for five or six months, the chances seem very slight of his ever doing such.

In solution, The Susquehanna suggests a stricter enforcement of regulations—perhaps even additional rules—over a shorter period of time. The date could be determined by the Council, or submitted by that body to the vote of the student body.

At least a trial of this method would serve to indicate whether or not agitation is due to prolonged regulation, or is really a result of lack of enforcement.

THE GRAB-BAG

In Memoriam

Over the plundered area of a deserted show window gently sways a sign. Its name, "The Chocolate Shoppe."

will soon become legendary, for its doors have closed, the shelves are stripped of their wares, and its whole interior has been put to sacrifice at the relentless altar of the god Depression.

Gone is the inviting romance of its sheltered recesses, the lure of the tryst, and the essence of good fellowship.

The aroma of strange concoctions and tempting morsels has faded forever. Only memories linger of its social scenes . . . birthplace of friendships, political intrigues, gossip, and occasional indulgence in sampling of the forbidden fruits.

No more will its cosy confines fill with clouds of exhaled tobacco smoke, or re-echo to the merry clatter of glass and silver or the rising and falling of voices, now jubilant, now hushed. No longer will its spacious mirrors reflect the passing throngs from the dance, flashing with crimson and ivory, darting from jeweled stud to twinkling heel of silver.

"Where once we danced, where once we sang, Gentlemen,

The floors are sunken, cowbells hang . . .

So ends the tradition of "The Chocolate Shoppe" . . .

Imagine the embarrassment of our English prof who assigned characterizations to his class in composition, and recognized himself in one of them . . . Latest reports have it that the student has a slight chance of passing the course.

We note that Al Meyer is suffering from the depression . . . Bob Sassman says that if he is to catch for the baseball team, Coach Ullery will need a good center fielder . . . "The Wasp," scandal publication circulated at Ohio University, was suppressed by city police before seventy copies had been sold . . . Bicycles are coming back—the co-eds want 'em and mean to have 'em . . .

Uncertainty

The others never told me, yet I knew just where I stood, although they did not phrase

In words their liking for me. Now, with you,

Who tell me seriously in many ways, How beautiful I am—you like me so, Your ardor makes me wonder. I don't know . . .

Contributed.

Curtains for the Blind

A window blind is a household infernal machine. Regularly, every third Saturday of the month my roommate appeals to me to fix that blind on the north window.

Regularly, every third Saturday night of the month I find my courage and my ten cent screw-driver and crawl precariously upon the window ledge. The first tug at the material invariably brings roll, blind, spring, catches, nails, and an assorted collection of dead flies to the floor. Falling from the ledge I receive a bumped head and an incurable headache.

Naturally I gather my courage (scattered by the sudden descent) and Woolworth's screw-driver and begin to gain forcible entrance to the innermost recesses of the roll. After engaging in a brief argument with the catch, it gives easily. A snarl, a rattle, the snap of twisted metal and the spring is upon me. I duck my head just in time to have a few stray hairs pulled unceremoniously from my scalp. Finally I find the vicious spring writhing on the floor preparing for another leap. A well-placed kick removes its murderous intent.

The blind problem is peaceably settled at last. We bought new blinds and double indemnity life insurance policies.

Classics from the Classroom

A new slant on Stevenson's pirate hero—

"Long John sent Silver down to the beach . . ." (An early instance of dual personalities, no doubt).

Fashions in history—

"Lord Nelson, having only one arm, wore a sleeveless sleeve" . . . (Wonder if he fooled anybody with it?)

Last week we asked our friend, the limerick scribbler, for a contribution or two. Look what the weasel sent in: Funny things are college editors.

Always try to ride their betters: When somebody, their paper, sees Then they call it, nose for news!

Here are our views on the regulations situation:

"Dinks and ties are a college tradition" Said the Council to quell the sedition, The Frosh said "It's a go."

Without striking a blow.

Thus spoiling our Extra edition.

Brevity may be the soul of wit, but to be truthful, that's not why the column is so short this (weak) week.

Come again.

L. O. Ramer, '33, is at present teaching History and Mathematics in the Kane High School. He is also president of the Lutheran Brotherhood in a church of 1200 members.

Orren R. Wagner, '26, is the Supervising Principal of the Milbheim schools.

POTPOURRI

The president of the University of Southern California bewails the fact that the word "swell" is used by the university students to describe 4,972 situations. Evidently he doesn't realize that this is an age of efficiency.

The male students at Washington University who are unaffiliated with any fraternity have organized a society called the "Wandering Greeks." Students at Bennington College for Women are allowed a two months' winter recess so that they may have time for research work. They should be able to do quite a bit of careful searching in that time.

The faculty of Wesleyan University recently issued a challenge to the Seniors to engage in an athletic contest. The faculty members, desiring to show their ability, offered to meet the students in playing basketball, squash, handball, volleyball and bridge.

Co-eds at Northwestern University who remain faithful to the boys they left at home have organized and refused dates to the regular run of students. An excellent thing in women.

A student at the College of Puget Sound, who had enrolled at the college twenty-five years ago, was recently awarded his Bachelor of Arts degree. Better late than never.

Guarded literature and reading matter is needed by the University of Wisconsin. According to the report of the librarian, there are over 750 books and magazines stolen each year.

Technocracy to the nth degree. A teacher at Alabama has invented a machine to mark examination papers. It is not influenced by smooth talkers or the amount of space taken up on the paper.

The men sure used their "horse sense" when choosing the "loveliest girl" at the University of Ohio. The honored female was one Madeline Ormsby. Incidentally, Madeline is a prize cow.

Speaking about horse sense, Cornell conducted an experiment with horses to determine the time it took a horse to remove the cover off of a feed bag. It took the winner just five seconds. So, just what is horse sense?

Here is the course that made the University of Texas famous. It is a sleeping course and the classroom is provided with cots on which the students sleep for thirty minutes every time that the class meets. Oh, that they only gave a major in that subject.

AMUSEMENTS

"King of the Jungle" is being shown for the last time tonight, featuring Buster Crabbe, well known swimmer, as Kasper, the Lion-Man who escapes through the streets of modern civilization.

Tomorrow night's feature, "Three On a Match," is an interesting story, excellently handled and characterized. Joan Blondell, Ann Dvorak, Bette Davis, and Warren William are sufficient to make any picture worth seeing.

"Honor Dollar Scandal," feature film for Thursday, is a thrilling drama of scheming multi-millionaires, with Robert Armstrong, Constance Cummings, and Olga Baclanova featured in a strong cast.

Claudette Colbert and Fredric March are the deciding factors that make "Tonight is Ours" a real hit. This story, scheduled for Friday night, is based on Noel Coward's "The Queen Was in the Parlor," a pleasing type of Graustarkian romance.

Tom Mix, older but still famous, arrives on Saturday as "The Fourth Horseman," a thrilling action feature which has been proclaimed as his best in ages.

The much heralded "State Fair" is scheduled for next Monday and Tuesday, with a galaxy of stars headed by the incomparable Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Lew Ayres, and Sally Eilers.

C. B. Eichman, '28, is the assistant principal of the Milbimtown Schools. He will receive his Master of Arts degree from the University of Michigan this summer.

The Editor's Mail

Concerning the Freshmen

The Freshman class should be congratulated upon the remarkable spirit that it has demonstrated since becoming a part of Susquehanna University. The members of the class of '36 have shown a real initiative and force in college activities that is far different from the usual Freshman attitude. Both the men and the women of the reading class have evidenced in their demonstrations a spirit that is truly refreshing.

The way in which the Freshman responded when the call for athletics was made is to be commended. In football as well as in basketball freshmen distinguished themselves. They also made a good showing in the recent indoor track meet.

The activities of the Frosh are not confined to athletics. They are well represented in all fields of interest on the campus. Frosh are to be found in the College Band; in the Orchestra, and on the staff of this paper. In fact freshmen are to be found on every part of the campus at any time.

The explanation of such fine spirit among the first year students is probably tied up in several conditions. In the first place it is probably due in part to a general revival of spirit. It is also due in part to a naturally good Frosh class and the un-enlightened sophomore class which does not allow the first year men many measures of liberty and does not give them credit for a certain amount of natural worthiness. Neither do they realize that the best can be brought out by leading rather than driving.

Much more has always been accomplished by leading than by driving, but this truth is usually overlooked; even by myself.

OUR POLICY

The criticisms that have been leveled, aimed, and fired at the SUSQUEHANNA by students this year have been numerous and varied indeed. In fact, each and every department of the school of our humble efforts has found at least one critic, and the sad part of the story is that we realize that the great majority of these withering remarks were deserved.

However, there is one factor to this barrage that we can't yet understand. The most outstanding and most commonly presented criticisms of the SUSQUEHANNA by the college student have been relating to the fact that the paper did not "burn up" someone. If the editor has understood correctly, the fondest desire of many of the students, is to see someone catch a halt and hearty Bronx cheer. It doesn't matter who is on the receiving end.

We have been requested quite often to attack violently some college policy. When we inquired what policy to attack no answer was forthcoming. Thus, in our humble opinion, seems to bear out a belief that after all conditions on the whole are fairly satisfactory.

Almost as numerous as the demands for a violent criticism of something have been the demands for a scandal column to be re-inserted in the SUSQUEHANNA. The volunteers for the position of author of this column have been about as many as the demands for it. It has been argued that such a column would add interest and pep to an otherwise dry sheet. This may be so.

However, we regret to say that we do not agree with the type of criticisms mentioned above—particularly the more radical ones. Such material printed in the paper representing Susquehanna University might appeal to a few people with a morbid turn of mind but we do not think it would appeal to the great majority of square thinking Susquehanna University students. Certainly it would appeal to outsiders as so much unadulterated "bunk."

So if the policy of the SUSQUEHANNA appears to be too staid and dry we can only say that we are sorry. We are following out our convictions and trying to present a representative cross section of conditions on the campus. If we make a miserable failure, our only consolation will be that we have done our best.

HOW TO USE THE SCALE

The rating scale represents the maximum and the minimum standards of our marking system. Students who satisfy the maximum requirements in a course of study shall be rated A (90-100) or Excellent, and those who come nearest to them but do not altogether attain them shall be rated B (80-89) or Good. Students whose classroom work corresponds to the minimum standards in a course of study shall be rated F (below 60) or Failure, and those who come nearest to them but do not altogether conform to them shall receive the rating of D (60-69) or Passing. All other students shall receive the rating of C (70-79) or Fair.

Susquehanna's Marking System Based on Maximum and Minimum Standards

The rating of students according to their academic achievements in a given course of study is often an exceedingly complicated task. The difficulty is increased by the fact that the rating is very largely a subjective process. Quite obviously the measurement cannot be as objective and as simplified as the application of a foot-rule, a quart measure, or a weighing balance to material things. In the rating of students the teacher deals with the mental or spiritual achievements of living human beings. This rating calls for judgment, keenness of discernment, and a sense of proportion that challenge the finest and the best in the teacher and student alike. No wonder individuals experience no little difficulty in evaluating the achievements of themselves and of others.

While the rating of a student may always remain to some extent a matter of opinion, it must in all fairness be intelligent and based on certain uniformly accepted academic standards. In other words a faculty ought to be agreed on what quantity and quality of work need to be done in a given course of study for the rating of A or excellent, and just how poor a student's work may be before he deserves an F or failure for the course. The standards of achievement for an A or a B rating should be no higher or lower in the Science Department than in the Mathematics Department. These standards should be definitely set forth so that teacher and student alike may be thoroughly conversant with them. A student has a perfect right to know just what requirements must be met for an A or B rating, and if he fails in a course, he ought to see for himself his failure to satisfy the standard requirements for at least a passing grade.

In the rating scale herein included, an attempt is made to meet these standard requirements. Students are urged to familiarize themselves with these maximum and minimum requirements and to govern their lesson preparation accordingly. Instructions are included relative to the use of the scale. If these instructions are carried out, much of the misunderstanding and disappointment at the end of each six-week period and at the close of the semester can be avoided.

Baseball Men Show Zest In First Of the Outdoor Sessions

Thirty candidates answered the call of the "Leather Apron" last Monday afternoon. Every aspirant seemed full of pep and ready to go as was indicated by their actions, and the baseball training period got under way with a momentum that pleased Coach Ullery very much.

The first three days consisted of batting practice and a loosening-up in general that served as an indication to acquaint the coach with the individual performances of his proteges.

Thursday marked the first of the Spring practice games, with the best looking prospects on the first team and the next best on the second team. The first team with Kramer and Gray doing sound duty out-hit and out-scored the second team with nine hits and five runs in three hits and one run, respectively, in a five-inning game. Captain Brininger and Yaros did the hurling for the second team.

Since the weather was wet, no practice was held Friday, but the Coach called a meeting of all the candidates in the gymnasium at 3:30 p. m. and discussed with his eager youngsters the technicalities of the game. All present were favorably impressed and left the gym with vows to put this advice into practice at the first opportunity.

Strand Theatre Stages Short Band Program

University Band, in its third theatre engagement of the season, played to a capacity audience at the Strand Theatre in Sunbury on Tuesday evening, March 28.

The Strand feature attraction on Tuesday was "Rasputin and the Empress," starring "The Royal Family of the American Theatre," the Barrymores. The final selection of the feature picture was the last strain of "March Slav" which was also the last number on the fifteen minute band program.

It was necessary for the Strand management to enlarge their stage in order to accommodate the thirty members of the band. For that reason the band was handicapped but they performed excellently under the conditions. The acoustics in the theatre are exceptional and this necessitated tuning of the instruments between the numbers.

The band entertained with its usual theatre program, opening with a singing chorus of the Alma Mater. The second selection was "Stepping Along," a concert march by Goldman. Grainger's "Country Gardens," Speak's "Sylvia" and Tschakowsky's "March Slav" constituted the rest of the program. Roland Pritchard, well-known to local vocal circles, sang "Sylvia" in a very creditable manner. The large audience was pleased with the entire theatre attraction.

BUCKNELL NAMES SASSAMAN ON ALL-OPPONENT COURT FIVE

Bob Sassaman, '36, was recently named as guard on the second "All-Opponent" basketball team named by Bucknell University, in choosing outstanding performers against the Lewisburg quintet during the cage season just completed.

This tribute is significant, in recalling that Bucknell's schedule included several outstanding opponents, such as Army, Villanova, Penn State, and the brilliant Stroudsburg Teachers five.

In the Crusaders' game on Bucknell's court, Sassaman was particularly effective, scoring nine points himself and holding his man to a lone goal from the floor.

Students Have Narrow Escape In Auto Crash

Al Meyer and Martin Graykoskie, both of the Class of '36, narrowly escaped death, when the former's car overturned during an attempt to avoid hitting another machine last Thursday evening less than a mile outside of Selingrove.

Meyer, who was driving, was starting to pass the car in front of him when the latter suddenly swerved across to turn into a side road. The student returned his steering wheel, but was again forced to turn back to avoid going off the road. The sudden twists in opposite directions caused the car to overturn.

Meyer suffered a slight deformation of the skull, being taken to a hospital immediately, but was discharged when it was found that he was not seriously injured. Graykoskie received several cuts and bruises.

MUSICAL PROGRAM FEATURES LADIES' AUXILIARY MEETING

Ladies' Auxiliary of Susquehanna University held its regular meeting in the chapel and social room of Seibert Hall on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The program consisted of two vocal solos by Jimmie Burns, accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Benner Burns, a piano solo by Harold Follmer, Clarinet solo by Richard Shade and the gypsy dance by Mary Ellingham, Mary Hummel, Mary Jane Kehrer, Ruth Bair, Louise Mehring, Dorothy Turner, Ruth Bair sang the solo part to this number.

After the program was over, the ladies adjourned to the social room, where they held a business meeting following which refreshments were served. Mrs. Martha Dodson was the chairman of the program committee, and Mrs. Howard was the chairman of the social committee.

GROSSMAN IN ATTENDANCE AT DISTRICT ALUMNI MEETS

Professor Luther D. Grossman, General Secretary of the Alumni Association of Susquehanna University, attended the second annual meeting of the Hanover-Susquehanna Club at the Hotel McAllester in Hanover, last Friday evening, March 31.

Susquehanna's Alumni Secretary spoke to the grads about the affairs of the campus and showed motion pictures of Susquehanna's enlarged campus with her students at work and at play. Mr. Ernest W. Nichols, associated with the Equitable Life Insurance of Iowa at Hanover, and a former Orange and Maroon football captain, is president of the organization.

Other district clubs of Susquehanna's Alumni Association who are planning meetings in the near future are as follows: April 21, Altoona; April 24, Williamsport; April 27, Harrisburg, and April 29, Washington, D. C.

SENIOR MEN, UNDEFEATED TAKE VOLLEYBALL CROWN

Class volleyball came to an end last week, with the Seniors taking the men's championship for the third consecutive year. The Class of '33 has never been defeated in a league volleyball match in the Alumni Gym, dating from the first year of such competition, which was in the year 1930-31.

Of the six teams which entered this year's tournament, only five completed their schedules, the Theologs being unable to continue because of a lack of players.

The Seniors won five games, losing none. Faculty, Juniors, Sophs, Freshmen, and Theologs finished in that order.

Poor attendance at these contest does not justify the performances of many of the teams, as hard volleying and smart passing afforded many hotly contested points and interesting matches.

Susquehanna Program At Teachers Meeting

Susquehanna University Night was held at the Parent Teachers' Meeting of Sunbury at the Sunbury High School, on Tuesday evening, March 28.

President G. Morris Smith delivered a short talk, and musical entertainment was rendered by the Girls' Glee Club, and members of the faculty of the Conservatory of Music.

Professor Donald Hemphill rendered a violin solo, and Professor Frederick Stevens rendered two vocal solos: "Blind Ploughman" by Clarke, and "Awake Beloved" by Edwards.

The Girls' Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Bertha Rodgers, gave three numbers: "Cantata," "The Garden of Flowers" by Demza; operatic duet, "Barcarole," from Tales of Hoffman, by Orfenbach, with Margaret Burns, soprano, and Audra Martz, contralto; operatic duet and quartet from Eugene O'negin, by Tschakowsky, with Audra Martz, Irene Mengel, Mary Hummel and Betty Shippe as soloists.

LAHAZA AND LIZDAS HONORED IN THE ANNUAL MAY DAY ELECTIONS

Mary LaHaza Selected as May Queen and Diana Lizdas Lady-in-Waiting; Court Members are Moody, Walborn, Fultz, Hoy, Gentzler and Ide

Miss Mary LaHaza was selected as Queen of May on Wednesday morning, April 12, after the Chapel exercises. Miss Diana Lizdas was chosen as Lady-in-Waiting to the May Queen at the same time. Other members of the May court were the Misses Anna Gage Moody, Mabel Fultz, Beatrice Gentzler, Josephine Hoy, Margaret Ide, and Marion Walborn.

Following a custom of several years the May Queen and Her Court were elected by the entire women's student body. Committees are being appointed by Miss Esther Geisel, president of the Y. W. C. A.

The May Day elections this year are equally divided among the eligible campus societies. Miss LaHaza is a member of Sigma Sigma Delta, the Misses Lizdas, Moody, Walborn, and Fultz are Kappa Deltas, and the remaining members of the court, the Misses Hoy, Gentzler, and Ide belong to Sigma Alpha Iota. The May Day elections are limited entirely to members of the senior class and for that reason Omega Delta Sigma has no representatives. O. D. S. has no senior girls within its group.

The May Day program is under the direction of Miss Dorothy Reeder. Plans for the program are not definitely completed, but it is certain that the theme of the program will depict certain high lights of the college history. This is notable because this year marks the seventy-fifth year and commencement of Susquehanna University. Rehearsals will begin the latter part of this week.

Music for the exercises will be furnished by the University Band under the direction of Professor Elrose Allison. The May Pole dance by the children of Selingrove is another customary feature of the day.

May 13 is the date set for this year's May Day activities. Please remember the date for the Junior Prom will be (Concluded on Page 4)

Henry and Whitely To Edit Lanthorn

Sophomores Elect Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager for Next Year's Annual; Will Appoint Staffs

Donald Henry and William Whitely were elected as Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager, respectively, of The 1933 Lanthorn, in the Sophomore election held during chapel exercises on Friday morning, April 21.

The new heads of the college yearbook, published each year by the Junior Class, lost no time in signing a photography contract immediately with H. Zamsky, of Philadelphia. The Zamsky firm has been serving Lanthorn staffs regularly for the past four years.

Henry and Whitely will appoint their respective supporting staffs some time in the near future, as well as the placing of contracts for printing and engraving.

Both men are members of the Epsilon Sigma fraternity. Henry was recently appointed News Editor of THE SUSQUEHANNA, while Whitely has also served on the business staff of the weekly.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

Local advertisers in THE SUSQUEHANNA are asked to take note that publication of a Student Blotter will be in charge of THE SUSQUEHANNA NEXT YEAR.

This step is being taken by the business staff of THE SUSQUEHANNA to enable its advertisers to receive space on the Student Blotter in conjunction with advertising space in THE SUSQUEHANNA, at special rates. A scale is now being drawn out by the incoming business staff.

THE SUSQUEHANNA takes this opportunity to warn local merchants and advertisers against any individual enterprise of a Student Blotter which will not combine the advantages to be offered in the new scale of THE SUSQUEHANNA.

Choral Society in Concert Next Week

Chorus of Seventy Voices Will be Assisted by Noted Vocalists; Group Renders "Four Winds"

Susquehanna University Choral Society, comprised of seventy voices, under the direction of Professor E. Edwin Sheldon, will give its annual concert Tuesday evening, May 2, at 8:15, in Seibert Hall Chapel. The organization will be assisted in its program by Miss Margaret E. Keiser, soprano, and Daniel Healy, tenor, who will appear as the soloists in the cantata, "The Four Winds," by Carl Busch.

Miss Keiser is a graduate of Susquehanna University Conservatory of Music, class of 1926, having majored in both piano and voice, and has taken post-graduate work in music education at Temple University. At present, she is a teacher of voice and piano in Philadelphia. She has met with great success as a concert soloist, having appeared in many oratorios, such as Handel's "Messiah," Brahms' "German Requiem," and Mendelssohn's "Saint Paul," which she sang with the Summer School Chorus of Temple University. Of this, the press says: "The soloists lend considerable feeling and lustre to the music, Miss Keiser and Mr. Long particularly, exhibiting a richness and color in tone that combined splendidly with their sympathetic understanding of the material at hand."

Mr. Healy, also from Philadelphia, is a member of the faculty at Curtis Institute of Music. He has had many concert appearances and was a regular member of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company for two seasons. He has also appeared as soloist with the Germantown Choral Society in the "Creation," the Alhona Oratorio Festival in "Elijah," and with Philadelphia Choral Societies in the "Messiah."

PI GAMMA MU TO BANQUET MAY 1; GUEST SPEAKER

The annual meeting of Pi Gamma Mu is scheduled to be held on Monday, May 1, at 5 p. m., in the social room of Seibert Hall.

The business session will include a summary of the year's achievements, the election and installation of officers, and other matters of importance. The guest speaker will be Rev. C. Gail Norris, of Selingrove. Following the meeting a banquet will be given to the members of the fraternity in Horton Dining Hall.

Class Track Meet in Second Day of Events

The annual outdoor Inter-Class Track Meet will be concluded this afternoon.

The Seniors, who won this meet last year, are working hard to fulfill expectations and emerge victorious again today. From the results of yesterday's events, they seem to be approaching their goal.

This annual meet serves as a means of uncovering new track material for the varsity. The meet this year will serve the added purpose of whipping the Varsity Track men into shape for their first Dual Meet of the season with Drexel on May 5.

Electoral Committee Appoints Under Revised Constitution; Ten Freshmen Candidates for Editorial Staff Assure Competition

Penn Relays Squad Selected by Snell

Team Comprised of Co-Captains Swarm and Meyer, Truckenmiller, Oberdorf and Harman; Positions Uncertain

Susquehanna's Mile Relay Team will attempt to shake off the jinx, which has followed it to the Penn Relays for the past two years, on Friday and Saturday of this week, when it will be guest of the University of Pennsylvania.

Coach Herb Snell has named the five men that will comprise the relay squad, but at the time of writing, he was still uncertain as to which four will run, or in what order they will line up at the starting mark on Saturday afternoon.

Co-Captains Johnny Meyers and Bill Swarm are the only two who ran last year's team, although George Truckenmiller accompanied that group as alternate. The other two choices are John Oberdorf and Paul Hartman, who will probably fight it out with Truckenmiller this week to decide the remaining two positions.

Susquehanna has taken second place to Juniata for the last two years at the Relays, and hopes to settle accounts at this year's meeting. Juniata has also lost three men from her last year's squad, and consequently a close battle is expected. Before Susquehanna was shifted to this new group of contenders, the Crusaders finished sixth, three years ago, with Geneva winning the event.

Swarm and Meyers have been turning in some fast time in trials this spring, but the others have not yet hit their full stride. By Saturday, however, it is expected that the four men to represent Susquehanna will be in tip-top shape to carry the baton across the finish line first.

Student Councils in First State Meeting

Nelson Gray, James Bonnell, and Robert Sala, members of the Men's Student Council, attended a convention of student council members from twelve colleges of Pennsylvania for the purpose of forming a college students' organization. Pennsylvania State College acted as host to the delegates. In the week-end meeting April 21 and 22.

The twelve student councils were organized into the Pennsylvania Association of College Students. Pennsylvania was the third state to attempt such an organization. Alabama and Georgia already have functioning State Student Councils.

After the organization meeting the members discussed problems of publications, athletics, and student government that have arisen on their respective campuses. Mr. Hugo Bezdek, Head Football Coach at Penn State, delivered an address to the group. (Concluded on Page 4)

Penn. Dively and Daniel McKelvey will take over THE SUSQUEHANNA next week as Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager, respectively, of the weekly as a result of the annual elections held by the Electoral Committee of the Susquehanna Publishing Association last Wednesday afternoon.

Other major positions named by the committee were: Editorial staff—Robert Clark, managing editor; Donald Henry, news editor; ten assistants on the editorial staff from the freshman class; business staff—William Reger, advertising manager; Elmer Devereaux, circulation manager; three assistants on the business staff from the freshman class.

It is of interest to note that there were ten Freshmen candidates for the editorial staff, a number which far surpasses any of previous years. The committee voted to accept all of these candidates, as follows: Allen Ever, Vernon Ferster, Jerome Guss, Bernice Harding, William VanHorn, John McGuire, Gwendolyn Schlegel, Alice Smith, Peter Ventura, and John Von Kordy. The three Freshmen named on the business staff were Albert Hess, Francis Miller and George Phillips.

This is the first instance of election to these posts by the Electoral Committee, under the provisions of the revised constitution of the Susquehanna Publishing Association. The committee was composed of Luke Rhoads, president of the Association; Dr. Arthur H. Wilson, faculty advisor to the editorial staff; Jay Worthington, editor-in-chief; Dr. Charles Leese, faculty advisor to the business staff; Harold Kramer, business manager.

Nominations were made at this time for members of the Association to vote upon officers of the Publishing Association for the coming year. Harold Rowe and George Wolfe were nominated as candidates for president; Herbert Hohmann as vice president. (Concluded on Page 4)

The program to be presented is as follows:

b. O'er Forest and Mountain—Rossini
Professor Frederick Stevens and University Singers
2. String Quartet: "Canzonetta" from Quartet in E flat, Mendelssohn
William Caruth, first violin; Marcia Chaya, second violin; Robert Clark, viola; Erle Shoberl, cello.

ELECTION NOTICE

Election of officers for the Susquehanna Publishing Association will be held tomorrow morning during Chapel.

Two candidates have been nominated for each office by the Electoral Committee according to the revised constitution. These candidates are selected from either the present Junior Class or the Theological Seminary.

Members of the Publishing Association are to ballot upon the following: President, Harold Rowe, George Wolfe; for vice president, Herbert Hohmann, Arthur Wagner; for secretary, James Bonnell, Nelson King.

The band entertained with its usual theatre program, opening with a singing chorus of the Alma Mater. The second selection was "Stepping Along," a concert march by Goldman. Grainger's "Country Gardens," Speak's "Sylvia" and Tschakowsky's "March Slav" constituted the rest of the program. Roland Pritchard, well-known to local vocal circles, sang "Sylvia" in a very creditable manner. The large audience was pleased with the entire theatre attraction.

BUCKNELL NAMES SASSAMAN ON ALL-OPPONENT COURT FIVE

Bob Sassaman, '36, was recently named as guard on the second "All-Opponent" basketball team named by Bucknell University, in choosing outstanding performers against the Lewisburg quintet during the cage season just completed.

This tribute is significant, in recalling that Bucknell's schedule included several outstanding opponents, such as Army, Villanova, Penn State, and the brilliant Stroudsburg Teachers five.

In the Crusaders' game on Bucknell's court, Sassaman was particularly effective, scoring nine points himself and holding his man to a lone goal from the floor.

Students Have Narrow Escape In Auto Crash

Al Meyer and Martin Graykoskie, both of the Class of '36, narrowly escaped death, when the former's car overturned during an attempt to avoid hitting another machine last Thursday evening less than a mile outside of Selingsgrove.

Meyer, who was driving, was starting to pass the car in front of him when the latter suddenly swerved across to turn into a side road. The student reversed his steering wheel, but was again forced to turn back to avoid going off the road. The sudden twists in opposite directions caused the car to overturn.

Meyer suffered a slight depression of the skull, being taken to a hospital immediately, but was discharged when it was found that he was not seriously injured. Graykoskie received several cuts and bruises.

MUSICAL PROGRAM FEATURES LADIES' AUXILIARY MEETING

Ladies' Auxiliary of Susquehanna University held its regular meeting in the chapel and social room of Seibert Hall on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The program consisted of two vocal solos by Jimmie Burns, accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Benner Burns, a piano solo by Harold Pollmer. Clarinet solo by Richard Shade and the gypsy dance by Mary Eltringham, Mary Hummel, Mary Jane Kehler, Ruth Bahr, Louise Mehring, Dorothy Turner, Ruth Bahr sang the solo part to this number.

After the program was over, the ladies adjourned to the social room, where they held a business meeting following which refreshments were served. Mrs. Martha Dodson was the chairman of the program committee, and Mrs. Howard was the chairman of the social committee.

GROSSMAN IN ATTENDANCE AT DISTRICT ALUMNI MEETS

Professor Luther D. Grossman, General Secretary of the Alumni Association of Susquehanna University, attended the second annual meeting of the Hanover-Susquehanna Club at the Hotel McAllister in Hanover, last Friday evening, March 31.

Susquehanna's Alumni Secretary spoke to the grads about the affairs of the campus and showed motion pictures of Susquehanna's enlarged campus with her students at work and at play. Mr. Ernest W. Nichols, associated with the Equitable Life Insurance of Iowa at Hanover, and a former Orange and Maroon football captain, is president of the organization.

Other district clubs of Susquehanna's Alumni Association who are planning meetings in the near future are as follows: April 21, Altoona; April 24, Williamsport; April 27, Harrisburg, and April 28, Washington, D. C.

SENIOR MEN, UNDEFEATED TAKE VOLLEYBALL CROWN

Class volleyball came to an end last week, with the Seniors taking the men's championship for the third consecutive year. The Class of '33 has never been defeated in a league volleyball match in the Alumni Gym, dating from the first year of such competition, which was in the year 1920-31.

Of the six teams which entered this year's tournament, only five completed their schedules, the Theologs being unable to continue because of a lack of players.

The Seniors won five games, losing none. Faculty, Juniors, Sophs, Freshmen, and Theologs finished in that order.

Poor attendance at these contest does not justify the performances of many of the teams, as hard volleying and smart passing afforded many hotly contested points and interesting matches.

Susquehanna Program At Teachers Meeting

Susquehanna University Night was held at the Parent Teachers' Meeting of Sunbury at the Sunbury High School, on Tuesday evening, March 28. President G. Morris Smith delivered a short talk, and musical entertainment was rendered by the Girls' Glee Club, and members of the faculty of the Conservatory of Music.

Professor Donald Hemphill rendered a violin solo and Professor Frederick Stevens rendered two vocal solos: "Blind Ploughman" by Clarke, and "Awake Beloved" by Edwards.

The Girls' Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Bertha Rodgers, gave three numbers: Cantata, "The Garden of Flowers" by Denza; operatic duet, "Barcarolle," from Tales of Hoffman, by Offenbach, with Margaret Burns, soprano, and Audra Marta, contralto; operatic duet and quartet from Eugene Onegin, by Tchaikowsky, with Audra Marta, Irene Mengel, Mary Hummel and Betty Shippe as soloists.

VOLLEYBALL CHAMPIONSHIP IS 3RD TITLE FOR JUNIOR WOMEN

Class volleyball games have been completed and the Junior women are again champions. This is the third sport in which they have won the championship during the present year, the other two being hockey and basketball.

The final standing of the class teams is as follows:

Class	Won	Lost	Pct.
Juniors	3	0	1.000

LAHAZA AND LIZDAS HONORED IN THE ANNUAL MAY DAY ELECTIONS

Mary LaHaza Selected as May Queen and Diana Lizdas Lady-in-Waiting; Court Members are Moody, Walborn, Fultz, Hoy, Gentzler and Ide

Miss Mary LaHaza was selected as Queen of May on Wednesday morning, April 12, after the Chapel exercises. Miss Diana Lizdas was chosen as Lady-in-Waiting to the May Queen at the same time. Other members of the May court were the Misses Anna Gage Moody, Mabel Fultz, Beatrice Gentzler, Josephine Hoy, Margaret Ide, and Marion Walborn.

Following a custom of several years the May Queen and Her Court were elected by the entire women's student body. Committees are being appointed by Miss Esther Geisel, president of the Y. W. C. A.

The May Day selections this year are equally divided among the eligible campus sororities. Miss LaHaza is a member of Sigma Sigma Delta, the Misses Lizdas, Moody, Walborn and Fultz are Kappa Delta, and the remaining members of the court, the Misses Hoy, Gentzler, and Ide belong to Sigma Alpha Iota. The May Day elections are limited entirely to members of the senior class and for that reason Omega Delta Sigma has no representatives. O. D. S. has no senior girls within its group.

The May Day program is under the direction of Miss Dorothy Reeder. Plans for the program are not definitely completed, but it is certain that the theme of the program will depict certain high lights of the college history. This is probably because this year marks the seventy-fifth year and commencement of Susquehanna University. Rehearsals will begin the latter part of this week.

Music for the exercises will be furnished by the University Band under the direction of Professor Elrose Allison. The May Pole dance by the children of Selingrove is another customary feature of the day.

May 13 is the date set for this year's May Day activities. Please remember the date for the Junior Prom will be concluded on Page 4.

Henry and Whitely To Edit Lanthorn

Sophomores Elect Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager for Next Year's Annual; Will Appoint Staffs

Donald Henry and William Whitely were elected as Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager, respectively, of the 1933 Lanthorn, in the Sophomore election held during chapel exercises on Friday morning, April 21.

The new heads of the college yearbook, published each year by the Junior Class, lost no time in signing a photography contract immediately with H. Zamsky, of Philadelphia. The Zamsky firm has been serving Lanthorn staffs regularly for the past four years.

Henry and Whitely will appoint their respective supporting staffs some time in the near future, as well as the placing of contracts for printing and engraving.

Both men are members of the Epsilon Sigma fraternity. Henry was recently appointed News Editor of THE SUSQUEHANNA, while Whitely has also served on the business staff of the weekly.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

Local advertisers in THE SUSQUEHANNA are asked to take note that publication of a Student Blotter will be in charge of THE SUSQUEHANNA NEXT YEAR.

This step is being taken by the business staff of THE SUSQUEHANNA, to enable its advertisers to receive space on the Student Blotter in conjunction with advertising space in THE SUSQUEHANNA, at special rates. A scale is now being drawn out by the incoming business staff.

THE SUSQUEHANNA takes this opportunity to warn local merchants and advertisers against any individual enterprise of a Student Blotter which will not combine the advantages to be offered in the new scale of THE SUSQUEHANNA.

Choral Society in Concert Next Week

Chorus of Seventy Voices Will be Assisted by Noted Vocalists; Group Renders "Four Winds"

Susquehanna University Choral Society, comprised of seventy voices, under the direction of Professor E. Edwin Sheldon, will give its annual concert Tuesday evening, May 2, at 8:15, in Seibert Hall Chapel. The organization will be assisted in its program by Miss Margaret E. Keiser, soprano, and Daniel Healy, tenor, who will appear as the soloists in the cantata, "The Four Winds," by Carl Busch.

Miss Keiser is a graduate of Susquehanna University Conservatory of Music, class of 1926, having majored in both piano and voice, and has taken post-graduate work in music education at Temple University. At present, she is a teacher of voice and piano in Philadelphia. She has met with great success as a concert soloist, having appeared in many oratorios, such as Handel's "Messiah," Brahms' "German Requiem," and Mendelssohn's "Saint Paul," which she sang with the Summer School Chorus of Temple University. Of this, she says: "The soloists lent considerable feeling and lustre to the music. Miss Keiser and Mr. Long particularly, exhibiting a richness and color in tone that combined splendidly with their sympathetic understanding of the material at hand."

Mr. Healy, also from Philadelphia, is a member of the faculty at Curtis Institute of Music. He has had many concert appearances and was a regular member of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company for two seasons. He has also appeared as soloist with the Germantown Choral Society in the "Creation," the Alhona Oratorio Festival in "Elijah," and with Philadelphia Choral Societies in the "Messiah."

PI GAMMA MU TO BANQUET MAY 1; GUEST SPEAKER

The annual meeting of Pi Gamma Mu is scheduled to be held on Monday, May 1, at 5 p. m., in the social room of Seibert Hall.

The business session will include a summary of the year's achievements, the election and installation of officers, and other matters of importance. The guest speaker will be Rev. C. Gail Norris, of Selingrove. Following the meeting a banquet will be given to the members of the fraternity in Horton Dining Hall.

Class Track Meet in Second Day of Events

The annual outdoor Inter-Class Track Meet will be concluded this afternoon.

The Seniors, who won this meet last year, are working hard to fulfill expectations and emerge victorious again today. From the results of yesterday's events, they seem to be approaching their goal.

This annual meet serves as a means of uncovering new track material for the varsity. The meet this year will serve the added purpose of whipping the Varsity Track men into shape for their first Dual Meet of the season with Drexel on May 5.

Electoral Committee Appoints Under Revised Constitution; Ten Freshmen Candidates for Editorial Staff Assure Competition

Penn Relays Squad Selected by Snell

Team Comprised of Co-Captains Swann and Meyer, Truckemiller, Oberdorf and Hartman; Positions Uncertain

Susquehanna's Mile Relay Team will attempt to shake off the jinx, which has followed it to the Penn Relays for the past two years, on Friday and Saturday of this week, when it will be guest of the University of Pennsylvania.

Coach Herb Scoll has named the five men that will comprise the relay squad, but at the time of writing, he was still uncertain as to which four will run, or in what order they will line up at the starting mark on Saturday afternoon.

Co-Captains Johnny Meyers and Bill Swann are the only two who ran last year's team, although George Truckemiller accompanied that group as alternate. The other two choices are John Oberdorf and Paul Hartman, who will probably fight it out with Truckemiller this week to decide the remaining two positions.

Susquehanna has taken second place to Juniata for the last two years at the Relays, and hopes to settle accounts at this year's meeting. Juniata has also lost three men from her last year's squad, and consequently a close battle is expected. Before Susquehanna was shifted to this new group of contenders, the Crusaders finished sixth, three years ago, with Geneva winning the event.

Swann and Meyers have been turning in some fast time in trials this spring, but the others have not yet hit their full stride. By Saturday, however, it is expected that the four men to represent Susquehanna will be in tip-top shape to carry the baton across the finish line first.

Student Councils in First State Meeting

Nelson Gray, James Bonsall, and Robert Sala, members of the Men's Student Council, attended a convention of student council members from twelve colleges of Pennsylvania for the purpose of forming a college students' organization. Pennsylvania State College acted as host to the delegates. In the week-end meeting April 21 and 22.

The twelve student councils were organized into the Pennsylvania Association of College Students. Pennsylvania was the third state to attempt such an organization. Alabama and Georgia already have functioning State Student Councils.

After the organization meeting the members discussed problems of publications, athletics, and student government that have arisen on their respective campuses. Mr. Hugo Bezdek, Head Football Coach at Penn State, delivered an address to the group. (Concluded on Page 4)

Penn Dively and Daniel McKelvey will take over THE SUSQUEHANNA next week as Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager, respectively, of the weekly as a result of the annual elections held by the Electoral Committee of the Susquehanna Publishing Association last Wednesday afternoon.

Other major positions named by the committee were: Editorial staff—Robert Clark, managing editor; Donald Henry, news editor; ten assistants on the reporting staff from the freshman class; business staff—William Reger, advertising manager; Elmer Deeverau, circulation manager; three assistants on the business staff from the freshman class.

It is of interest to note that there were ten Freshmen candidates for the editorial staff, a number which far surpasses any of previous years. The committee voted to accept all of these candidates, as follows: Allen Eyer, Vernon Fester, Jerome Guss, Bernice Harder, William Vanforn, John McGuire, Gwendolyn Schlegel, Alice Smith, Peter Ventura, and John Von Kandy. The three Freshmen named on the business staff were Albert Hess, Francis Miller and George Phillips.

This is the first instance of election to these posts by the Electoral Committee, under the provisions of the revised constitution of the Susquehanna Publishing Association. The committee was composed of Luke Rhoads, president of the Association; Dr. Arthur H. Wilson, faculty advisor to the editorial staff; Jay Worthington, editor-in-chief; Dr. Charles Leese, faculty advisor to the business staff; Harold Kramer, business manager.

Nominations were made at this time for members of the Association to vote upon officers of the Publishing Association for the coming year. Harold Rowe and George Wolfe were nominated as candidates for president; Herbert Hoh— (Concluded on Page 4)

FOUND—ELECTION WITHOUT POLITICS!

THE SUSQUEHANNA may lay claim to one distinction—their elections may be successfully conducted without fear of political cliques and intrigues.

The first year of the Electoral Committee has proven that such a situation is possible, and plans are under way at present to strengthen further bonds of security.

The votes of the committee are controlled by the reports of the staff heads; the reports of the staff heads are controlled by an automatic scale of rating. Only the deliberate juggling of figures by an unscrupulous person can distort the true results, and the Electoral Committee does not propose to name such an individual to a post of responsibility.

The staff members elect themselves by their efforts and results. If they produce, their score bears witness. Under the further revision of the scale, a common denominator is being established whereby every candidate has an equal chance, regardless of difference in assignment or the possibility of illness. This system appears practically infallible even with such an aforementioned individual in control.

The method also insures increased competition and therefore a higher quality of production in the paper itself.

LOOKING AHEAD

Every organization leaves behind it several aims which are not realized. THE SUSQUEHANNA, in its editorial policies, has certain such factors in mind, which it would like to "will" to the incoming staff.

To be brief, they are:

1. Investigation of student councils, both men and women, on this campus and at corresponding institutions, with the view of attaining a satisfactory method of dealing with student conduct and legislation.
2. Investigation of certain solemn organizations on the campus whose aims are dubious and whose activity seems to end with their posing for the yearbook picture.
3. Stimulation of student dramatic productions and other activities which will prevent the "five-day week" and reflect the capacity of a college group.
4. Establishment of a journalistic society at Susquehanna to afford some measure of recognition to staff members, and at the same time provide a stimulus for candidates to the publications.
5. Adequate provision and maintenance of tennis courts for the use of students and faculty members.
6. Stimulation of interest in music, debating, and other cultural programs of student talent or production.
7. A bigger and better SUSQUEHANNA!

WE TAKE OUR BOW

Like all performers who realize that the time has arrived for a more or less graceful exit, the 1933 staff of THE SUSQUEHANNA offers this issue as its "swan song."

Other Seniors may appreciate our mingled sentiments of gratification and regret as the hour of parting draws relentlessly nearer.

We have not attained the goal at which we have been aiming; we realize that THE SUSQUEHANNA is far from what it could be. That goal cannot be reached in one year, or even a number of years. It must be the result of careful, steady progress.

Yet we feel that we have contributed materially to that progress during the current year. This year has marked the successful introduction of the provisions made by the revised Constitution of the Publishing Association.

Organization has been furthered, and plans laid for a more nearly complete management in the future. Financially, THE SUSQUEHANNA has weathered the most violent elements of economic distress, and left the incoming staff on a substantial working basis.

We are grateful to those who have given us their sincere support, since it is such that we endeavor to please.

Now it is our place to step aside and give the next performer his turn. So the show goes on—until the last curtain drops. We are given our chance before the footlights; whether or not we can produce does not effect the routine. When the act is over, we must take our bow and get off—for there is always someone else to take our place.

So—good luck, 1934! You're on next!

BOOK SHELF

Many interesting volumes may be found among the more recent titles added to the Library shelves, ranging from the popular fiction of Pearl Buck to such works as Warden Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," and the "President's Research Committee."

Mention should be made of certain non-fiction books which will certainly be ignored by the average reader unless it is enlightened to the extent that he may investigate and find them really enjoyable reading.

These include Dittmar's "Thrills of a Naturalist's Quest," Quinn's "Soul of America," and Sullivan's "Our Times." Vol. IV. Such unattractive titles belie the many pages of readable material which rest between their covers.

Another volume, which should be of especial interest to lovers of O. Henry, is Jennings' "Through the Shadows with O. Henry." The only adventure which can compare with those woven by America's great short story writer is that of his own life, told in a manner which is suggestive of the rugged sympathy of Jim Tully. Al Jennings includes much of the story of his own hard life, but does not neglect to bring out the most fascinating details in his acquaintance with the lovable Will Porter. He shows how the latter derived many of his tales, such as episode of Jimmy Valentine, taken from one of the prisoners in the jail where both Jennings and O. Henry were confined.

The book itself is not of recent publication, but is a new and welcome addition to the shelves of the college library.

AMUSEMENTS

"Sign of the Cross," one of the outstanding productions of the current film year, will be shown for the last time tonight. Fredric March, Charles Laughton, and Claudette Colbert have leading roles in this historical DeMille presentation.

Tomorrow night's feature is "Afraid to Talk," an expose of crooked police methods, with many gripping sequences. Eric Linden is the outstanding performer in this timely story.

"The Most Dangerous Game," Thursday's film, is a weird and exciting tale with man being thrown into the role of the hunted instead of that of the hunter. Fay Wray, Leslie Banks, and Robert Armstrong are cast in the leading roles.

Ruth Chatterton gives another great performance in the interesting character of "Frisco Jenny," the presentation for Friday evening.

Bob Steele, virile newcomer in Western roles, takes the lead in "Young Blood," scheduled for Saturday afternoon and evening. Helen Foster lends support in this Robin Hood type of story.

Next Monday brings back those original hard-boiled eggs, Sergeant Quirt and Captain Flagg Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen in another rollicking yarn, "Hot Pepper." Lupe Velez supplies the feminine interest as a South American night club dancer.

"The Last Mile" is the feature for Tuesday evening, May 2, with George Stone starring in this intense drama of a death house.

Co-Eds Go Continental

Susquehanna co-eds are going Oxford this spring. With the purchasing of two new bicycles by the Physical Education Department, a new form of recreation will be initiated on this campus.

The idea is not new by any means, but a revival of enthusiasm this spring seems to have brought results. The two bicycles will arrive soon.

According to the intense interest shown by the girls, it seems that bicycling will be the most popular sport of the current season. This sport has been discussed widely, and many girls are impatiently awaiting the arrival of the bicycles.

Since "great oaks from little acorns grow," it would not be a bit surprising to see the two bicycles become ten or twenty, and a mere pastime become a physical education requirement.

If the enthusiasm continues, each year with the approach of spring it will become a familiar sight to see gay colors flying, as many cyclists pedal their way towards Salem.

SEIDEL SPEAKS TO HONOR SCIENCE GROUP TONIGHT

All members of the Honor Science group are requested to be present at the meeting tonight in Steele Science Hall when officers will be elected for the following year.

Dr. George R. Seidel will explain and discuss his experiment on absorption which he is working on at the present time.

Easter Cupid Scores on Hearts of Susquehannans---Freshmen to Alumni

Susquehanna men and women contributed a goodly share to the number of matrimonial ventures entered upon over the Easter holidays.

Freshman Edward Rimer, popular figure on the campus and hailing from Clarion, Pa., surprised his many friends by taking the big step on Monday afternoon, April 17, when he was married to Miss Miriam C. Eisenhower, of Sunbury, in the Zion Lutheran Church of that city. The couple then left on the 6:35 train for a brief honeymoon.

Two former Susquehannans were joined together by a Susquehanna Seminarian on the preceding Saturday. Frank Ramsey, '31, was married to Edith Erdley, '30, at the St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Shamokin Dam, by Reverend Russell Crouse, who was graduated from the Susquehanna Theological Seminary in 1931. Ramsey was Editor-in-Chief of THE SUSQUEHANNA during his senior year and is a member of Epsilon Sigma. The former Miss Erdley is a member of Sigma Sigma Delta, and was active in Student Government on the campus. The couple will reside in Bound Brook, New Jersey, where Ramsey is employed as a teacher in the high school.

Edith Ash, who attended Susquehanna University in 1931, and is a member of Kappa Delta Phi, was married on Friday, to Paul D. Wright, of Altoona, at the Marysville Methodist Church. Her father, Reverend Harry K. Ash, performed the ceremony. The bride has been employed as a teacher of art and music in Marysville schools.

Mrs. Linglebach Will Address Women's Clubs

Dr. Anna Lane Linglebach, chairman of the department of history at Temple University, and President of the New Century Club of Philadelphia, will be the main lecturer at the annual spring meeting of the Susquehanna Valley Federation of Women's Clubs, at Seibert Hall on Friday, May 5.

Mrs. Theodore W. Kretschmann, president of the Women's Club of Selinsgrove, will be hostess to the visiting women's clubs of the valley.

The morning session will begin at 10:15 o'clock, at which time the following will be elected for the following year.

The afternoon session, which begins at 2:15 o'clock, is open to all of the women of Selinsgrove and features Mrs. Linglebach as guest speaker.

Newly Elected College Heads Attend
Week-End Meet of Intercollegiate Newspaper Association

Editor-elect Penn Dively and Business Manager-elect Daniel McKelvey are making preparations to attend the semi-annual convention of the Inter-Collegiate Newspaper Association, convening at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, on Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25.

The stage is set for an unusual convention this spring. Problems facing each paper will be treated by the entire group so that an applicable solution may be found.

Prominent representatives of college publishers and advertisers will be present at the first meeting on Friday afternoon to address both the business and editorial groups on the needs of the college paper advertiser.

An informal dance in the Library on Friday evening will be used as a means of bringing the delegates into a closer social touch. The entire morning of the following day will be taken up with sectional meetings of the Business and Editorial Boards. Both groups will be addressed by representatives from local papers.

The regular annual election will be held on Saturday afternoon. Each member newspaper sends in nominations for the respective offices and the Electoral Committee selects four nominations for each office.

The convention will adjourn on Saturday evening at the regular banquet at the College Commons. Prominent speakers from city newspapers will address the groups and C. Steve Fisher, popular stage artist, will entertain the banqueters with music. The remainder of the evening will be given to the delegates to see and hear the Civic Little Theatre Drama Tournée. Casts from Lehigh University, Lafayette College, and Muhlenberg College will present one-act plays in the tournament.

Faculty Club Holds Last Afternoon Tea

Tea season is over! The Faculty Club enjoyed the last in the series of international teas at the home of Mrs. W. W. Ullery on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. Spain was the country representative of this meeting.

Miss Lucy Irving, chairman of the committee, was assisted by the following aides: Miss Dorothy Welsh Reader, Mrs. R. W. Tucker, Miss Thelma E. Armagost, Mrs. Charles Leese, and Mrs. Frederick C. Stevens.

Prior to the tea a short business meeting took place to elect a chairman for 1933-34. Mrs. Frederick C. Stevens was elected. Mrs. G. Morris Smith is now the retiring chairman.

The atmosphere of the tea was quite nationalistic. The hostesses were dressed in Spanish costume; Mrs. Stevens and Freda Stephens rendered piano selections, and Mary Eltringham sang a Spanish tune. Two girls also rendered a duet. Mr. Jack Pottelger, accompanied by Miss Mary Pottelger at the piano, impressed his audience with a dance number. The program was marked with versatility and proved quite interesting and entertaining.

The next and final meeting of the Campus Club will be a luncheon.

Pre-Theological Club Elects New Officers

The Pre-Theological Club of Susquehanna University elected its officers for the coming term on Thursday, April 6. Ernest Huston will lead the Club next year as president.

Each member of the club took an active part in the discussion of the topic which was "Worship." Such interesting subjects as "Why Worship," "What Is Worship," and "How Worship," elicited numerous opinions and many worth-while comments.

After the discussion the new officers were installed, and expressed their desire to make the meetings in the future even more helpful than those in the past had been.

COACH ULLERY SCORES IN COUNTRY CLUB TOURNEY

Coach Bill Ullery dropped around to the Susquehanna Valley Country Club last week to show the folks that he could still hit a golf ball around vigorously in addition to coaching varsity sports at the college.

He returned with lowest score among the earlier contestants of the handicap tournament being staged, with a comfortable lead over his nearest opponent.

McKelvey Elected Varsity Manager for 1933-34 Basketball; Captain-
Elect Three-Letter Man

At a recent meeting of the lettermen from the Orange and Maroon basketball team, "Jerry" Schlegel was elected to lead the Crusaders next season. Captain-elect Schlegel is one of Susquehanna's three lettermen, having gained recognition in tennis, football and basketball. During the past season he was playing a great defensive game at the center position as well as being on the starting end of some very beautiful executed shots which zipped the nets. Should Captain Schlegel be able to instill in his teammates the fighting spirit which he possesses, the Crusaders will go far in their basketball endeavors next year.

The Athletic Association has just recently announced the election of Daniel McKelvey as student manager for the coming season. With his experience which he gained while traveling with the J. V. team this year, he should make the Crusaders an efficient manager during the coming season.

Spaid, S. U. '29, Hurt Badly in Plane Crash

George "Jack" Spaid, '29, is slowly recovering from the severe injuries which he received when his newly acquired airplane crashed on the Isle of Que on Friday afternoon, April 14.

The plane, of which he was pilot, failed to come out of a tailspin and smashed into the ground near the landing field, crushing Spaid and also injuring Paul Bogar, a student flyer. Bogar's injuries were not serious, but Spaid received a broken jaw, broken leg, and severe contusions and cuts about the head.

He was rushed to the Geisinger Hospital, where he lay unconscious for many hours, but now seems to be on the road to recovery.

Spaid was graduated from Susquehanna in 1929, following which he took up aviation, and recently acquired the new plane with which to teach pupils.

At Susquehanna Spaid was active in basketball and baseball. He is a member of Epistol Sigma.
